GUNMAN BURKE ELUDES TRAP

INSULL SEEKS 25 MILLIONS FOR CAR EXTENSIONS

Building to Precede Consolidation.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Samuel Insull announced yesterday he has requested Halsey, Stuart & Co., investment bankers, "to become syndicate managers for the formation of a syndicate which will undertake to raise around $25,000,000 for beginning the work of extending and rehabilitating Chicago's transportation system."

"The intention," continues the announcement, "is to proceed with such work as rapidly as circumstances will permit, without waiting for a solution of all of the difficulties attending legal consolidation of the properties."

The night of July 1, when the transportation ordinance was approved by Chicago voters, Mr. Insull stated he desired to speed the improvements pledged in the franchise. In yesterday's announcement he becomes more specific. One prominent banker expressed the opinion early last week that there would be no difficulty in raising $20,000,000, and it is known certain bankers have been sounded on proposals to raise some such sum at once.

Would Relieve Unemployment.

Last March, before the text of the ordinance franchise was made public, it was reported that A. W. Harris of the Harris Trust and Savings bank had urged that $25,000,000 be raised by those with faith in the local transportation outlook, under the proposed grant, before securities in the consolidated company were offered the public.

The raising of $25,000,000 at once is said to have three objectives; speeding up the obtaining of better transportation, providing work for the unemployed and the creation of public confidence in the new transit system.

Under an oral agreement on the plan of procedure, the proposed millions to be spent on transit improvements before the consolidation of the surface and elevated lines is to be deducted from the $65,000,000 which the new company is pledged to spend in the first three years after consolidation. In the tentative ordinance, drafted last week, setting forth that agreement, only $12,000,000 is to be spent before Nov. 1. It was reported yesterday that the companies this morning, in conference with Attorney Walter L. Fisher and Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, will suggest that the $12,000,000 limit be increased to $20,000,000 or more.

Fisher Explains Problem.

Asked about such a report, Attorney Fisher said: "A delay in consolidation is disadvantageous to the city and the car riders. Every one is anxious that work on the promised improvements be started, but it seems unwise to permit the expenditures to be too large, because that might delay consolidation."

If there is a disagreement between the conferees, the subject will probably go to the council local transportation committee to be decided at its special session this afternoon.

On the merger Mr. Insull also announced he has requested Halsey, Stuart & Co. to become consolidation manager. To an extent, a plan of consolidation has been worked out and it is reported to be acceptable to the protective committees of the first mortgage bond holders of all the companies involved. But there are some first mortgage bonds which have not been deposited with protective committees. Those security holders must be dealt with.

Consider Junior Securities.

Also there are protective committees of junior securities which have not accepted the plan, according to gossip, although none is reported to have refused it.

It is natural that each class of junior security holders will desire to get as much as possible out of the reorganization and some one will have to tell them when they have reached the limit. That is one of the jobs of the consolidation manager.

Robert Ridgway, chief engineer of the New York transit board, will be at Attorney Fisher's office this morning to confer about his engagement as consulting engineer in the design of Chicago subways.

Some Prefer Engineering Board.

It was reported yesterday that the aldermen prefer a board of consulting engineers instead of only one. That point probably will be decided by the local transportation committee this afternoon. It is Chairman McDonough's purpose to have the committee go farther. He would have the committee take all necessary action for the formation of an engineering organization to design the subways.

SENATORS TOLD OF HIS STAND AT VIRGINIA CAMP

Twenty-three to Ask Reservation.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—President Hoover, it was learned tonight, is unalterably opposed to the Norris reservation to the London navy limitation treaty.

He made his attitude known today to Senators Henry J. Allen [Rep., Kas.], Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], John Thomas [Rep., Idaho], and Felix Herbert [Rep., R. I.], who were the guests of Mr. Hoover in his Rapidan river camp.

On the return of the presidential party to Washington tonight Senators Allen and Vandenberg, leaders of the Young Turk Republicans, began passing the word along the ranks of administration supporters that the Norris reservation must be defeated.

The reservation, which was offered by Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] immediately after receipt of the President's refusal to submit the secret navy treaty documents, declares that the senate in ratifying the pact does so with the understanding that there is no secret agreement modifying its terms.

Regarded as Reflection.

Mr. Hoover regards the reservation as a reflection upon the integrity and honor of the executive, who formally declared in his message to the senate that there is no secret understanding of any sort affecting the treaty. If the senate should adopt this reservation it would be tantamount, in the opinion of Mr. Hoover, to declaring that it is not satisfied with the word of the President on this matter.

The President is represented as being opposed not only to the Norris but to all other reservations to the treaty that have been suggested.

The command of the President to knock out the Norris reservation complicates the situation on the eve of the opening tomorrow of the second week of debate on the London pact in the senate. In fact, with the present attendance of only about two-thirds of the senators Mr. Hoover's rejection of the Norris amendment renders the fate of the treaty for the moment somewhat uncertain.

Twenty-three Want Reservation.

At least twenty-three senators, according to Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], president pro tempore of the senate, will vote against the treaty if the Norris reservation is defeated. With the present attendance twenty-three senators, if unpaired, would be a sufficient number to prevent ratification, which requires a two-thirds majority.

The administration forces, as a result of the President's opposition to the Norris amendment, now find themselves up against the necessity of getting enough absent pro-treaty senators back in Washington to assure ratification notwithstanding the defection of Senators Norris, Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.] and other pro-treaty senators who say they will not vote for the pact without the Norris reservation.

Cloture Proposed, Opposed.

Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader of the senate, informed the White House tonight that he can hold a quorum this week, but is uncertain about next week. Every effort is to be made to press the treaty to ratification by the end of this week, but Senator Watson is doubtful that a vote can be obtained before next week. Some administration leaders are urging invocation of cloture if the debate runs far into next week. But Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], the chairman of the foreign relations committee, who is in charge of the treaty, says he will not agree to cloture at any time. President Hoover also is against cloture, according to the senators returning from the Rapidan.

The telegraph wires are buzzing tonight with fervent appeals to the absent ones to be in their seats when the senate meets tomorrow, for if a quorum should be lacking at the beginning of the second week of debate the psychological effect would be unfavorable to the administration. By so much would be advanced the movement to postpone action on the treaty till autumn and adjourn.

One of the suggestions under serious consideration by the administration leaders is that the President issue

HOOVER ESCAPES AUTO CRASH, BUT CAR BEHIND IS HIT

The car which struck the White House car was driven by Mrs. Carolyn Lone Beach of 1524 Delamere place, Brooklyn, N. Y. Her husband, her mother, her child, and Mr. Beach's mother were with her.

The Beach car was going in the opposite direction to that of the President's party. It careened past the President's automobile, which was first in line, and the next machine, occupied by secret service men, smashing into the third car.

Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President; Capt. Joel T. Boone, Mrs. Boone, and Suzanne Boone, their daughter, occupied the machine struck. The party was forced to transfer to the personal car of Mrs. Hoover, which was trailing, driven by a chauffeur.

President Hoover stopped for a few minutes to assure himself no one was injured and then came on immediately to the White House. Secret service men were left with the damaged car.

FLAMES CAUSE $100,000 LOSS TO FRAME FACTORY

Fire early this morning wrecked the factory of the Advance Window Frame company at Division street and Kilbourn avenue. The flames, sweeping through the large one story building before a brisk wind, were visible for three miles on the northwest side and attracted thousands of spectators.

The damage was estimated at $100,000 by Fire Marshal Corrigan, who sounded a 5-11 alarm when he arrived on the scene. Three special calls for additional apparatus were necessary, however, before the flames were brought under control. Automobiles and pedestrians that thronged the streets delayed the arrival of several fire engines.

J. J. Javerek, 4545 South Western avenue, was the first to discover the blaze, which is believed to have started in the planing room of the factory. The cause was not determined and Marshal Corrigan said he would ask Fire Attorney Scott Hogan to make an investigation today.

Nye Will Open Primary Fund Hearing Today

Hearings on campaign expenditures in the Illinois senatorial campaign at the April primaries will begin in the federal building today before the senate investigating committee headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota. At her own request Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for United States senator, is to be the first witness.

Senator Nye said in Washington Saturday that his investigators had found that Mrs. McCormick's expenditures were $325,000 instead of $252,000 which she reported. Mrs. McCormick said that the $325,000 included amounts spent by nonpolitical organizations in the campaign, and that all these amounts had been accounted for as such in her report to the committee. The staff of senate committee investigators is headed by William Hunter Baldwin, alleged to have been at the head of the Ku Klux Klan secret service, who is with Senator Nye here.

Hearings to Last Week.

The hearings will last throughout the week unless means are found for expediting the inquiry, Senator Nye said. He expects to be joined today by Senator C. C. Dill of Washington and Senator Porter H. Dale of Vermont. However, the difficulty of maintaining a quorum at Washington may prevent their presence and Senator Nye will make all examination of witnesses.

The senator declined to give the number of witnesses subpoenaed. Among those served are Charles V. Barrett, Joseph P. Carolan and Morris Eller. According to the deputy marshals members of the Deneen organization are not in the first batch of subpoenas. Senator Deneen is not expected to attend the hearings.

Says Complaints Caused Hearing.

"The inquiry was prompted by a number of complaints throughout the state," Senator Nye said. "The investigating staff made a report to the committee and the committee set the hearings on the basis that there might be probability in the complaints.

"Ward committeemen are to be questioned in Chicago on how much they received and how they disbursed the money. Similar questions will be asked of witnesses from downstate. The Democratic candidates will not be questioned, as no complaints have been made in that quarter.

"The report will be made to the senate and the senators will be asked to make a decision. In 1921 the senate seated Newberry of Michigan, although a resolution was passed holding the expenditure of $191,000 as excessive. This was merely an expression of opinion by that senate and not a binding rule."

Will Receive Auditor's Report.

An auditor's report of Mrs. McCormick's expenditures will be examined. Senator Deneen, when questioned by the committee, listed his campaign expenditures at $24,493.22. The report will not be delivered to the senate until after the election this fall.

The committee has an inquiry into the Pennsylvania primary scheduled at Philadelphia for Aug. 4 and 5.

Conan Doyle's Wife Says His Spirit Talks

LONDON, July 13.—(AP)—The receipt of what purports to be a direct message from the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was claimed tonight by a woman clairvoyant at a memorial meeting for him. The message was accepted as genuine by Lady Doyle.

Its substance was not made public, but on hearing it the novelist's widow exclaimed:

"I am perfectly convinced the message is from my husband."

Before it was delivered, the meeting, organized in Albert hall by spiritualist societies of London, had broken up in confusion.

Meeting Ends Abruptly.

During the delivery by Mrs. Estelle Roberts, a salaried clairvoyant employed by the Marylebone Spiritualist association, of alleged messages from five spirits, about 40 or 50 persons in various parts of the hall suddenly rose and started for the doors. The noise and disturbance caused by their departure bothered Mrs. Roberts.

"I can't go on with all these people walking out," she announced from the platform.

A tumult of conversation and excited calls broke out, and the meeting came to a sudden and unexpected end.

Lady Doyle Told Message.

As a vast roar of excited talk rose in the hall, strains from a great pipe organ drowned out the noise. Mrs. Roberts turned away from the audience, numbering 10,000, and walked across the platform to where Lady Doyle was seated beside an empty chair symbolizing the presence of the late creator of Sherlock Holmes.

"I have a message from Sir Arthur," she said.

Lady Doyle, wearing a long silver laced frock and a black satin coat trimmed with fur, stood up greatly interested.

"Sir Arthur told me that one of you went into the hut [a building on the Doyle estate at Windlesham, Sussex, where Sir Arthur was buried on Friday] this morning. Is that correct?"

"Why, yes," Lady Doyle faltered, "I did." Her face beamed with interest and her eyes opened eagerly.

"'Tell Mary —' " Clairvoyant Repeats.

"The message is this," said Mrs. Roberts, "'Tell Mary ——'" At this point the pealing of the pipe organ drowned out the rest of the message.

Mary is the name of Sir Arthur's first daughter. Lady Doyle declined to explain what the rest of the message was.

"I can't," she said, "it's precious and sacred. It is a happy message, one that is cheering and encouraging."

"Words" Cheer Widow.

To the right of the empty chair sat Dennis Conan Doyle, the author's elder son. Next to him sat Jean, the youngest daughter. On the other side of the chair sat Lady Doyle, big pearls on each ear under a close fitting black hat, and at her side the younger son, Adrian, and then Mary, the eldest daughter, to whom the message was addressed.

Mrs. Roberts said she had seen Sir Arthur during the meeting. She first saw him during a two minute silence observed at the beginning of the meeting. She asserted he sat in the empty chair first, and then came and stood behind her while she delivered messages "from the other spirits."

"His message," said the clairvoyant, "came in his own clear voice, and I understood it perfectly."

Among the five spirits with whom Mrs. Roberts said she was in communication was Emily Wilding Davidson, a suffragette who threw herself under one of King George's horses at The Derby several years ago. The messages purported to be addressed to various persons in the audience, each of whom claimed to have recognized the authenticity of the message to himself or herself.

Doyle Enjoying "Perfect Rest."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, July 13.—Mrs. Eleanor Morrell, Sydney spiritualist, today asserted she has had a spirit conversation with Raymond Lodge who reported a wonderful welcome by spiritland to the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. The latter has not communicated with the world yet because he is undergoing the customary period of perfect rest but that he will shortly send a message to his family, the clairvoyant said.

From the time her daughter began her career as a child in theatricals in Columbus, Mrs. Bierbower had accompanied her wherever the footlights called.

CHICAGO POLICE RAID MICHIGAN LAIR OF SLAYER

Capture Suspect and Murder Car.

Fred Burke, bank robber and professional killer with a price of $101,000 on his head, escaped capture by a half hour yesterday when a picked squad of Chicago police, reinforced by Grand Rapids police and deputy sheriffs, closed in on a cottage at Hess lake, two miles east of Newaygo, Mich., and 37 miles northeast of Grand Rapids.

The raid was led by Lieut. John McGinnis, head of the homicide squad of the Chicago police, who had information that the Hess lake cottage amid the pines in Newaygo county has been Burke's hideout since he killed Policeman Charles Skelly on the main street of St. Joseph, Mich., last December.

Sought as Killer of Spy.

The hunt was inspired not by the Skelly murder but by the killing last Thursday morning of Thomas Bonner, who was shot to death in his home at 7353 Yale avenue. Burke is under indictment in Cook county as one of the executioners in the Valentine day massacre of seven Moran gangsters. Ballistics experts have traced bullets in the bodies of the massacre victims to a machine gun found in Burke's home in St. Joseph after he had slain Policeman Skelly.

Yesterday's raid resulted in the capture of a man who is believed to have been helping Burke hide and of an automobile bearing the same license plate as the car used by the Bonner killers.

It was the theory of Detective Chief Norton of the Chicago police that Bonner paid with his life for recently reviving the long dormant hunt for Burke, in the hope of gaining at least a part of the huge reward on Burke's head. Bonner, a petty racketeer, whose operations had not been lucrative of late, visited the Hess lake cottage last Sunday while Burke was away.

Raiders' Secrecy Defeated.

Expecting to encounter desperate resistance from Burke the raiders went armed with riot and machine guns and conducted operations with secrecy. It developed that a garrulous deputy sheriff unwittingly informed the fugitive about the raid.

Lieut. McGinnis and his squad reached Grand Rapids at noon, enlisted two Grand Rapids detectives and a police sergeant, and proceeded on to White Cloud, fifteen miles north of Newaygo, the seat of the county in which Hess lake is situated. There they were joined by the deputy sheriffs.

Meanwhile in some manner not ascertained the word was passed among the Newaygo county peace officers that the manhunt was on. A deputy sheriff, chatting by telephone with a fellow deputy from the crossroads store near the Hess lake cottage, said he had heard that Burke was at Hess lake and that the police were closing in.

Burke's Host Overhears Call.

Lounging in the store, unknown to the deputy, was W. A. Smith, a Hess lake cottager, who, it developed later, had been Burke's host. Smith was later taken in custody and brought to Chicago last night.

The storekeeper recalled that after the deputy sheriff's phone call Smith had hastily left the premises and that half an hour later a man believed to have been Burke, accompanied by a comely blonde woman, sped by the store in an automobile. The storekeeper said the car drove by about 4:30, half an hour before Lieut. McGinnis' men closed in on the cottage.

Stalking the cottage with their riot guns ready for action the raiders found only an elderly woman, who identified herself as the wife of the cottager, Smith. Hoping Burke might be away only for the afternoon, the squadmen and deputies concealed themselves on the premises to await his return.

Suspect and Car Seized.

At 5:30 p. m. Smith drove into the yard with a load of ice he had purchased in Newaygo. He was seized. His car, a Cadillac sedan with an Illinois license plate, attracted the raiders' scrutiny. He casually explained that a stranger had driven up to the cottage last Tuesday, left that Cadillac, and taken his (Smith's) car.

"Burke?" he queried. "Never heard of him. This car was left here by the stranger I was telling you about. He said he was on his way north to visit his sick mother and didn't want to have his machine scratched up by brush along the roads."

Find Guns and Booze.

Convinced they would gain nothing by further examination of Smith, the policemen searched the premises. In the cottage they found a sawed off shotgun, a rifle and twenty gallons of whisky and beer. They found also in the earth which a morning rain had softened the tire tracks of a car which Smith admitted was his.

Confronted with the discrepancy between his story of the stranger's departure last Tuesday and the fresh tracks in the mud, Smith said: "I told you my story—believe it or not."

Bring Smith to Chicago.

Smith signified his willingness to come to Chicago for further questioning, and he arrived at the detective bureau early this morning in the custody of three of Lieut. McGinnis' men. They made the trip in the car in which Smith was seized. He was immediately taken to the bureau of identification, where it was later announced that he had no police record.

A loaded pistol and $300 in currency which had been taken from his pockets at Hess lake were placed in safe keeping and Detective Chief Norton ordered Smith placed in a cell. He will be viewed today by Bonner's widow, since the police believe he may have been Burke's companion when Bonner was slain.

Meanwhile Lieut. McGinnis and four other Chicago policemen were still in Michigan searching for Burke. Chief Norton said he believed other arrests had been made there, but no definite word of them had been received.

Car Is Seized.

The car in which Smith was seized bore Illinois license plates No. 1,052,-358, which were issued for a machine of another make to Philip R. McDonnell, a druggist at 501 West 79th street.

Mrs. Bonner told the police that this license plate was carried on the Ford car driven by the slayers of her husband.

The druggist is reported to have accompanied Bonner on his visit to the Hess lake cottage last Sunday, the visit which aroused Burke's suspicions of Bonner and inspired the informer's murder, according to the police theory. McDonnell was in the detective bureau for questioning last Friday but was not detained. Detectives sent to bring him in again last night for questioning regarding the license plates, said he could not be found.

The police have an unconfirmed report that McDonnell's wife is related to Burke.

YOUTH IS SHOT IN ROADHOUSE ROW OVER GIRL

Leslie Fago, 15 East 120th street, was shot and critically wounded early this morning in a quarrel between two parties of three young couples each who were dining in Teshart's roadhouse at 147th street and Western avenue.

The couples were seated at adjoining tables and the quarrel began when one of the youths with Fago declared that a young woman of his party had suffered affront in a remark made by a man at the other table. He demanded an apology and in the midst of the dispute one of his adversaries drew a pistol and fired. The bullet struck Fago in the back. He was taken to the Ingalls Memorial hospital at Harvey and all the members of his party except Nap Mercier, residing near 109th street and Vernon, were held by the county highway police. The gunman and his companions escaped.

Those held are Frances Brown, 34 East 109th place; Mildred Yavenue, 15307 Vine avenue, Harvey; Marge Orris, 10825 Eggleston avenue, and James Connors, 444 East 88th street.

Kidnap Theater Manager; Rob His Place of $875

Louis De Wolf, 732 Bittersweet place, manager of the Keystone theater, 3912 Sheridan road, was kidnaped early this morning, taken to the theater, and robbed of $875. De Wolf was walking along the street at Irving Park boulevard and Rokeby street, he told police, when two men, armed with pistols, drove up to the curb in an automobile and forced him to get into their car. When they reached the theater he was forced to open the safe.

AUTO TOPPLES 65 FEET DOWN BLUFF; 2 KILLED

Two Escape on Uihlein Hill in Wisconsin.

Miss Helen Michelsen, 24 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Michelson, 2450 North Monticello avenue, and William Rogahn, 36 years old, 7116 Kewaunee street, Racine, Wis., were killed early yesterday when their sedan plunged down a 65 foot embankment near Fontana, Wis., as they were returning from a dance at Delavan Lake pavilion.

With them were Miss Jean Utters, 2535 North Monticello avenue, who was driving the car, and Harold Olson, 5108 Windsor avenue. Neither was injured.

Start Down Twisting Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Michelsen have a summer home at Fontana. The four in the car were spending the week-end there. They had left Delavan Lake and were descending Uihlein hill, two miles north of Fontana. Olson had been driving, but Miss Utters had asked him to let her take the wheel, and he had consented. It is a hill with a steep, twisting grade, formerly used for climbing tests.

Apparently, on one of the turns Miss Utters lost control of the wheel. The car shot straight forward through a fence, then rolled over and over through underbrush and rocks to come to rest at the bottom of a ditch a tangled mass of wreckage.

Olson managed to extricate himself and attracted the attention of a passing motorist. Miss Michelsen and Rogahn were dead when removed. Miss Utters and Olson were given first aid treatment at the Fontana hospital. They were suffering more from shock than from any injuries.

Youth Killed in Collision.

Carl Koehler, 18 years old, 480 Murray street, Hammond, Ind., was killed instantly in a crash at Chicago Heights. His mother, Mrs. Minnie Koehler, 37 years old, his brother, Robert, 9, and Russell Cunnard, 20, of Flushing, O., were so seriously injured they may die.

Others less seriously hurt are Julius Koehler, 40 years old; Ralph, Ruth, and Margaret Koehler, 16, 14 and 8 years old respectively, and Clifford Grimes, 20 years old, also of Flushing, O.

Julius Koehler said he was driving the automobile containing his family when he noticed the other automobile, driven by Grimes, approaching in the middle of the road. Grimes and Cunnard, who were together, had been driving all night and were sleepy, they said. Koehler swung to the left to avoid a collision and Grimes also swerved, the two automobiles colliding.

Seven Hurt in Crash.

Three women and four men were injured in an automobile collision at Dempster road and Milwaukee avenue, just east of Des Plaines. Georgo Glad, 26 years old, 7231 Palatine avenue, a woodworker who was said to have been driving his car at a high rate of speed, crashed into another automobile at the intersection. Glad received a skull fracture.

Riding with Glad were Miss Caroline Bagues, 17 years old, 523 West 18th place, and Emil Meyer, 23 years old, 4546 North Kilpatrick avenue, both of whom were injured severely.

James Callahan, 29 years old, 8433 South Chicago avenue, a commission merchant, received fractures of the right arm and left leg yesterday when his automobile collided with a street car at South Chicago and Dorchester avenues. The motorman, Oscar Johnson, 8124 Evans avenue, said Callahan was speeding on the wrong side of the thoroughfare.

Thirteen year old Robert Katz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Katz, 3747 Douglas boulevard, Chicago, was killed yesterday in an automobile crash in southern Berrien county near New Buffalo, Mich. He was en route with his parents to St. Joseph.

Boy, 5, Is Killed.

Five year old Frank Kamm of 3717 West 61st place was killed last night when pinned under the car of his uncle, John Runtz, 4333 South Honore street. Runtz was taking Frank and his three sisters for a ride. At 61st place and South Kolin avenue his car was in collision with that of Paul Albrecht, 4306 West 63d street. Runtz' car tipped over and was wrecked. He and Albrecht were ordered by the Chicago Lawn police to appear at the inquest today.

Frank Gniazdowski, 40 years old, 2033 Churchill street, a painter, was struck by an automobile driven by Charles Stanton, 19 years old, colored, 5254 South Wabash avenue, and died soon after being taken to the Chicago hospital. The accident occurred at South Park way and 56th street. Stanton was held.

The three deaths in Cook county yesterday raised the 1930 motor toll to 509.

NEGROES DRIVEN OUT OF TWO TOWNS AFTER SLAYING OF A WOMAN

Shamrock, Tex., July 13.—(AP)—Reports received here late today by Sheriff W. K. McLemore of Wheeler county, said Negroes were driven out of Erick, Okla., last night and from Texola, Okla., today by mobs seeking reprisal for the death of Mrs. Henry Vaughan, wife of a farmer in nearby Collingsworth county, Texas, who was beaten to death Friday by a Negro.

Sheriff McLemore said he was considering asking Gov. Moody to send state rangers here to assist local peace officers, should further mob disorders be threatened.

With the assistance of a corps of deputies McLemore last night dispersed a mob which invaded the Negro quarter of Shamrock, threatening to burn Negro homes and run Negroes out of town.

The sheriff said he believed many members of the mob came from Erick, Okla., the former home of Mrs. Vaughan.

Jesse Washington, Negro accused of beating Mrs. Vaughan to death with an iron bar, was rushed out of Shamrock in an automobile by officers Saturday to evade a mob and now is in the Oklahoma reformatory at Granite, Okla., for safe keeping.

MOSLEMS KILL NINE HINDUS IN RIOT IN INDIA

Armed Police Rushed to End Disorders.

MYMENSINGH, India, July 13.—(AP)—Nine Hindus were killed in communal rioting in the Kishorganj district of Bengal yesterday. The fighting started when Moslems looted homes of several Hindus. A district police officer was wounded in an effort to curb rioters.

A large body of police was sent to quell the disorders.

Ask Gandhi to End "War."

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

SIMLA, July 13. — An appeal to Mahatma Gandhi to call off the civil disobedience campaign is to be made by the Hindu moderates of legislative assembly as a result of an important conference here this afternoon.

The moderates deputed M. Jayakar to proceed to Poona to interview Mr. Gandhi and the Pandits Motilal and Jawaharial Nehry in an endeavor to terminate the situation which is involving India in chaos.

As a result of another important conference this afternoon, the minority communities, including the Anglo-Indians, Indian Christians, and depressed classes pledged themselves to support the round table conference in London in October for a settlement of India's affairs.

Fear Campaign of Violence.

BOMBAY, India, July 13.—(AP)—Attempts by nationalist extremists to launch a country-wide campaign of violence and terror in the event that Mahatma Gandhi's nonviolent program of civil disobedience should fail, is feared now by some Gandhi lieutenants.

The introduction of any such methods into the swaraj (independence) movement is strongly opposed by Mr. Gandhi and his principal field leaders.

It is pointed out that the violent revolutionaries of the Indian national congress party have from the beginning of the Gandhi campaign stood for a program of violence. At the party conference in December they strenuously fought the program of nonviolence. By his personality and power over the delegates Gandhi defeated his opponents when the question came up for a vote, but his margin of victory was narrow.

Claim Civil Disobedience Fails.

Today, though many congress leaders maintain that civil disobedience is gradually being strengthened and steadily gaining momentum, the question of violence or nonviolence has again become pressing.

In some congress quarters it is hinted the movement already is showing signs of weakening. In support of this view, the half hearted response to Friday's procession in sympathy with the mutineers of the Garwhal rifles regiment has been adduced. Fewer than 2,000 persons turned out for the parade.

In an article today, the "Times of India," which supports Lord Irwin and the government, significantly urges that both sides should call a halt and come to terms immediately.

"Are we being driven headlong to bankruptcy or to bolshevism—or both?" the newspaper asks. The article bears the caption "The Economic Ruin of India."

According to official figures, the customs revenue for June, excluding the salt revenue, shows a drop of more than $3,000,000 compared with May receipts.

CAPONE TO ABANDON MIAMI HOME FOR NEW ONE 35 MILES AWAY

Miami, Fla., July 13.—[Special.]—Al Capone probably will abandon his Palm island estate, for the right in which to live he has fought many legal battles, and move his establishment to Broward county, thirty-five miles north of Miami. There he will build a new home.

The new Capone residence, according to reports, will be built on a thirty-five acre tract purchased by his legal adviser some weeks ago.

The new residence will be equipped with a swimming pool, tennis courts, handball court, and a nine hole golf course. Other purchases of lands surrounding the initial plot will be made. A ten foot wall will surround the house.

Parliament Adjourned in Egypt by Royal Decree

CAIRO, Egypt, July 13.—(AP)—A royal decree was issued today adjourning parliament for three weeks. In the meantime, Hafez Afifi Pasha, foreign minister, has been appointed minister to London, a post which has been vacant for some time. Observers understood that he would resume the recently interrupted negotiations between Egypt and Great Britain.

TRACE INCOME OF ROSENHEIM IN MURDER QUIZ

$55,825 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,825 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in Room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Renewed investigation into the murder last Feb. 1 of Julius Rosenheim has uncovered many circumstances, it was revealed yesterday, which are regarded as significant in the light of the new information that Rosenheim was a paid informant of the Chicago Daily News. Following the inquiry into the death of Alfred Lingle this Rosenheim quiz has stirred official interest.

The investigators admitted that the murder of Rosenheim as a stool pigeon did not lent great importance to clews obtained. But the killing of Rosenheim as a newspaperman, engaged in ferreting out gang secrets for the Chicago Daily News, brought a new value to old clews, and opened the way to fresh inquiries.

Consequently the signed article by Leland H. Reese, published in the Daily News, and revealing that Rosenheim was used by Reese as an informant on the activities of gangsters, spurred the investigators.

Propose to Investigate Income.

A search of the evidence presented at the coroner's inquest into Rosenheim's murder revealed that the police had made no detailed search of Rosenheim's financial affairs. It is now proposed that a complete inquiry be launched to determine the nature and extent of Rosenheim's wealth, so that the sources of his income may be exposed.

The same sort of inquiry was made by Charles F. Rathbun, assistant state's attorney in charge of the investigation of the murder of Lingle, a TRIBUNE reporter, at the start of his inquiry, and the results of that investigation, so far as Lingle's finances are concerned, have been published in full.

Harry Brundidge, reporter for the St. Louis Star, who first hinted at the connection of Rosenheim with the Daily News, said in his articles that the murdered man had been a "shakedown artist par excellence," who had used his connection with the Daily News to exact tribute from dens of vice, bootleggers and speakeasies.

"$150,000 Salted Away."

As to Rosenheim's financial status, one witness was found who met Rosenheim in the Criminal court building shortly before his death, and who related the ensuing conversation as follows:

"How are things going, Rosenheim?"

"O, fine. Never better."

"On easy street, are you?"

"O, not quite. I've got $150,000 salted away now, and when I've got another hundred grand I'm going to quit all this and retire."

A search of the records of the Probate court produced the information that Rosenheim's entire estate was but $1,629.28, and that this sum was cash on deposit in a bank. The inventory states that Rosenheim owned no stocks or real estate. This information seemed to belie the conversation quoted to the investigators until they made a search of the coroner's records.

The Safe Deposit Box.

They discovered the testimony of Mrs. Sara Rosenheim, the widow of the murdered man, wherein she admitted having visited a safe deposit box maintained by Rosenheim and of having emptied the box before police officials had an opportunity to examine the contents.

Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel, who conducted the inquest, shortly after the murder asked Mrs. Rosenheim what she had taken from the box and she replied "just some insurance policies." Asked whether she had removed a paper of some kind, saying "If something happens to me, look up so and so," or something of the kind, Mrs. Rosenheim denied she had seen it, although the coroner asserted he had heard such a paper was in the box.

Mrs. Rosenheim insisted there were only fire and theft insurance policies in the box. She denied she had found any money. Asked who had accompanied her to the box when she opened it, Mrs. Rosenheim said a neighbor, Mrs. Etta Levin, had gone with her.

Law Requires Sealing of Box.

The widow said she had never opened the box before, but that her husband had left the keys in the house. Inquiry was being made as to why the police had not caused the box to be sealed immediately after Rosenheim's death, as required by the law which specifies that such boxes should be opened by representatives of the attorney general's office in the presence of witnesses.

Q.—What time did you go to the bank this morning? A.—It was 9; a little after.

Q.—Did you get there before the bank was open? A.—No sir.

Q.—And may I ask what your reasons were for going so early? A.—I went to get some policies that I knew were there.

Not Told About Police.

Q.—Didn't you know that some representative of the police department wanted to go with you? A.—No, nobody told me.

Q.—How long had your husband had the box at that bank? A.—Well, he just got a notice to pay some money, the second year.

Q.—Two years? A.—It is only a year. It is just around the second year now.

Q.—What was the purpose of your going this morning? A.—Policies and papers.

Q.—Who was with you when you went? A.—Mrs. Levin.

Q.—Who was the third party? A.—My sister and my brother-in-law went down with us. They didn't go in with me.

Q.—Is your brother-in-law here now? A.—Yes, sir.

Papers at Home, She Says.

Q.—Where did you take those papers that you took out of the box? A.—I have got them home.

Q.—Did you immediately go home with the papers? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who did you show them to? A.—Nobody.

Q.—What was the purpose of taking out the policies for fire insurance, the policies on your house, out of the box this morning? A.—What was the purpose?

Q.—Yes. A.—Because we wanted to have them.

Q.—For what purpose? A.—Well, I thought I was entitled to have them.

The deputy coroner instructed Mrs. Rosenheim to permit Capt. James J. Fleming, who was in charge of the investigation of the murder, to see the papers. Capt. Fleming said yesterday that she had shown him a few unimportant papers in a small packet.

Brother-in-Law Has Papers.

When the inquest was resumed two weeks later, Capt. Fleming informed Deputy Coroner Schewel that at the time he was questioning Mrs. Rosenheim concerning the papers taken from the box, and she had stated they were in her home, the papers were even then in the inquest room, held by her brother-in-law.

Mrs. Rosenheim was questioned on this point, as follows:

Q.—When your brother-in-law heard the coroner ask for the papers, why didn't he state that he had them? A.—I don't know what he thought.

Q.—Well, didn't you ask him why he didn't stand right up and tell us? A.—He said that he didn't know what he should have said about it, whether I wanted you to know that he had them or not.

David Levin, policeman assigned to the state's attorney's office and husband of the Mrs. Levin who accompanied Mrs. Rosenheim to the safe deposit vault, was called as a witness. He declared he had no knowledge of the matter. Mrs. Levin could not appear because of illness, but investigators obtained her story yesterday.

Story of Mrs. Levin.

"Mrs. Rosenheim asked me to go along with her to the bank," Mrs. Levin said. "I wanted to help her if I could, so I went along.

"She opened the box, pulled out a big bundle of papers, most of which were inclosed in a large envelope. She didn't let me see what was in the envelope, nor could I look at the other papers.

"I asked her what they were and she said they were insurance papers. I said there were a lot of them there for insurance papers, and she said that some of them were old and useless.

"I told her to let me see them before she destroyed them, as some of them might be good, but she said no, and I figured it was none of my business and didn't insist."

"Did you see any bonds or currency?"

"I couldn't see what she had."

The only other witness at the inquest was William Shea, a policeman, who testified briefly concerning the investigation made at the time. There were no witnesses present from the Daily News, and the only information in the record that Rosenheim was employed by the Daily News came from Mrs. Rosenheim, who gave the Daily News as Rosenheim's place of employment.

Coroner Bundesen has said that he has never received information from the Daily News that Rosenheim was an employé. Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, said he had been visited by Reporter Reese at the time of the Rosenheim murder, but that Reese had denied Rosenheim worked for the Daily News.

It was not until Reese's article appeared in which it was stated that Rosenheim was killed by the Capone gang in an effort to intimidate the Daily News that 'Roseheim's connection with the News and the intimation that he was killed because of his newspaper work became known.

CHICAGOANS DON COATS AS BREEZE COMES OFF LAKE

Chicagoans rolled down their sleeves and resumed their coats yesterday with the return of cool weather after a spell of stifling heat Saturday which brought this city a taste of the 100 degree temperatures experienced elsewhere in the central states for a full week.

A shift of the wind from the southwest to northeast sent the temperature skidding from its maximum of 97 degrees at 6 p. m. Saturday to 65 degrees at noon yesterday. The temperature fluctuated slightly during the afternoon and, at the last official reading at 10 o'clock last night, registered 62.

Generally fair and continued cool was predicted for today by the weather man, C. A. Donnel. Tomorrow, Mr. Donnel said, would be continued fair and slightly warmer.

The break in the heat wave, first noted Saturday in western Nebraska, had extended southward yesterday yesterday into Oklahoma and the Texas panhandle and across Missouri and lower Illinois to the Ohio valley. Temperatures were rising again in the far northwest and yesterday were above normal over most of the Pacific slope, the weather bureau reported.

Beach Crowds Dwindle.

After their most strenuous day this season on Saturday, when hundreds of thousands flocked to the beaches, life guards enjoyed a respite yesterday, the attendance being below normal. The lake temperature was 70 degrees, but the lower temperature of the air made long stays at the beaches uncomfortable.

A crew from the South Chicago coast guard station, sighting an overturned motor boat three miles of the mouth of the Calumet river, put out and rescued Roma L. Mitchell, 40 years old, 19 East Marquette road. A heavy sea had capsized the craft and Mitchell had been swimming about it for twenty minutes when pulled out.

TRAP EXTORTION PLOT SUSPECT BY DECOY RUSE

Otto Tanis, 40 years old, 4447 Ellis avenue, was held last night at the detective bureau charged with attempting to extort $500 from Charles A. Peck, grain broker with offices at 323 South La Salle street.

On Saturday Peck received a letter, written in an awkward scrawl, in which were instructions for him to leave a package containing $500 in the gutter at 7th street and Michigan avenue or he "would be taken for a ride."

At 9 o'clock last night, the appointed hour Mr. Peck dropped a package there containing one marked dollar bill. Detectives Harry Miller and Harry Lang, waiting across the street, seized Tanis when he picked up the package.

FRANCE DOUBTS RUMOR OF REVOLT IN NORTH ITALY

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—A cold shower of disbelief was thrown tonight by French officials on reports from Nice that anti-Fascist revolts had broken out at Milan and many other cities of Lombardy. Advices from Milan to government circles today made no mention whatsoever of any disturbances, which were reported by the Nice newspaper "Petit Nicois."

The crop of rumors included the report that King Victor Emmanuel would abdicate in favor of Crown Prince Humbert on July 15, and continued today with another to the effect that the king "manifested a desire to withdraw from power." Whatever may be the situation in Italy, the French government has adopted stricter police measures along the France-Italian frontier.

ASK U. S. PROTECT CITY AGAINST DRY AGENTS' METHODS

Appeal to Senator About Officials' Seizure.

McGregor, Ia., July 13.—[Special.]—McGregor's mayor and special policeman, dragged away in handcuffs Saturday by federal prohibition agents who invaded the town and took the men from their homes without even opportunity to don coats, were free on bond and home today, but indignation in the community over the methods of the dry agents continued to mount. Protests already have been sent direct to Washington through Senator Smith W. Brookhart, but citizens are discussing further means of defending the city against similar flouting of the city's police powers by the prohibition forces.

Had Arrested Dry Agents.

Mayor J. F. Walters, and Policeman C. D. Phelps were haled before Commissioner Jess W. Green in Dubuque late last night on charges of interfering with federal prohibition officers, because Phelps had arrested two dry agents last week, for various traffic violations and for driving while drunk, and the mayor had fined them, after they spent a night in jail.

Meantime the neighboring town of Marquette was without a marshal, as F. J. Barton, the policeman there, was also seized by the prohibition raiders under George Parsons, prohibition administrator for this district, and had been unable to furnish bond for his release.

Arrangements are being made at Marquette for bond for Barton and it is expected that he will be released tomorrow. Ernest Lang, accused of assault on the dry agents, was released from jail today when his father, Henry Lange of Marquette, furnished bond. It is expected that all the cases will come up in December federal court.

Appeal to Senator.

The following telegram was sent to Senator Brookhart early this morning by W. R. Stone, city clerk:

"Dear Senator Brookhart: Respectfully request your immediate investigation with the Washington federal prohibition enforcement bureau on the arrest of Dr. J. F. Walter, mayor of McGregor, this afternoon on charge of obstructing law enforcement under prohibition act, revised statutes. We believe this arrest was brought about account of Mayor Walter arresting two federal prohibition agents working out of Dubuque office, Thursday, July 9, for violation of traffic ordinance in McGregor and charge of operating a car while intoxicated.

"Today Federal Prohibition Officer Parsons served a warrant on Mayor Walter issued through U. S. Commissioner Greene's office at Dubuque and made the arrest here with three other federal officers and handcuffed and shackled Mayor Walter without any apparent cause and left here at 4 p.m. for hearing at Dubuque and up to the present have not arrived there, which is only a two hour drive. Evidently they are stalling so that he can be jailed over Sunday. This is an affront to the citizens of this town and ask that you take immediate action to bring about a complete investigation."

The occasion which resulted in the carrying off of the town officials of McGregor and Marquette took place in Marquette last Wednesday evening. Following an American Legion convention, a group of persons were gathered in a billiard hall, when H. H. Kirchman and Reuben H. Taylor, later learned to be prohibition agents, entered. Those present said the pair were intoxicated and were mistaken for hijackers when they produced weapons and started to seize liquor. The crowd drove them from town.

They came to McGregor, where Phelps arrested them for double parking, driving without lights, and operating an automobile while intoxicated. They were fined by the mayor, in his capacity as magistrate, the next day. The case was appealed by the dry agents and Parsons came to McGregor to warn the mayor to drop the charges. When he refused, Parsons departed, but returned at the head of eight agents and dragged the mayor and policeman to Dubuque heavily manacled. They also stopped in Marquette and took Marshal Barton and Ernest Lange, who was charged with striking one of the agents in the melee Wednesday night.

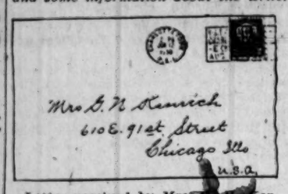
Officials Plan Fight to Finish.

The dry agents Kirchman and Taylor insisted at the hearing in Dubuque that the charges against them were trumped up by bystanders who took their registration card, smashed their lights, and did everything in their power to embarrass them. The arrested officials indignantly asserted that the charges were true, and that they will fight to the finish. They demanded what right the dry agents had to arrest them for assessing fines and treating them just as other citizens are treated for ordinance violations.

Colonel Parsons has every faith in the integrity of his agents, he said, and will back them in any court fight. On the other hand, Marquette and McGregor citizens are reported to be raising a fund to fight the case.

INTERESTING LETTERS

If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter.



Letter received by Mrs. E. M. Kenrick, 610 East 91st street, Chicago, Ill.:

"I have read your Interesting Letters department each morning and have decided to send you a letter from a little island that is not so far away, but is known as the land where there is neither crime nor divorce," Mrs. Kenrick writes.

"It is Prince Edward Island, Canada. Prince Edward Island is located in the St. Lawrence river, and is between New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. It is a very beautiful spot and is called the Garden in the Gulf.

"My brother, D. J. McPhee, a retired Chicago policeman, is spending the summer amid the splendor of the hills, valleys and delightful rivers of this enchanting little isle. His letter was mailed from Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island."

Charlottetown is the capital of Prince Edward Island, situated in Queen's county on the Hillsborough river. It has a good harbor and the Hillsborough is navigable by large vessels for several miles. The town was founded in 1750 by the French and was then called Port La Joie, but under British rule the name was changed to Charlottetown in honor of the queen of George III.

Charlottetown is the export trade center of the island and has regular communication by steamer with American and other Canadian ports. Among its manufacturers are woolen goods, lumber, canned goods and foundry products. It contains numerous churches, the Prince of Wales college, supported by the province, and the Roman Catholic college of St. Dunstan's.

CURTISS PLANES CARRIED 80,000 IN FIRST HALF 1930

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—C. S. "Casey" Jones, president of Curtiss Flying Service, announced today that his company had carried 80,000 passengers in the first six months of 1930. Jones revealed also that he would depart from his function as an aircraft executive to return to his former profession as a racing pilot at the coming national air races.

The T. A. T.-Maddux Air lines, the Transcontinental air rail system between New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco, carried 5,688 passengers in the month of June, according to an announcement made by T. B. Element, general traffic manager.

PLANE CRASHES NEAR HAMMOND; ATTORNEY HURT

Barton Grant, St. Louis attorney, was injured yesterday when the airplane he was piloting crashed during a takeoff from a field at Black Oak, several miles southeast of Hammond, Ind. He was taken to St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, where his injuries were reported not serious.

SEARCH JUNGLE FOR FLYER; PAL TELLS OF CRASH

Leaves Dying Man Behind as He Seeks Help.

RANGOON, Burma, July 13.—(AP)—The tiger haunted jungles of southern Burma have surrendered Jimmie Mathews, one of two British airmen lost for ten days on a flight from England to Australia, but today still held his companion, Eric Hook, severly injured in the crash of their airplane and perhaps dying.

After days of wandering through dense forests and swampy, malarial valleys, Matthews yesterday reached the town of Prome, 160 miles north of Rangoon, on the left bank of the Irawadi river.

He said he had been forced to leave Hook behind. Sick and desperate, Hook had urged him to go on alone, even risking the chance of being left to die in the jungle. And Matthews, in the hope of reaching some outpost of civilization, struggled on until he was picked up by a party of natives.

Rescue Party Hunts Flyer.

The two aviators left London June 20 in the attempt to beat Bert Hinler's record for the England-Australia flight. Without mishap they reached Akyab, a Burmese city, on the swampy coast of the Bay of Bengal.

From there they took off on July 3 to fly to Rangoon, about 400 miles southeast. A few days later, when they were long overdue at Rangoon, villagers of Taungup, deep in the jungle, 63 miles west of Prome, reported sighting an airplane flying low and apparently in difficulties. Seachers failed to locate the airmen.

According to Matthews' story, which has reached here only fragmentarily, the airplane crashed on the eastern slopes of the Arakan Yoma range, which stretches for 700 miles parallel to the Bay of Bengal, while they were crossing to the valley of the Irawadie. A leak in the gasoline pipe forced them down in the jungle.

Both aviators were injured, Hook the more seriously. The spot where they crashed was swampy and wild, and infested with jungle beasts of prey. To the north was a region inhabited by human beings almost as savage as the beasts, for many of the hill tribes in the northern Arakan Yomas are known to the Burmese as "demon worshipers."

Hook and Matthews had only a small supply of food and very little drinking water. The streams were brackish and malarial. Always hampered by Hook's injuries, they stumpered down the steep slopes of the range, following for seven days the course of a mountain stream. Sometimes they slept in the hut of a jungle hunter, and sometimes found no better refuge than a clump of bamboos.

Many times Matthews picked up his injured comrade and carried him, but as Hook grew weaker, he gave in to Hook's request and went on alone to seek help.

Finally Matthews was picked up on the eastern slope of the mountains by a group of village hunters, who fed him and took him to Prome.

TWO AIR PILOTS DIE IN FLAMES AS THEIR PLANE IS WRECKED

Elmira, N. Y., July 13.—(AP)—Two licensed air pilots of this city were burned to death as their plane crashed today at Newton battlefield, State Park. They were identified by their watches as Theodore Holbert, 32, and Walter Arnold, 34.

Arnold was a vice president and Holbert a member of the Elmira Flying club, to which the plane belonged.

Brothers Are Victims.

Killed in Parachute Leap.

Burlington, Ia., July 13.—(AP)—Frank F. Scheridan, 34, railroad worker of West Burlington, who has made nearly 300 parachute jumps, was killed here tonight when the harness on his parachute broke as he jumped from a plane.

Home Made Plane Fatal.

Columbus, O., July 13.—(AP)—J. Harold Wean, 30, Columbus, was killed today when his home made airplane crashed near Port Columbus.

Hunt Clews in $20,000 Sprague Jewelry Robbery

An investigation of a $20,000 jewelry robbery in the home of Col. A. A. Sprague, at 505 East Deerpath avenue, Lake Forest, was under way yesterday. The robbery, reported to police Saturday after Col. Sprague had engaged the services of a private detective agency, occurred last Thursday night. The robber is believed to have entered the house while Col. and Mrs. Sprague were entertaining guests at dinner. A string of pearls, a sapphire ring and a number of other pieces of jewelry were taken.

Tree Sitters at Oak Park Claim Endurance Record

Truman Kirkpatrick, 16 years old, and Jack Harris, 1012 Augusta street, claimed the endurance tree sitting record last night when they had been living for more than 40 hours in a tree in the backyard of Kirkpatrick's home at 608 Bellefort avenue, Oak Park. Charles Conover and Raymond Teivers acted as "refuelers." The two record seekers have built a small house in the tree in which they sleep at nights.

GERMANS TO HOP FOR AMERICA BY NORTHERN ROUTE

STUTTGART, July 13.—(AP)—Wolfram Hirth and Oscar Weller are completing the overhauling of their light airplane with which they intend to start next Wednesday for England on the first lap of a flight to North America via the Orkney Islands, Iceland and Greenland. The first stop probably will be at Croydon, England.

Hirth, 28, is technical adviser for the Wurtemberg Aviation company. He won the Hindenburg aviation trophy in 1929. He started glider flying in 1922. He has a wooden leg as a result of a crash in 1923.

Hirth participated in the recent flying display to celebrate the liberation of the Rhineland. If the flight to America succeeds, he plans to remain there and devote himself to glider flying. His glider machine, Musterle, his pet name for his bride of two months, is ready for transportation to America. Weller is 33 years old. He is well known as a motorcyclist.

FURNACE YIELDS BODY OF GIRL, 20; YOUTH ARRESTED

Victim Disappears with Pay Envelopes.

Portland, Me., July 13.—(AP)—James M. Mitchell, 22, of this city, was arrested today on a charge of murder of Miss Lillian I. MacDonald, 20, who disappeared yesterday while distributing pay envelopes to employés of a local stationery store.

The girl's body was found early today in the furnace in the basement of the six story building the firm occupied.

County Attorney Ralph M. Ingalls said Mitchell, who was an employé of the same firm as the girl, had confessed.

Part of Money Found.

Part of the $750 the girl had in undistributed envelopes when she vanished, was found under the furnace. The confession was alleged to contain a statement that she had been raped.

Miss MacDonald was killed by a blow with an iron pipe which crushed her skull. Her body was then crammed into the fire box and prodded back with the pipe which was found alongside the remains.

County Attorney Ingalls discovered the body although a search for several hours yesterday by police and the 10 employés of the store disclosed no trace of Miss MacDonald.

Hundred Searchers Fail.

When County Attorney Ingalls and Police Inspector Richard J. Nugent went to the store and asked to view the premises Edward A. Shaw, president of the firm, laughed and said 100 persons had inspected the place without result.

Miss MacDonald was last seen in the basement about 10 o'clock yesterday morning when she paid off five employés.

The body, police said, was burned immediately after the slaying.

LONDON, July 13.—The home secretary, J. R. Clynes, according to the Daily Herald, has instructed the port authorities to refuse admittance to Earl Carroll, New York theatrical producer, in the event of his attempting to land here.

The ban is understood to be a sequel to the arrest in New York on Thursday of an actor and eight chorus girls in the "Earl Carroll Vanities."

The order is said to be precautionary, in case Mr. Carroll should decide to come here.

GANGSTER HELD

JAMES (FUR) SAMMONS.

James [Fur] Sammons, gangster and gunman, was in a cell at the detective bureau yesterday while Chief of Detectives John Norton awaited word from Baltimore, Md., police, who have long sought Sammons in connection with a $47,500 robbery. Willie Niemoth, former Chicago gangster, was recently convicted in Baltimore in connection with the same robbery. Sammons was arrested by Morton Grove police on Friday after his new car had crashed into another machine. Sammons informed police that he had just returned "from a little visit to his pal, Joe Saltis, of Saltisville, Wis."

EPIDEMIC TAKES 45 LIVES IN WAKE OF EARTHQUAKES

GANGTOK, State of Sikkim, India, July 13.—(AP)—This little state, perched on the top of the world on the main axis of the Himalayas, suffered the brunt of India's recent earthquakes. The shocks swayed Assam and other mountain districts hereabouts.

Many buildings were damaged here. The government buildings, schools and shops were the worst affected. Many houses were cracked throughout the country.

Public opinion blames to some extent, the earthquakes for a mysterious epidemic resembling cholera. Forty-five persons have died of it within the last few days and the disease continues to spread. One theory of physicians is that the earthquakes, disturbing the earth's surface, uncovered dormant germs to which the people were then exposed.

PROHIBITION COST U. S. $959,872,870 IN 12 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Losses due to prohibition amounted to $959,872,870 in 1929, according to a compilation announced today by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. This includes enforcement costs plus revenues lost to federal, state and local treasuries. The loss in federal revenue was computed at $869,507,697.

The research department of the association, which sponsored a similar computation a year ago, estimates that the people of the United States paid $4,000,000 more for prohibition enforcement in 1929 than in 1928, and together with lost revenue shouldered a total increase in government cost of about $24,000,000.

FUR TALKS

By Robt. Staedter

Furs are bought largely upon confidence. In perhaps no other purchase is the element of confidence so great. There's a reason for this . . . furs cannot be trade-marked; they are not a standard commodity. For example, pelts of exact quality made into coats by different furriers might vary to a great extent in serviceability and intrinsic worth. That explains why for several generations, women have bought furs at Staedters. Staedter's furs are of proven quality.

HOOVER AGAINST RESERVATION TO NAVAL TREATY

an appeal to the country to exert pressure upon absent senators to return to Washington that the treaty may be promptly ratified and the design of its opponents frustrated.

There are 37 senators—13 Republicans and 14 Democrats—who were not in their seats at any time during the first week of the special session.

Adding to the concern of the administration leaders is the knowledge that the treaty does not command the support on its merits of the two-thirds majority requisite to ratification. There are numerous Republican senators who are for the treaty only because of their desire to support President Hoover. There are numerous Democratic senators who have privately admitted that they would be against the treaty but for the desire to uphold Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader of the senate, who was a member of the American delegation to the London naval conference.

The alacrity with which about a dozen pro-treaty senators have declared that they will vote against the measure unless the Norris reservation is attached to it, has given the administration leaders an uncomfortable feeling. They are wondering whether other pro-treaty senators will find an excuse for relieving themselves of present obligations to vote for the pact.

Speculate on Reasons.

Speculation on the President's real reason for refusing to transmit the secret documents concerning the treaty to the senate will not down. Those who perceive great significance in the fact that Mr. Hoover furnish part of the documents to the foreign relations committee in confidence argue that this action demonstrated that the President reposes trust in the senate to respect confidential matter. His reason for refusing to transmit all of the documents in confidence, they contend, must have been the fear that the contents of the documents withheld would jeopardize ratification of the treaty.

What is represented to be the complete series of secret documents is in the hands of Senators Reed [Rep., Tenn.] and Robinson of Arkansas, two of the negotiators of the treaty who are authorized by the President to show them to senators promising to hold them confidential. The treaty opponents, however, have refused to avail themselves of this privilege on the ground that the senate, as part of the treaty making power, is entitled to the documents as a right, not as a favor.

By withholding the documents from the senate but allowing their inspection in the hands of Senators Reed and Robinson under seal of secrecy the President has accomplished two things. He has made it impossible for any senator discovering anything suspicious in the secret documents to expose it. He has also guarded against any revelations of the documents at some future time.

Called "Diplomatic Indecency."

Cedar Rapids, Ia., July 13.—(AP)—Criticism of the senate for delaying action on the London naval pact and for its attempt to obtain from President Hoover the correspondence in regard to the treaty was voiced in a letter of Representative Cyrenus Cole to Senator George H. Moses, New Hampshire, made public tonight.

"Even in Russia they would hardly propose such diplomatic indecency," Mr. Cole, who yesterday returned from Washington, wrote in regard to treaty papers.

"Why prolong the nation's distress by holding the senate in session?" Mr. Cole wrote. "In a thousand miles [his trip to Iowa from Washington] I have not heard one word of approval of what the senate now is doing.

"Vote on the treaty. Go home, reserving, if you must, the right to print it afterwards in the Congressional Record, in which no wise man today looks for wisdom.

"The conscience of the country is back of the treaty. That same conscience was shocked by four days of debate on the resolution to force the President to violate all traditions of international intercourse. Even in Russia would they hardly propose such diplomatic indecency.

"If the senate is going to brawl through another summer the country will feel disposed to shut up shop. It already has been talked into all the distress it can stand. In the name not of the party but of patriotism vote. Quit; go home. Give it the chance to recuperate."

Russia "Fishes" for Seat in Briand's "U. S. of Europe"

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 13.—Valerian Dovgalevsky, soviet Russia's ambassador to France, at midnight received a rush telegram in code from Moscow ordering him to make an immediate report on Franco-Russian relations and the question of participation in Aristide Briand's projected European federation, it was learned today.

It is believed that Dovgalevsky will return to Moscow in a few days to present the report personally. Following the Italian answer to the Briand memorandum, in which the inclusion of Russia was laid down as one of the conditions of Italy's adherence, and the expectation of a similar reply from Germany and several other countries, the soviets have developed a keen interest in the project, at which they formerly jeered.

Russia's Entrance Certain.

Since M. Briand seems determined to hold the powers to their "acceptances in principle" and is willing to swallow the so-called rebuff contained in the Italian and German reservations, which, some claim, are hopelessly incompatible with the original idea, the entrance of Russia into the federation is now virtually certain if Russia insists.

Dictator Joseph V. Stalin is reported to be hesitating over asking participation in the federation—a move which, it is claimed here, would automatically revolutionize the soviet foreign policy and would virtually amount to entrance in the league of nations. Hence the hurry message to Dovgalevsky to present the report.

The chief difficulty in Russian adherence to M. Briand's scheme is the delicate and highly complicated relations between the two countries. France and Russia have been heading towards a diplomatic rupture ever since Commissar Litvinoff's alleged insulting treatment of the French ambassador, Jean Herbette, when he presented Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's appeal to arbitrate the Manchurian trouble.

Since his return to France M. Herbette has several times refused to return to Moscow and told his chiefs that, in view of the serious economic crisis in Russia, France had no advantage to gain by maintaining relations with the soviets.

Greece Sends Its Approval.

ATHENS, Greece, July 13.—(AP)—The Greek government's answer to the memorandum of M. Briand of France on a pan-European union was handed to the French minister here today. The note says the creation of a permanent machinery for systematic political and economic coöperation between European states, within the league of nations frame, is in accord with the Greek government's ideals.

Poland Ready to Join.

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—A note from the Polish government made public by the French foreign office today stated Poland "entirely associates itself" with the European federal union plan of Foreign Minister Briand.

PARIS, July 13.—La Argentina, a famous Spanish dancer, was today notified by the French government that she had been awarded the cross of a chevalier of the legion of honor. Foreign Minister Briand conferred the decoration in recognition of the dancer's artistic services.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Miss Doris Descher, whose face is pictured on the new 25 cent pieces, was married today to Dr. H. W. William Baum of the Jewish institute of religion. When she was selected several years ago by government officials she was characterized as "the highest type of American womanhood."

CHICAGO & NORTHWESTERN RAILWAY
The Best of Everything in the Best of the West

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

MOSCOW, July 13.—The new railroad commissar, Rukhomovich, came out with a terrific blast in all the newspapers today about the "insufferable conditions" of transport and the necessity to "radically transform all transport work in all ramifications from top to bottom."

The commissar emphasized a recent high court circular ordering severer penalties for railroad maladministration by saying "harshest measures must be taken against the inadmissible and damaging attitude on the part of many transport workers towards their jobs and the great increase in carelessness and drunkenness which on some roads has doubled or tripled the number of accidents in recent months."

Penalty Is "Shooting."

In grave cases the penalty for "damaging" is the "highest measure of social protection—shooting."

An interesting passage in the Rukhomovich circular concerns "the survey of a number of important roads which revealed serious shortcomings in many respects." The roads mentioned are those which Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern railway, and his group of engineers have been visiting the last three weeks. The commissar lays particular stress on the importance of "single command"—that is, individual responsibility and authority of high officials, which, he declares, hardly exist on the railroads where bureaucracy and red tape reigns supreme.

Today's circular—it is more properly a "general order" in the military sense—is the first M. Rukhomovich has issued, and in Moscow bears out the new commissar's reputation as a man of ruthless energy.

Moscow's Vegetable Scandal.

In the same edition of Pravda appears a still more vehement statement by Pravda's economics editor, L. Brentman, on the "scandal" of the Moscow vegetable supply, recently assailed by the Workers' Gazette. M. Brentman says that although the supply of vegetables, including potatoes, available for Moscow is 1,200,000 tons, which is more than double last year's amount for the same period, "there are no vegetables in the coöperative stores."

"From 35 to 95 per cent of all vegetables sent to Moscow by coöperative producing organizations spoil before reaching the consumer," he charges. "In the last two or three days cars of cabbages arrived with 45 per cent spoiled; cucumbers, 60 per cent spoiled; berries, 95 per cent."

This is not surprising, the writer continues, because the vegetables spend a fortnight on a comparatively short journey heaped pell mell, potatoes, fruit and greens, without proper packing in an ordinary freight car, and often wait two or three days before unloading. Before and after loading the vegetables lie haphazard on platforms where cattle and fertilizer are being shipped. M. Brentman says each of the four coöperative organizations from the producers to the Moscow stores lays the blame on the other and that they are all correct.

Urges Vegetable Dictator.

"They are all to blame equally," he says, "and no small blame lies on the railroad department. It is high time the prosecuting attorney stepped in to punish such scandalous misconduct. One organization and one man must take the responsibility for the four bodies concerned in Moscow's vegetable supply, now sidestepping by blaming each other."

GOVERNOR WILL HEAR STORY OF PERJURY IN MOONEY'S CONVICTION

Baltimore, Md., July 13.—(AP)—John MacDonald, itinerant acrobat-waiter-watchman, whose testimony 14 years ago aided in sending Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings to prison for life, tomorrow will be released to attorneys for Mooney, who will return him to California to seek the labor leader's pardon before Gov. Young. MacDonald, arrested here, signed a 1,500 word affidavit in which he declared that the testimony he gave was false and engineered by the Mooney-Billings prosecution, at their trial in 1917 for the Preparedness day bombing in San Francisco in 1916, which cost eight lives. Gov. Young of California wired he would hear his story.

Strong Undertow Menaces Atlantic Coast Bathers

New York, July 13.—A stiff breeze out of the southeast that piled up the surf today along the entire seacoast from Cape May north to Montauk caused a terrific undertow in many sections, menacing one of the greatest throngs of bathers seen at the shore this year. Seven drownings are reported.

GIRL, RESTORED TO HER FAMILY, 'NOT KIDNAPED'

Richmond, Va., July 13.—[Special.]—Declaring that Harry Dickinson, garage man, did not abduct her, that she left Richmond of her own volition and that she loves him, Mary Frances McClenny, 20 year old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. C. McClenny, 37 Roslyn road, Hampton Gardens, is back home.

She was restored to her family shortly after midnight by Joseph C. Nunnally, Richmond attorney, who is representing Dickinson and the latter's brother, N. H. Dickinson, who with John S. Ledbetter, was arrested on Wednesday charged with aiding in the taking away and secreting of the girl.

Harry Dickinson was brought back to Richmond by Attorney Nunnally and gave himself up on a warrant sworn out by Dr. McClenny charging him with the abduction of his daughter. He was released under $1,000 bail.

Dickinson is to appear before Justice Pitt in Circuit court July 18 to answer to the charge. He was told that if he communicated either directly or indirectly with Miss McClenny he would violate the provisions of his bond. Ledbetter and N. H. Dickinson also are free on bonds.

Miss McClenny, who had been missing since July 1, and Dickinson were located yesterday in Waynesboro, Va. They were occupying a small apartment in the poorer section under the names of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Jones. Miss McClenny told Dickinson's counsel that she knew Dickinson was married. Dickinson has a wife and child in Russellville, Tenn.

FIND SKELETONS OF 200 PUT TO DEATH IN SPANISH DUNGEON

CUENCA, Spain, July 13.—(AP)—About 200 skeletons, supposedly those of persons put to death in the 16th century, were viewed today by thousands who visited a dungeon in the underground chambers of the old Santa Clara seminary, where the bones were discovered yesterday.

Officials said the position of some of the skeletons indicated the victims had died in terrible agony. Some of the bodies were mummified. Ropes had been tied about some of the necks and waists. One mummy, apparently that of a woman, was fastened with ropes to a projecting rock.

Evidently the victims were thrust into the dungeon through a hatch hole at the top. The dungeon was about 14 by 15 feet in size. A mirror, which distorted the appearance of the sufferers, was found inside.

Fake Check Brings Arrest; Lost 2 Million on Wall St.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—After informing detectives that he lost more than $2,000,000 in Wall street in the last three months, a man describing himself as J. Walter Rosenberg, a Philadelphia broker and attorney, was arraigned today before Magistrate Brodsky on the charge of issuing a fraudulent check for $400 to the Hotel Plaza. Magistrate Brodsky released Rosenberg in $3,000 bail for a hearing Thursday.

First Ringling Elephant, Bess, Dies at Age of 93

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 13.—(AP)—Bess, the first elephant John F. Ringling ever owned, died today. The 93-year-old tusker was captured in India 43 years ago.

Fisherman, 60, Drowned; Hunt Body of Boy Pal, 8

The body of an unidentified man about 60 years old was washed up on the lake shore at Whiting, Ind., yesterday. Whiting residents recognized the body as that of a man they had seen fishing on Saturday afternoon with 8 year old Orville Halsingsein, 217 119th street, Whiting. The boy has been missing since Saturday night, and coast guardsmen, fearing he and the man had been drowned together, were dragging for the boy's body.

PAROLED PONTIAC CONVICT SHOT AS HE TRIES ROBBERY

George Kline, 25 years old, 1025 South Morgan street, a paroled prisoner from Pontiac reformatory, was shot through the neck and probably fatally wounded last night by Glenn Schroeder, 23 years old, whose home at 1944 North Mozart street he was preparing to rob.

Kline was peering into a window when Schroeder saw him and, seizing a pistol from a dresser drawer, ran outside. They collided as Kline turned to flee, and in the scuffle Schroeder fired a shot that struck the burglar in the neck and emerged near his right eye. Kline fled, and Schroeder notified the police. Patrolmen Harold Regan and Harry Pehrson soon arrived and, following a trail of bloodstains, came upon Kline in a basement at 1900 North Mozart avenue.

He was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital, where he told the police that he had violated his parole and turned to burglary as a means of feeding his wife and two children.

Gen. Aguinaldo Takes Bride, 49, in Manila

MANILA, July 14.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, who led the Philippine insurrection against the United States in 1899-1901, today was married to Miss Maria Agoncillo, 49. The wedding was performed by Father P. Aguinaldo, cousin of the general, in the little Sampaloc district church here.

Colorado Creeks Overflow Banks; $100,000 Damage

Rifle, Colo., July 13.—(AP)—With estimated damage of $100,000 already charged against flood waters of Elk and Rifle creeks, a threat of rain tonight caused apprehension lest a renewal of last night's cloudbursts overburden swollen streams of this section.

'ROGUES GALLERY' OF N.Y. MEDICAL QUACKS PRINTS 25,000 NAMES

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—The detailed history of more than 25,000 medical quacks of every conceivable type are included in the New York City health department "rogues' gallery," compilation of which was announced today by Health Commissioner Wynne.

Each of the practitioners, manufacturers, peddlers or inventors has a folder in which is included his complete biography, the nature of the commodity with which he tricks the public, and his method of working.

ASSERTS ROBBER SHOT HIM AFTER GARAGE HOLDUP

James De Larco, 33 years old, 1011 South Mason avenue, a driver for an afternoon newspaper, was shot and seriously wounded early this morning. He was taken to the West Suburban hospital by police who were called to his home. At first, according to the police, De Larco told them he did not know how he had been shot. Later, however, he said he had put his car into a garage at the rear of his home and as he was walking toward the house was confronted by three robbers, who demanded his money. He said he gave up $50, but he made a move one of the bandits mistook for an attempt to resist and he was shot. De Larco's wife, Emily, and his brother, Michael, 1010 South Mason avenue, a driver for an afternoon paper, and the latter's wife corroborated his story. Police said earlier they had a call that there was trouble in James De Larco's home.

Slayer of Invalid Daughter Prays to Be with Her

Walton, N. Y., July 13.—[Special.]—Sitting in his cell in the Delaware county jail with his head bowed, Andrew L. Beers prayed tonight that he might be with his daughter, Frances, whom he killed on Wednesday afternoon in their home here. Frances, mentally defective from birth, was 27 years old. His other two daughters and a son were born normal. They feel no resentment toward their father for his act. Dr. Raymond Beers, the son, said tonight in Ticonderoga, where he is a dentist, that his father was not reponsible for the crime.

TWIN TENS PACK	153

LAST NIGHT the eleven members of the cast of "Sisters of the Chorus," the most amusing laugh show in Chicago's Bulb Belt, voted This Way and That on the two new Wings packs.

The score was close—all even—until the Wings girls cornered pretty Edna Hibbard, star wise-cracker of the show. Miss Hibbard swung her vote to the Twin Tens pack, thereby giving it a 6 to 5 decision.

Said Miss Hibbard, "Those Twin Tens are cute! One pack for me and one for Ring Ting Ting, my little mascot. I can take ten cigarettes on stage and have Ring guard a fresh ten for me in my dressing room. What service!"

But—out front the audience went Wallet. Score 176 to 147. Some comments:

"It's just as good as a regular cigarette case." "It keeps 'em all from being squashed!" "It fits my pocket right nice—lies flat as a billfold."

Some boost the Wallet. Some the Twin Tens. But either way we pack 'em, they like their smokes Air-Cooled. Cleaner and smoother.

COMMUNIST QUIZ WILL BE MADE BY HOUSE MEMBERS

Legislation Is Expected to Follow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Legislation which will enable the federal government to maintain observation of communist activities in the United States and facilitate deportation of objectionable communist aliens may be the outcome of a congressional investigation this summer. This inquiry into the existing communist situation in this country will be conducted by a special house committee headed by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. [Rep., N. Y.].

The first meeting of the committee will be held in New York City Tuesday. Later, sessions of the committee will be held in Chicago and other large industrial cities throughout the country. Special attention will be devoted to the communist boy camps established in some western states. The committee will report back to the house this fall as to whether it feels communists in this country are a menace which should be met by legislation. Under present conditions no federal check is kept on communist activities in the United States.

Plans to Compile Facts.

"I do not believe," Mr. Fish stated in outlining the purpose of the hearings, "that the committee ought to pursue any individual communists. I think it ought simply to compile the facts from four departments of the government—state, justice, labor and postoffice—as to their powers in dealing with communists and find out just what communists advocate, what their main activities are, and what money is sent to them from foreign sources. I believe we can prove money comes from Russian communistic sources and that when we obtain the entire picture we can recommend intelligent legislation on the basis of the facts collected.

"I think I can prove that the federal government has practically no power to deal with the activities or the propaganda of any of the communists in the United States. The communists, knowing that, have increased their activities within the last six or seven years to such an extent that they have become a menace in the great industrial centers. The department of justice, much to my surprise, claims that it has no power at all, that it has no agents that are following up the activities of communists, that the department knows nothing about them, and that it has no authority to act from the congress of the United States, and no appropriations.

Orders Come from Abroad.

"The purpose of this investigation is to ascertain the exact situation concerning the activities of communists. The communists in this country obey implicitly orders from an alien dictatorship in Russia. The secret police of other countries know all about the communists within their borders. I believe it will not be difficult for this committee to get the facts and present them to congress so that we can write intelligent legislation to deport alien communists and to deal with their revolutionary activities."

Interviews with federal officials as well as a study of testimony given befor the house rules committee which recommended the investigation by department of justice and immigration officials revealed that no check is being kept by the federal government on communistic activities, that only fourteen communist aliens have been deported in the last four years, and that no existing statute makes it an offense for a person to be affiliated with a communist movement. Officials stated that no appropriations are available for investigating communist activities and that even in the case of communist aliens it is virtually impossible to obtain proof on which they may be deported. American communists cannot be deported for that cause alone or prevented from reëntering the country.

ROOT URGES POLICE TO GUARD AGAINST COMMUNISTIC WORK

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Creation of a special federal police force to combat intrigue and propaganda, which, he charges, is directed by the soviet government, was urged in a letter by Elihu Root to Ralph M. Easley, executive secretary of the National Civic federation, made public by Mr. Easley today.

The establishment of a special police force against communists will result from the congressional inquiry into communist activities now under way by a committee headed by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., Mr. Easley predicted. He said that members of the committee as well as other members of congress favored the formation of such a police force because the government now has no police to combat subversive activities.

Physical Test Is Ordered for All Evanston Police

Physical examination of all members of the Evanston police deparment was ordered yesterday by Chief William O. Freeman, following a request from the civil service commission, of which R. D. Cunningham is chairman. An investigation by the commission had disclosed there were men physically unfit to serve on the force. This was brought to the attention of Chief Freeman, who promptly ordered the examination.

Suicide by Gas Fails; He Slashes Wrists and Dies

Stanley Milton, 47 years old, 436 Surf street, died yesterday evening at the Grant hospital after slashing his wrists with a razor blade. He had tried earlier to asphyxiate himself by turning on the burners of a gas stove, but a tenant of the building had entered before he became unconscious.

PLOTTERS NAMED BY MAN WHO SHOT PRESIDENT RUBIO

Mexico City, July 13.—(AP)—Daniel Flores, who shot and wounded President Ortiz Rubio in the jaw on inauguration day, February 5, recently had an audience with the president and since has made important declarations to the authorities that probably will involve other persons in the attempted assassination.

This notice was communicated to the press today, but District Judge Jose Caballero, in charge of the Flores case, refused to disclose the details of the declarations.

The young man has been held in the penitentiary since the shooting and is awaiting trial.

ESTIMATE COST OF A WATERWAY ON ERIE CANAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Having obtained an authorization in the new rivers and harbors bill for the federal government to take over the New York state barge canal its sponsors are expected eventually to propose a deepening of the present 12 foot project to 14 feet with a readjustment of bridges to give greater clearances.

Further agitation of the subject, however, will await approval of the transfer of title to the canal by the New York state legislature and by the voters of that state.

Army Engineers' Estimates.

Army engineers have made estimates of various proposals for the improvement of the Erie and Oswego canals, forming the New York state barge canal, as follows:

Deepening of canals, except locks, to 13 feet and raising of bridges in sections subject to floods—$26,906,210;

Deepening of canals, except locks, to 14 feet and raising of bridges to provide 20 feet vertical clearances—$50,000,000;

Deepening of canals and locks to 14 feet and raising of bridges to provide 20 feet clearance—$82,381,580;

Deepening of canals and locks to 14 feet and installation of movable bridges—$135,671,580;

Deepening of canals and locks to 14 feet with high level bridges —movable bridges and tunnels—$137,771,580;

Deepening of canals and locks to 14 feet with high level bridges and tunnels—$336,971,580;

Deepening of canals and locks to 14 feet with high level bridges —$351,571,580;

Insist on Present Depth.

Advocates of the St. Lawrence waterway withdrew their opposition to the Erie and Oswego canals item in the rivers and harbors bill only after a clause was incorporated stipulating that they might be operated and maintained "at their present depth as barge canals only, and not as, or with any intention to make them ship channels, or to hinder or delay the improvement of the St. Lawrence waterway as the seaway from the great lakes to the ocean."

The bill carried a further stipulation "that no project for the widening or deepening of these canals, or for the elevation of bridges in connection therewith, shall proceed without subsequent authorization of congress."

If deepening from 12 to 14 feet the canals would still be barge canals and not ship canals, according to sponsors of the project, but further authorization will be required from congress before anything can be done along this line. It is expected that three or four years will be required for the formalities incident to action by the New York legislature and a referendum vote in New York state on the transfer of the canals to the federal government.

Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, is of the opinion that the most practical and economical plan is to increase the depth of the canals to 14 feet without changing the 12 foot depth now available in the locks, progressive widening to permit full use of the greater depth and the raising of the bridges to provide 20 foot clearances.

Gen. Brown believes that an expenditure of about $50,000,000 on such a program over a period of 10 to 15 years would be justified by an increased commerce.

AVIATOR PRIEST PILOTS PLANE TO ALASKA MISSION

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—The first flying priest will take off from Roosevelt field, L. I., this week for missionary work in Alaska, it was announced today. The six place monoplane has been named the Marquette Missionary and its pilot is G. J. Feltes, a Jesuit priest.

The priest will fly the ship to Seattle, whence it will be shipped to Alaska. Feltes is the only member of the Jesuit order who holds a flyer's license and he has had more than 100 hours flying experience. The Buffalo, Detroit, Dubuque, Wichita, flight to the coast will be by way of Phoenix and San Francisco.

The Bellanca monoplane was presented to the Holy Cross mission by the Marquette league. The mission is 400 miles up the Yukon. Ordinarily the plane will be used for communication between missions that are completely isolated from one another and from the outside world for the greater part of the year. It will be equipped, however, to serve as an emergency ambulance and will carry serums to isolated posts.

The priest-pilot who will fly the plane began his training as an airman last July at Alameda airport, near San Francisco. He won his private and limited commercial license and has flown many different planes.

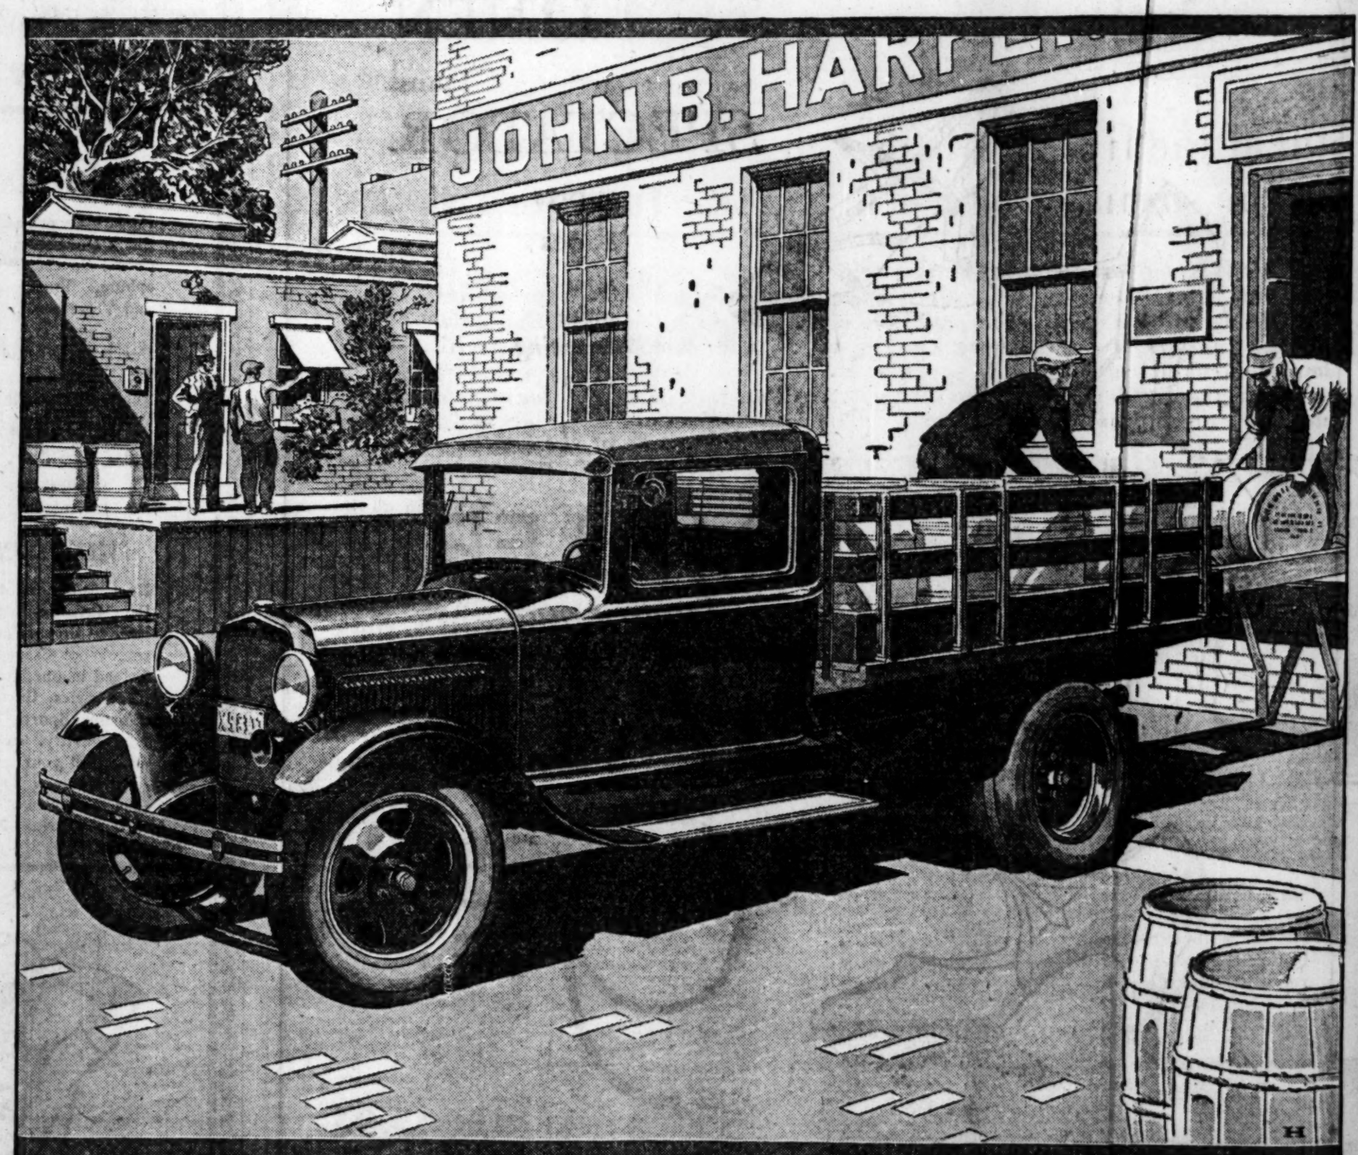
The Ford is a strong and capable truck



WHEREVER there is material of any kind to be hauled, you are likely to see Ford trucks at work. You will find them at many a shipping-platform, or meet them on the way. And see them climbing ramps, out of excavations.

You will notice Ford trucks where business is swift . . . and in rural sections, where strict economy often dictates the type of transportation. For the Ford truck is excellently adapted to a wide variety of purposes.

A number of new features increase the usefulness of the Ford truck, adding as well to its capable performance and rugged strength. Among them are the spiral-bevel-gear rear axle; the two optional gear-ratios; the larger brakes; the heavier front axle and spring; the 4-speed transmission, and the dual rear wheels available at small additional cost.

Standard bodies for the Ford truck, which are the panel, stake, and platform, are mounted on the chassis with 131½" wheelbase. A chassis with 157" wheelbase is available for carrying light but bulky loads.

Bodies are strong and good-looking, with loading space of carefully planned dimensions. The stake and platform types can be equipped with either open or enclosed cabs. Go to your Ford dealer, and learn how long and well, and at what low cost, the Ford truck will serve your purpose.

BATTLE RAGES AROUND SACRED TOWN OF CHINA

Birthplace of Confucius Bombed by Planes.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune News Service.]

SHANGHAI, China, July 13.—Chufu, sacred Shantung city and birthplace of China's ancient sage, Confucius, is again the scene of a battle in a Chinese civil war, this time with all the modern trimmings, including airplane bombings.

Despite the entreaties of Chinese intellectuals against warfare in the sacred territory, the Chinese papers today report a serious struggle is raging between Gen. Yen Hsi-shan's Shansi troops and Nationalist government forces in the vicinity of Chufu. The government claims it is driving back the rebels.

The Chinese paper, Sin Wan Pao, reported that northern rebel troops, advancing to the south from Tsinanfu, launched an artillery attack on the government's positions, which brought on a battle which has raged for two days.

Planes Bomb Rebels.

Since Gen. Yen's purpose was to menace Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's base at Huchowfu in northern Kiangsu province as a means of relieving the pressure against the positions of the Christian general, Feng Yu-hsiang, at Kaifeng, on the Lunghai railway, Gen. Chiang pushed forward heavy reinforcements, including a dozen bombers. The planes are declared to have inflicted considerable havoc among Gen. Yen's advance forces along the Tientsin-Pukow railway between Chufu and Yenchowfu.

According to a report from Canton the Nationalist government has ordered reinforcements of Cantonese troops rushed to the north through Honan province.

Four Year Dispute Ended.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, China, July 13.—Fifteen outstanding Kuomintang leaders this afternoon signed a manifesto formally ending the four year dispute between the right and left wings of the party. They called a national party conference here within a month for the purpose of establishing a government "to succeed the false government which Gen. Chiang Kai-shek usurped."

The ceremony was held inside the former imperial park. Military bands played and an armed escort was present.

Gen. Chen Kung-po, leading southern delegate, declared a complete agreement had been reached and predicted that Gen. Yen Hsi-shan will be elected chairman of the new government and the capital will probably be set up at Nanking after the overthrow of Chiang Kai-shek.

Report Communists Withdraw.

SHANGHAI, July 13.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports received today from Shasi, Huper province, said communists had withdrawn after storming the city for two days. Due to interrupted communications, details were lacking. All foreigners left the city several days ago when bandits and communists began concentrating preparatory to attacking the city.

Ex-Dictator of Greece Gets New Sentence for Fraud

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, July 13.—Gen. Theodore Pangalos, former dictator of Greece, today was given a new sentence of two years' imprisonment and five years' loss of civil rights for misappropriation of funds during his term of office. An extraordinary court found that he had placed an order for 500,000 uniforms without knowledge of the finance minister.

KING CAROL AND QUEEN 'MAKE UP'; TO VOID DIVORCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, July 13.—King Carol II. and Helen have "made up" and the legal annulment of their divorce will take place this week, according to information received here tonight.

Attorney General Cernescu, who declined to contest Helen's divorce case against Carol two years ago, will resign tomorrow and his place will be taken by Judge Praporgescu, who has already drawn up the legal papers for the annulment.

King Carol is reported to have urged haste in the matter in order to counteract press stories that Magda Lupescu, titian haired Parisian associate of the new king, is about to return.

THE PUBLISHERS IN THE CRIME INVESTIGATION.

After Alfred Lingle, TRIBUNE police reporter, was killed the Chicago newspaper publishers met and pledged their coöperation in an investigation. Rewards were offered for information which would bring a conviction of the murderers and it was agreed that if State's Attorney Swanson would appoint Charles Rathbun of THE TRIBUNE law firm as assistant state's attorney he should have charge of the investigation to insure it penetration and persistence.

Within two days thereafter Lingle was revealed as a dishonest man, thus changing the apparent motive of the murder, and important evidence was discovered. The revolver with which the reporter was shot was traced to a gangster named Foster, who was taken in Los Angeles and indicted in Chicago. He is now resisting extradition from California.

With these two events the coöperation to which the publishers had pledged themselves to insure the deepest possible penetration of gangland disappeared. The need of it had, if anything, been greatly increased and the reason it no longer was given was far from clear. Ordinary newspaper competitive jealousies were not sufficient explanation. Obstructions were placed in the way of successful work. Information which was valuable to fugitives and to suspects was published almost as soon as law officers could take up a trail. Men in hiding were thus warned that they were wanted. Attacks were made on this newspaper and innuendoes were directed against the attorney the publishers had agreed should be in charge of the case as special assistant state's attorney.

It was a reversal of intention not satisfactorily explained until the publication of a series of articles by a St. Louis reporter assigned to the Lingle story. His articles said that there were other dishonest reporters in Chicago police work and gangland activities than the murdered TRIBUNE reporter and it was revealed for the first time that Julius Rosenheim, an underworld character killed Feb. 1, had been working for the Chicago Daily News as an informant and assistant of a Daily News police reporter who later himself was attacked by a gang. It was also charged that another reporter on a Chicago newspaper had been the guest of Capone in Florida and Cuba. These and other charges were made against the integrity of Chicago newspaper work and the St. Louis investigator volunteered to substantiate and enlarge his statements if called before the grand jury.

All these things could be important leads into the crimes of the underworld, but their presentation has changed the atmosphere from one of coöperation to one of hostility. The investigation is opposed and obstructed. An attempt has been made to force Mr. Rathbun out of the inquiry. The appearance of the St. Louis investigator before the grand jury has been blocked. The facts must speak for themselves.

Lingle as a factor in the crime and in other crimes is dead. He cannot be punished further. His record can be used to find the way to other criminals and it has been so used. No trail has been closed on this newspaper. If other TRIBUNE employés are found to have been guilty of crimes they will be punished by the law. If they are found to have been dishonorable they will be discharged.

The sources of crime are being sought wherever they may be found. The search is confused and obstructed by publishers who should be interested not only as newspaper men but as citizens in making the pursuit relentless wherever it leads. The decency and honesty of newspaper work in this city is on public trial. On the other hand, the criminality of the city may be in desperate position. So far as THE TRIBUNE is concerned it has only one object. That is to make it more desperate and it will submit to the ultimate judgment of the public.

INDUSTRIALISTS AGAINST PROHIBITION.

Announcement that Gen. Otto H. Falk, president of the Allis-Chalmers corporation, has decided to take an active part in the battle to abolish prohibition is of more than passing interest to Milwaukeeans. Gen. Falk is not a convert to the ranks of the wets. He has never approved of the 18th amendment. But he speaks now, not only as an individual but also as the largest employer of labor in Wisconsin. He is acting, in his opinion, in the interest of 12,000 men and women on the pay rolls of his concern.

Gen. Falk cannot see that prohibition has brought happiness and prosperity to the citizenry. He does not believe that those who enjoy a glass of beer are contented with the illegal, unhealthful substitutes on sale in hundreds of barrooms. He maintains that it does not increase efficiency of workmen to be in a state of mental rebellion against their government, and to feel that they have been victimized by their elected representatives.

When men of the type of Gen. Falk and John Cudahy take an active part in a movement to restore a modicum of personal liberty to the people they cannot be lightly ignored as fanatics or rebels.

HOVERING STORM CLOUDS.

Premier Tardieu has asked the chamber of deputies for a vote of $45,000,000 in addition to the regular appropriation for defense. With the premier's support, the minister of war has refused the proposal of the radicals to grant special leave to farmers serving their term in the army, which was urged for the relief of an agricultural crisis. He also asked that a shortage of conscripts of 20,000 men and of 10,000 men in the professional standing army be made up at once. At the same time the naval committee, while considering the late naval conference and treaty which the French delegates did not sign, adopted a resolution directing the government not to depart from certain principles—namely: that France should preserve the liberty to achieve to any figure in global tonnage, to build or transfer tonnage from any category to that of submarines and to use them in war, and finally should refuse the claim of Italy to parity.

There is an urgency in the military demands reported, to say nothing of the assertion of French policy in naval development, which is ominous. They indicate a sense of immediate danger which cannot be lightly dismissed. The stress of Franco-Italian relations is obviously serious and not a matter of mere political rhetoric or bluff. Foreign Minister Briand's statement before the foreign affairs committee of the chamber offers a more reassuring view, and we hope the negotiations he has been carrying on with Rome will bring about the much needed relaxation of tension.

There are several factors in the Franco-Italian situation which contain explosive possibilities. A recent dispatch discusses the practicability of an enterprise like D'Annunzio's taking of Fiume directed against Nice. The idea seems to us fantastic, for the French army is not likely to be caught napping, and an effort to raid Nice would receive a stinging rebuff. Nevertheless, there is a very large population of Italians in the south of France and centuries of mixture of blood. Italian patriotism has never been resigned to the loss of Savoy and really thinks of it as irredenta. The French are aware of this, and with the development of military power and of militant nationality under Fascism are strengthening their forces on this front. The troops withdrawn from Germany will be redisposed. it is said, with this in view. It is reported also that the French have been strengthening the defenses of the passes and from time to time there have been rumors of important concentration of troops. Meanwhile, there is a heavy exchange of provocative journalism on both sides of the border. The Italian press, entirely controlled by the Fascist government, has been abusing French policy for weeks. The French press has been responding with increasing indignation. The atmosphere is supercharged, and it has seemed that war was being deliberately prepared, or at least deliberately risked.

This situation cannot be understood without reference to the political forces at work among the former Austro-Hungarian states and the Balkans. Hungary wants to put a Hapsburg on her throne. Italy favors it. France and the little entente, her protégé, oppose it. Hungary wants to get back some of the territory given by the treaty of Trianon to her neighbors, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, and Jugo-Slavia. The latter, the little entente, backed by France, intend to stand upon the status quo. The conflict is a part of Franco-Italian politics and would certainly draw them into a war begun by the lesser figures of the drama. There is friction also in the Franco-Italian contacts in North Africa.

The picture recalls vividly the situation before 1914, with its recurrept crises. In spite of the great war, in spite of its long and agonizing aftermath, in spite of death and impoverishment, and in spite of leagues, conventions, and treaties, of Geneva, Locarno, and the outlawry of war, it is difficult to see that the philosophy or morale of Europe has changed substantially. Like the chameleon in the French adage, "the more it changes, the more it is the same thing." The vast catastrophe of 1914 came and passed into history. The smoke still hung over its ruined villages, the turf on its innumerable graves was not yet green, the thunders of its last cannonade still echoed in the ears of its survivors when the old processes began again. M. Briand declares that a war in Europe at the present moment is "neither possible nor admissible," but that was pretty generally asserted by believers in the efficacy of international agreements and restraints in 1914.

Editorial of the Day

[Decatur (Ill.) Herald.]

Walter Liggett, journalist, after making a searching and generally unflattering investigation of prohibition nonobservance in several states, dropped in recently at Westerville, O. This little city was the birthplace of the Anti-Saloon league, the parent being God, according to the Rev. F. Scott McBride, and the Rev. Howard H. Russell midwife. Until recently Westerville continued to be the national capital of the league, and the headquarters also of the various organizations that have sought to extend prohibition over the world.

What Mr. Liggett found in Westerville in the course of a few hours never would have been suspected from the literature that is sent out under these holy auspices. He found that the sale of malt, bottles, siphons, bottle caps, and similar equipment is just as brisk in Westerville as it is in the average city of the United States. He found that it was an easy matter to establish contact with a merchant of strong spirits, and the bootleggers call upon known customers in the business houses and offices with the regularity of the milkman.

This report, which after all should have surprised no tolerably well informed person who has lived in any American city these ten years, was received with great consternation by the Rev. Mr. Russell and members of his flock. An indignation meeting has been held in one of the churches. After prayer and exhortation it was agreed that something must be done about the matter. Somebody must be made to suffer for "defaming our good city."

And now to the point of the story: Is it against the Westerville bootleggers that all this indignation is aroused; against the Westerville citizens who still, perversely, have an appetite for forbidden beverages? Not at all! The indignation, and the talk of reprisal, is all directed against Liggett and two or three local citizens who are suspected of having assisted him with introductions. Their offense consisted in making the true situation public.

Be not too hard upon the Rev. Mr. Russell and the other noble experimenters of Westerville. Their reaction is as typically American as apple pie.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

WHAT TO DO: DROWNING.

On taking from the water a person not yet dead, the first effort should be to drain the water from his air passages. The simplest plan is to turn the body face downwards. Grasp the trunk in the region of the hips and lift the body with the head hanging down. Hold in this position for about one minute.

The succeeding steps have to do with artificial respiration if required, applying heat, and the giving of stimulants.

In artificial respiration by the Schafer prone pressure method, turn the body on the stomach. The face is turned to one side with the mouth open and the nostrils unobstructed. Make certain the mouth and nose are free from water and dirt or other obstructions, and that the tongue is in its natural position.

The operator kneels astride the body at the hips and facing the head. He places his hands on the back in the lower rib region. His thumbs point toward the patient's head and are about three inches to the side of the spinal column. His fingers extend outward, parallel with the ribs. The arms are held stiff. Everything is now in position for artificial respiration.

The operator leans forward at the hips and throws his weight through his stiff arms and his hands against the subject's lower chest, driving the air out of his lungs. He then throws his body backward, bending at the hips, and releases the pressure on the subject's lungs. He then holds that position for a brief spell and then repeats. The rate of artificial respiration should not exceed sixteen breaths per minute.

The Sylvester method is the alternative procedure, but it is rarely used. The old pulmotor method is strongly advised against.

Artificial respiration is not to be done if the subject is breathing. Meanwhile, heat is to be applied. The subject is dried, wrapped in warm coverings, and hot water bottles or bricks are applied to his feet, legs, and body. Heat ranks close to artificial respiration. As soon as it is feasible, stimulants should be given by mouth or otherwise. Spirits of ammonia is held to the nose. Aromatic spirits of ammonia, camphor, coffee, and other warm drinks are given internally. Physicians have still other methods of stimulating.

YOU ARE MOSTLY CORRECT.

H. L. W. writes: Recently you said that the fan forces hot air out of the house. If the air is hotter outside than inside, then would not the house fill up with hot air and be hotter than before the fan was used? I wonder if you ever held a fan in front of a thermometer and noticed that it had no effect on the mercury. My observation is that a fan does not cool a room at all unless the air is colder outside than in the room. But the fan does drive the animal or physical heat from the surface of the body and allows the body to come in contact with the normal temperature of the room, which is generally lower than blood heat [98 degrees], without changing the surrounding temperature.

REPLY.

Most of what you say is correct. The air in contact with the body is apt to register well over 90. Fanning blows the hot air away from the body. As a rule fans cool houses by means of the air currents they produce. There are exceptions, as I have written so frequently. On hot days, with much glare, most houses are cooler if they are kept closed and drafts are discouraged as much as possible.

I have fanned a thermometer. In fact, wall thermometers generally "read too high" unless they are fanned before being read.

THEY ARE NOT NECESSARY.

A. B. C. writes: I am 50 years old and for the last three weeks I have had continual hot flashes, one every half hour. Is this normal and isn't there something a person can take for relief?

REPLY.

Altogether unnecessary. Why indulge? Have your physician show you how to take ovarian extract and take it as you need it.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

OFFENDER WILL BE WATCHED.

Chicago, June 26.—[Friend of the People.]—A chimney on the building opposite my window discharges smoke frequently. It has a most obnoxious odor, so that I believe the people there must burn their garbage. We really must have relief. This building is in the neighborhood of Winthrop and Granville. G. B.

An order has been served on the owner of the premises complained of to discontinue burning rubbish and garbage from stores of building and abate nuisance of smoke, soot, charred paper and noxious gases to tenants of neighboring buildings.

We will keep these premises under observation until the nuisance is abated.

FRANK A. CHAMBERS,
Deputy Smoke Inspector in Charge.

POSTPONEMENT RISKY.

Chicago, July 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother has made out a quit claim deed to her home to me. Would it be valid or legal if I had it recorded after her death? R. H. G.

Such delay would necessitate proof on your part that the instrument was validly delivered during the grantor's lifetime. We strongly advise either recording the instrument now or having the mother make a will. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

EARLY MORNING NOISES.

Chicago, July 11.—[Friend of the People.]—We have a two year lease on an apartment. Next door to us is a barbecue which gives car service. The cars pull up under our windows and honk for service until far into the night. On Saturday and Sunday nights it is not unusual for customers to be there until 3:30 in the morning. On the corner a boy calls papers till 1 o'clock in the morning. We are expected to meet the obligations of our lease, but can we do anything about these unpleasant conditions? B. K.

Following is copy of report from the commanding officer of the 25th district which shows action taken to remedy the conditions complained of: "Patrolmen investigated complaint and report that they interviewed manager of the stand and instructed him to have his employés tell customers to refrain from blowing their auto horns and also not to allow autos to be parked against building. They also warned the newsboy to refrain from yelling."

NOW, WHAT TO DO ABOUT BOBBY.

No use talking, if the election was tomorrow there'd be nothing to it. Bobby would do a birdie right into the White House. That's the way we Americans are. But, of course, if Bobby gets licked in the next golf tournament and fails to come back after that he's through as far as the presidency is concerned. Along in 1932 they'll be saying, "Bobby Jones, who was Bobby Jones? Was he a tennis player or was that two other fellers?" That's the way we Americans are. But right now we're all out to do something big for Bobby Jones. We'd give him a house, we usually give houses to heroes, but Bobby's got a house. And besides we gave him one once and he declined with thanks. He was looking forward to some distant day when he might slice into the rough and get licked to a frazzle by old Col. Bogey and we'd all swarm down on that gift house and tear the shingles off and sell the front porch for a garage. We'd give Bobby a lot more championship cups, but he's got so many right now that he has to cord 'em up in the back yard. And he's got so many presentation watches that he has to be careful when a panhandler gyps him for a dime not to reach down in his pocket and pull out a fistful of presentation watches.

But, after all, what we really love to do with our heroes is to make 'em President. If Bobby Jones can win every golf tournament in sight anywhere on the face of the globe then naturally he'd make a grand President of the U. S. A. No argument about that. That's the way we feel about the presidency, take it or leave it. But the trouble there with Bobby is that just before election time something else may bob up, a flag pole sitter, or an endurance flyer, or a comet or something and then we'd be strong for putting one of them or all of them in the White House. Bobby ought to time his championships to come off just before election.

WEARY DANCER.

Weary dancer, when the dawn
Spills its silver light,
Does your languid smile awaken
With the going of the night?

Weary dancer, do your feet
Feel the coolness of the dew
As you hurry down the dream-lane
To a drowsy rendezvous?

Weary dancer, will your heart
Ever waver, will your charms
Always drift like scattered rose-dust
Into some one else's arms?

THIS IS THE END! They've put flood lights on Notre Dame. Shades of Victor Hugo, he must have turned over twenty-seven times. How those gargoyles 'way up there on the eaves of the old cathedral must blink their eyes as they look down into the glare of those flood lights. Shouldn't wonder if they all jumped right off and drowned themselves in the Seine.

THE BRITISH used to say that if the little wars they were continually having all over the world were good for nothing else, at least they taught them geography. And about the same thing is true of prohibition with us. Who ever heard of the tiny islands of Miquelon and St. Pierre before? Who of us knew they were off the coast of Newfoundland and that they belonged to France? Yet since Canada has cut off rum shipments to the U. S. A., Miquelon and St. Pierre have jumped right into the middle of the front page because they have become the northern center of the rum running industry. Miquelon and St. Pierre; gosh! prohibition does teach a lot of things.

AND NOW that we've discovered them, we shouldn't wonder a bit if we'd soon begin to get circulars: "Go Abroad at Home! Travel in France Without Leaving America! Mysterious Miquelon and Superlative St. Pierre Invite You. See the French Fishing Boats Slowly Crossing the Bar at Sunset! And Speaking of Bars—See the Ones at Miquelon and St. Pierre—You'll Be Surprised!"

IT'S VACATION and time to play, but here the boys are climbing up into trees and defiantly roosting there in spite of pleas to come down and enjoy themselves. The Hunter brothers' endurance flight in an airplane is said to be responsible, and old fashioned spanking doesn't do any good, and besides pa and ma are too fat and old to climb trees and bring 'em down. There's only one solution, let pa or ma sternly order little Johnny or Jimmie or Tommie to climb up in the top of a tree and stay there night and day. Or, better still, get an order from their school teacher that they must do it. That'll hold 'em.

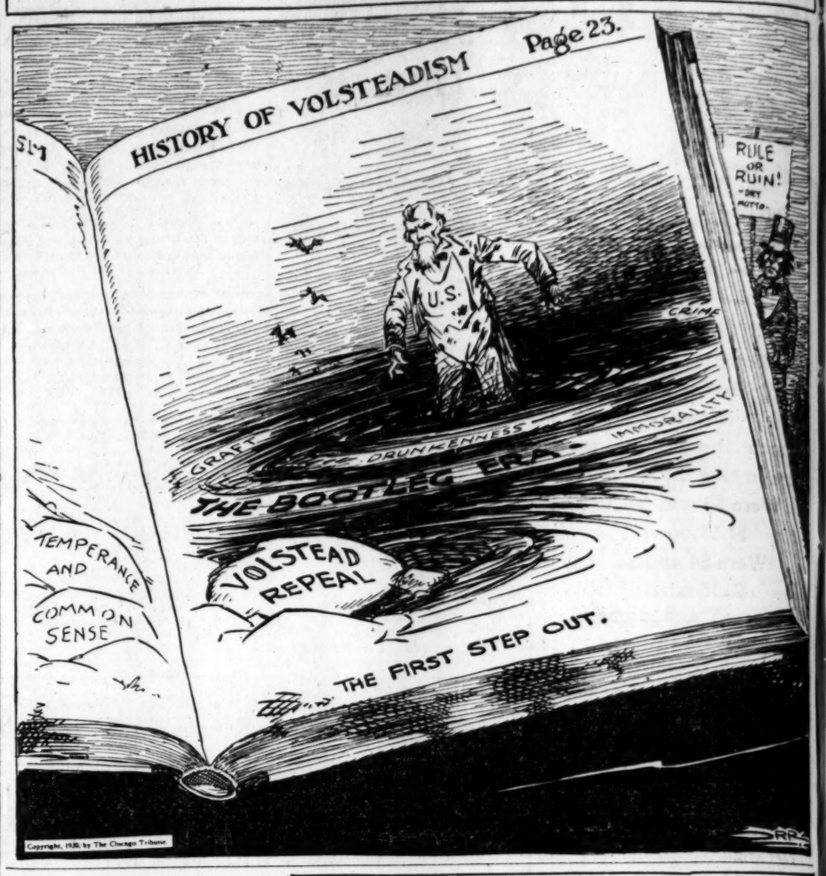
PROHIBITION



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 14, 1865.

NEW YORK.—Fire, which destroyed Barnum's museum, spread rapidly to adjoining buildings on Broadway and Fulton street, and caused a loss estimated at $1,000,000. All the snakes and wild animals in the museum were burned. The walls of the Astor house became very hot, but by drenching the windows thoroughly the building was saved. Following the fire, capitalists made a proposition for a new museum association with a capital of $300,000 with John Banvard of Banvard's panorama as manager.

NEW YORK.—The Herald's correspondent says he has high authority for stating that the subject of Jeff Davis' trial has never been officially discussed. Informal conversations have occurred in the cabinet between officials but all probabilities are against an immediate or speedy trial.

NEW YORK.—Col. T. P. Shafner writes a letter to the World predicting the failure of the Atlantic cable. He says there is no probability of sending more than three words a minute, and even at that rate conductors over the cable would be destroyed in ninety days.

DENVER.—Extensive and rich silver mines have recently been discovered about fifty miles west of Denver, at the foot of Snowy range, and there is great excitement here in the mountains.

NEW YORK.—The Catholic priests who attended Mrs. Surratt when she was executed as a Lincoln assassination conspirator have made affidavits concerning restrictions by the war department which will soon be published.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 14, 1900.

LONDON.—There is neither confirmation nor denial of the story that the last two of the Peking legations fell on July 6 to the Boxers and Chinese, but circumstantial evidence continues to accumulate that the worst is to be feared. The news from Tien Tsin is that the allies are with difficulty holding their own in the face of repeated attacks by the Chinese and an extremely accurate artillery fire.

WASHINGTON.—To show his good faith Minister Wu suggested to the state department that Secretary Hay should write an official letter to Minister Conger at Peking, requesting an immediate answer as to the situation there. Minister Wu agreed to forward the message himself, exclusively by Chinese hands.

CHICAGO.—The Corn Exchange National bank, the Northwestern National and the American National are to be combined, with Ernest A. Hamill, head of the Corn Exchange, as president. Notices will be issued soon. The combined deposits of the three institutions, according to their last statements, were $33,000,000. That will make the new bank the second national institution in the city in point of deposits, the First National being largest.

CHICAGO.—The apartment of Mrs. Preston Johnson Gibson, formerly Miss Minna Field, niece of Marshall Field, was ransacked by robbers and rings and other jewelry valued at $600 stolen. Mrs. Gibson lives at 205 East Goethe street. Her elopement and marriage last winter set society agog.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 14, 1920.

SPA.—Following the refusal of the Germans to comply with the allies' demands for coal deliveries, Marshal Foch and Gen. Sir Henry Wilson, British chief of staff, have been ordered by the supreme council to return to Spa at once. The military leaders were summoned after a disagreement had abruptly ended the session. There is a prospect that the clash over the coal may end the conference.

CHICAGO.—Senator Robert M. La Follette definitely refused to be a third party candidate for President on a platform which was submitted to him by the Committee of Forty-Eight. The amalgamated convention of the various groups here in opposition to the old parties will begin this morning.

ETHAN ALLEN'S VOCABULARY.

Chicago, July 11.—Being a native of his state, I was much interested in the recent TRIBUNE account of Ethan Allen. It recalls to memory another tale of him as handed down to me by an old family of that state.

Living neighbor to Allen, on the shores of beautiful Champlain, was an Englishman whose sheep were wont to graze in the greener pastures on Allen's side of a makeshift fence. Chatting one evening on his broad veranda, his gaze fell upon a multitude of English sheep at their usual trespass. Rising to his full height, his face the purple of the evening shadows, he said, "I wish I had a dog as big as the Great Jehovah, with teeth as long as Jacob's ladder and as sharp as the wrath of God; I'd make that hillside stink with British carrion before morning."

In this day of atrophied spines it is to be greatly regretted that there is not a liberal sprinkling of Ethan Allens throughout this broad land; real men in whose veins race the red blood of American patriotism instead of the yellow, slimy ooze of international pacifism that stagnates in a million miles of un-American veins. C. E. T.

THE GRAND JURY'S RIGHTS.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 10.—Why the impasse in the Brundidge quiz? The grand jury is supreme in the conduct of its investigations. Why should Brundidge submit to a quiz by an assistant in the office of the state's attorney? The fact is that the people of Chicago have no faith in the latter. Many believe that connections and leaks in that office promote the interests of crooks. They point to lack of convictions, missing witnesses, lost evidence, etc., as prima facie evidence of such conditions.

To have Brundidge, or any other informant, go through the quiz of the state's attorney's office would mean that the facts would get to crookdom before they got to the grand jury.

As a legal right, the grand jury can summon any person in its jurisdiction to appear before that body, and conduct any examination it desires without the presence of the state's attorney or an assistant. When Tammany had its sensational fall in New York, and the Lexow committee reigned, the district attorney's office never got a look-in in the grand jury room.

Let Brundidge go before the grand jury, as he desired, and let him make good his charges. Undoubtedly he knows what constitutes legal evidence. And he knows a lot more, which the public wants to hear.

HARRY P. LEONARD.

NOT A MIRAGE.

Chicago, July 8.—Not long ago in your column some one asked about a spectacular sight he had seen on the shore of either Indiana or Michigan. He said it was a mirage of Chicago's skyline. It was not a mirage, but an actual view of Chicago's skyline. Not long ago I was camping at Tremont, Ind., and I went down to the beach in the evening. Along towards dark one could see the tall spires of the large downtown buildings and later the two big buildings on 51st street. So he really did see Chicago's skyline and not a mirage, as he thought. ROBERT SELINE.

NEWS ABOUT INDIA.

Chicago, July 6.—I am a visitor to this great country of yours and have been staying for the last two or three weeks in this city. Before leaving the city may I just say a word as to how thankful I am for what you have been doing by way of giving a proper and faithful picture of what is happening in India through your representation there and also by adding from time to time such comments as are necessary in regard to the matter? I am also very thankful for your editorial remarks now and then, remarks in which you rightly point out that the immediate grant of dominion status to India is the only solution of the trouble that is going on in India at present.

The public opinion of this country can certainly help a great deal in bringing about reconciliation between England and India on the basis of the grant of dominion status, and such a reconciliation will be good not only for both these countries but for the whole world, inasmuch as what we need today is harmony and peace among the various nations and races. Surely the world cannot afford to see the relations between the western world and the oriental world more strained than they are already, and I do hope that the British will show statesmanship enough at this critical moment to avert such a catastrophe.

India as an equal partner in the Indo-British commonwealth of nations can certainly help a great deal in keeping the peace of the world for a long, long time to come. As one of the leading papers of this great country you can render this service to us in India and to the people of England and indirectly to the whole world by pointing to the necessity of this reconciliation between us, and I am thankful that you are rendering this service.

MANILAL C. PAREKH.

SOMEBODY'S LAWN.

Chicago, July 8.—I am moved to comment on a letter in today's issue, written by Mrs. J. F. She is all het up because of some man's yelling at her child. Certainly the man's conduct was unbecoming a gentleman. But how does the lady know he hadn't spent hard earned money on grass seed and labor to make an extra fine lawn? Perhaps her youngster was the straw that broke the camel's back. No doubt the man had been pestered to the very edge of a nervous breakdown by depredations of the neighborhood children.

Many a time I have seen some little vandal rush on to strangers' lawns and ruthlessly pluck flowers and leaves off plants. Now, when Mrs. J. F.'s baby is only two years old, is the time for her to begin training the little tot to respect the property of other people. A parent's training makes the difference between "that brat down the street" or "that charming, lovely little girl of Mrs. Blank's." ONLOOKER.

ABSENT SENATORS.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 8.—This morning's TRIBUNE reports that 58 senators were in attendance at the opening of the special session to consider the ratification of the London navy limitation treaty. I think it an outrage that every senator wasn't in his place at the opening of this all important session, and I feel that the citizens of this country have a right to demand an explanation of absence from all those who were not in attendance. POLITICIANS SEE TROUBLE AHEAD ON FARM ISSUE

G. O. P. Heads Fear Results of Fall Elections.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—The agricultural issue has again become one of the most acute problems confronting the Hoover administration. With members of the farm board confessing themselves powerless to halt the downward trend of prices and with the board encountering active opposition in its program for a reduction in wheat acreage, Republican campaign managers are fearful that this issue will cause havoc in the fall election and in 1932.

Tuesday will mark the anniversary of the first meeting of the farm board, created by the agricultural marketing act approved by congress on President Hoover's recommendation in the special session called soon after his inauguration. Starting with high hopes of their ability to stabilize prices of wheat at a satisfactory level through loans from an authorized 500 million dollar revolving fund, members of the board now have fallen back on a program reducing crop acreage.

Governor Opposes Plan.

The opposition of Gov. Clyde M. Reed of Kansas to the wheat acreage reduction proposals presented at meetings in that state by Chairman Alexander Legge of the farm board and Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde has made it unlikely that much will be accomplished along that line.

It is Chairman Legge's theory that if the farmers can be induced to participate in coöperative organizations it will be possible eventually through these groups to adjust production to the potential domestic demand. In the meantime, however, the farm situation remains unsatisfactory, and the Democrats and radical Republicans will be able to denounce the administration for failure to provide relief for agriculture.

Affects Hoover's Plans.

The agricultural situation is believed to be an important factor responsible for the uncertainty relative to President Hoover's vacation plans. The President is known to have been advised by a number of western senators that his proposed western trip might tend to stir up unnecessary controversy over the administration's farm relief activities.

BREAK BULKHEAD OF $25,000,000 DETROIT RIVER TUNNEL TODAY

Detroit, Mich., July 13.—(AP)—A bulkhead under Detroit river will be broken through with ceremonies tomorrow afternoon, marking another step toward completion of the $25,000,000 Detroit-Windsor international vehicle tunnel.

The ceremony will be participated in by officials and business men of the two cities and will be broadcast by radio station WWJ. The broadcast is said to be the first in history to originate from under a body of water.

The delegations from the two cities will walk through the shield driven sections of the tunnel until they come to the point where the bulkhead separates them. Talks into microphones will be made and then the bulkhead will be bored through, bringing the cities' representatives together. The main ceremony of speech making will take place then.

The "holing through" will come three years and two days after the first boring test was made. The tunnel is expected to be ready for service early in the fall. It will have a capacity of 1,000 automobiles each way hourly.

This additional means of international movement here will be added to the Ambassador vehicle bridge, a railroad tunnel, two passenger and automobile ferry lines and numerous railroad car ferries.

WOMAN 'MAKES' 5,000 ACRE FARM PAY; TELLS HOW

Warns Against Glutting Market with Crops.

Dodge City, Kas., July 13.—[U. P.]—One of the largest wheat growers in the southwest—a woman—practices a system of reducing production which she thinks may be the salvation of the farmer. She doesn't "overwork" her land.

Mrs. Ida Watkins, who personally supervises a 5,000 acre ranch near Sublette, Kans., today completed a harvest which placed more than 60,000 bushels of grain in her storage bins.

Here's Her System.

Mrs. Watkins practices the system of summer fallowing. Each year a certain portion of her land is plowed and prepared for wheat planting. The grain is never sown, and the ground is allowed to lie idle for a year.

"My experience shows that I get the highest yields from my summer fallow ground," Mrs. Watkins said. "In a way I am cutting down acreage, as a certain portion of the land lies idle each year. However, summer fallow allows a farmer to make use of all his low priced land, all the time."

Mrs. Watkins plans to hold practically all her 1930 crop for better prices—which she thinks are coming within the next few months.

"If all the formers would do the same," she said, "we could 'bull' the price of wheat. Heavy runs of wheat to the terminal markets, even though it is going to be stored, has a depressing influence on the market.

"Wheat is the king of crops in this region. I do not think it fair to ask farmers, especially those with small acreages, to reduce the size of their crop. Wheat is the only cash crop that can be depended upon from year to year.

Knows Her Farm Machinery.

"Kansas is capable of big time production of the best wheat at low cost, due to peculiarities of climate, soil and the widespread use of power machinery. Just as manufacturing industries have become important in the east, so has wheat raising become the big thing in Kansas."

Mrs. Watkins knows wheat and farm machinery. She dons work clothes and goes to the field during harvest to supervise the work of her seven big combines. She not only can run a tractor, but says she can "take a combine apart and put it back together again."

Ohio Shows 15 Per Cent Gain in Census Figures

Columbus, O., July 13.—(AP)—Ohio's population for 1930 is 6,605,953, according to complete unofficial census returns compiled by the Associated Press. This is an increase of 865,275, or about 15 per cent, over 1920, when the population was 5,740,678.

LIVABLE OFFICES WE HAVE PLANNED

SEEKING to furnish his office in the new spirit of careful regard for comfort and culture, he made a small collection of these pedigreed pieces, each built by hand by the Danersk Scotch and English cabinetmakers:—

A Wing chair, copied from the historic original that once belonged to General Heath of Washington's staff.

A long narrow table, of San Domingo mahogany—the original by Duncan Phyfe, eighteenth century American cabinetmaker whose work was so distinguished that many of his pieces have been purchased by the Metropolitan Museum.

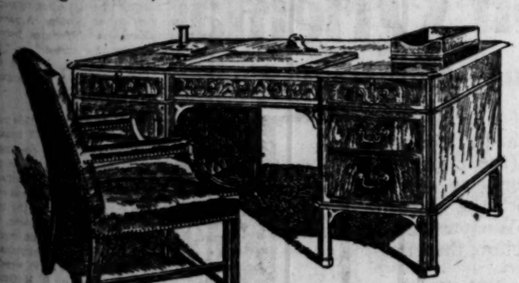
An authoritative copy of the famous Gillingham chair which sold for $8500 at the recent Reifsnyder sale.

A humidor which echoes the appearance of interesting old wine-boxes that once were fashioned by journeymen cabinetmakers for the land-owners of Virginia. Benson & Hedges interior, covered with beautiful burled woods.



Your office furniture, too, can help tell the story of the quality of your wares, the thoroughness of your methods, and the good judgment of your personnel.

Selection is easy in Danersk Furniture. At our showrooms in the Decorative Arts Building we have arranged room after room in such complete fashion that you may see exactly how any piece would look in your own home or office. Because you are dealing direct with the maker, you are enabled to purchase these interesting pieces at no greater cost than furniture less thoughtfully produced.

We cordially invite you to call or to write for our brochure, "The Livable Office."

Tonight: Get Rid of

The New Right Way
THE ENGLISH WAY

To take out the agony—banish all burning, aches and soreness—try the new 1930 way and in an hour your foot troubles are over.

Just put two tablespoonfuls of Radox in a gallon of hot water and soak your feet for 20 minutes—you never had such a joyous, invigorating foot bath in all your life—you can just feel all the acid and poisons coming out of the stuffed up pores of your poor feet.

Do this to-night and to-morrow your feet will be so strong and sturdy and vigorous that you can walk all day long without discomfort.

It's the oxygen in Radox that gets into the thousands of pores of your feet and chases out the poisons that have accumulated there for years—it's these acids and poisons that make your feet ache and burn and nothing in the world will get them out but Radox.

Radox is guaranteed to give anyone flawless feet or money back—and that means painful feet—sweaty feet—corns, bunions and callouses. Get Radox at any drugstore. Read directions.

An Indianapolis man writes: "I only used Radox two times and I have new feet—am on my feet 10 hours a day and am 64 years old. I wouldn't take $10 for my package of Radox if I couldn't get another."

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Son, Turned Red, Despises Him, He Says.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 13.—The church press of the Baltic, especially the Lutheran, Russian Orthodox, and Roman Catholic, continues to publish a department headed "Russia," under which appear letters received by pastors and priests and members of their congregations from relatives and friends in Russia.

Every letter tells a tale of persecution, exile and confiscation, and every one of them appeals for aid; either to help the writer to leave the country, or to send modest packages of food: salt pork, flour, rice, maccaroni, sugar, tea, and grits.

A Typical Letter.

The following is a translation of a letter written by a Lutheran pastor who lives in a German colony on the Volga:

"After a period of development of 2,000 years, the Christian religion is again being attacked by a small group of fanatics who are trying to destroy the belief in God. Here, like in early Roman times, the state is endeavoring to exterminate the Christians. The clergymen are suffering the most. Pastors are expelled from their homes with their families and compelled to live beyond the borders of the towns. Their property is confiscated. Often they are separated from their families, who must be cared for by friends while they are impressed in the forced labor camps of the far northern districts.

"Morals of Monkeys."

"Our physical sufferings, hunger, political oppression and slavery, these are not the worst. More terrible is the destruction of what our souls care for: the wrecked family life, forgotten morality, scorned religion, this is what causes the older generation the most suffering. Our children are taken from us and the state returns them strangers, with the morals of monkeys.

"My son, returned from school, goes over to a neighbor to spend the night with his daughter, who is also corrupted by communism. He spies on my parishioners, trying to find out if they have hidden stores of grain which the authorities can confiscate. He leads the work in corrupting the youth. He is a member of the communists youths' union and refuses to sit at our table because I say grace before our meal of blackbread and sour milk.

"He has been taught to hate me. For me it is an agony which is difficult to bear and it is still more difficult for mother, whom I fear will not last long.

Dictator Stalin's Purpose.

"Stalin, the dictator, has a definite purpose which is linked with the destruction of religion. To establish his large communal farms he must first destroy the morality of the peasants.

"We heard of the storm of protest against the persecution of religion. But it was a tiny storm, a tempest in a teapot, compared to what is necessary in dealing with this thing. Moscow made a gesture and it seemed as though the religious leaders of the world thought the persecutions had stopped. I write to tell you this is not so.

"Ours is a tragedy which the communists are determined to duplicate in other lands for they still believe in a world revolution. The Christian world is guilty if it does nothing. Nations should not close their eyes to our sufferings in fear. We are 100,000,000 million who are gaining a better knowledge of Christ's sufferings.

"We have protested, there have been many uprisings, but each has been suppressed in a more bloody fashion than the last. Communication in Russia is scanty and primitive. We only know and hear what the communists wish us to know and hear. We are denied the right of printing, or free speech and free press. If an uprising occurs a hundred miles away we do not hear of it until the Cheka has stamped it out and then we hear of more executions, more exiles, more families destroyed and dispossessed. We are unable to help ourselves so we await help from abroad."

At the present time we number among our customers 260,274★ families like yours. They have come to us for money to tide them over such emergencies as sickness, an accident, a sudden operation, or past due bills. Many ask how we dare to make loans on the limited security possessed by so many thousands of families. Our answer is that our fifty-two years of experience in lending money has given us faith in the basic integrity and honesty of the American Family. FIREWORKS DEATH LIST RISES TO 8; SCORES INJURED

Highest Toll in Chicago Since 1923.

Chicago's rising tide of July 4 fatalities, that started with a tumult of explosives throughout the city several days before the actual celebration, yesterday reached eight for 1930, with the death of Harry Bulgaris, 19 years old, 1118 George street. The toll is the highest on record since 1923 and possibly since 1917, statistics not being available yesterday for the intervening years.

Two phases of the high cost in human life of this manner of celebrating the Fourth are emphasized by the records. Every life lost was that of a child, or youth, and in every instance the accident that resulted in the fatal injury was caused by fireworks or the use of guns by celebrants.

Many Persons Injured.

Scores of injuries to both young and old have been reported, some of which may yet prove fatal. An effort by the city council to stop the use of fireworks on the Fourth came to nothing when Mayor Thompson failed to sign the necessary ordinance. The list of dead at present is as follows:

James R. Robinson Jr., 10 years old, 1938 South Harvey avenue. Died on June 20 of lockjaw resulting from the explosion of a toy gun.

Wayne Anderson, 3 years old, River road and Touhy avenue. Died on July 4 after eating a "son-uva-gun" from his father's fireworks stand.

Edith Jehesliezen, 6 years old, 1143 South Kedzie avenue. Died on July 6 of burns when her dress caught fire from exploding fireworks.

Hipolet Mizek, 12 years old, 718 Mihwaukee avenue. Died on July 8 of lockjaw from the explosion of a toy pistol.

Wound in Hand Fatal.

At a coroner's inquest on Saturday into the death of the McMahon boy it was revealed that he had walked into the house on July 4 with his hand bleeding, and had been taken immediately to a physicians office for treatment. Antitoxin was administered, but in spite of daily attention lockjaw developed on Friday. He was taken to the county hospital for serum treatment, but died six hours later.

"These seven deaths eloquently testify to the hazard of permitting children and inexperienced persons to use fireworks," declared Charles L. Rice, president of the Chicago safety council, commenting on the tragedies.

"Independence day was made for celebration—not for mourning. We do not allow children to play with dynamite, but on the Fourth they are sold fireworks, which are equally dangerous. The senseless killing and maiming of our children must stop."

RUSSIAN REDS RE-ELECT STALIN TO HIGH POST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 13.—Dictator Joseph Stalin, Russia's "iron man," was reëlected general secretary of the Communist party by the central committee, which held its first sitting as the Communist party's 15th convention closed in Moscow this morning. The convention had re-indorsed Stalin's policy and given him a free hand in the administration of the soviet agreement.

The powerful political bureau inner sanctum of the bolshevist government consists of Commissars Stalin, Voroshilov, Kalinin, Kirov, Kossior, Kaganovich, Kuibyshev, Molotov, Rykov, and Rudzutak. Commissar Bukharin, former head of the comintern, and Commissar Tomski, former president of the Red trade union organizations, were dropped and threatened with expulsion from the party for alleged heresies and attempts to thwart Dictator Stalin's policies.

The surprise of the day was the reëlection of Alexi Rykov to the bureau because of his activities in the right wing opposition. His reëlection assures his retention as premier. Commissar of Labor Uglanov sustained a double defeat, losing out as alternate member of the political bureau, as well as his membership on the central committee.

Father of Southern Cross' Navigator Dies in Dublin

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 13.—(AP)—Thomas Saul, father of Capt. J. Patrick Saul, navigator of the airplane Southern Cross on its trans-Atlantic flight from Ireland to America, died here yesterday. He was 87 years old.

Why Fat Folks Stay Fat

"The trouble with me, and I guess this applies to 99% of the men and women who are putting on weight, I didn't have the energy or 'pep' to keep it off. Lost all interest in any healthy activity and just lazed around accumulating the old pounds until I got that 'Kruschen feeling.'"

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result, instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition—you get the needful exercise.

Be careful of the foods you eat—then watch the pounds slide off!

Kruschen Salts are the un-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at any progressive druggist anywhere in the world.

VETERANS TOLD HOW NEW RELIEF PLAN OPERATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Thousands of world war veterans will receive their first benefits or additional compensation from the new amendments to the law governing the veterans' bureau, according to a statement today by Capt. Herman H. Weimer of Chicago, recently elected national commander of the Disabled American Veterans.

"Provision is made," said Capt. Weimer, "for the disability allowance to any honorably discharged veteran who saw service at least ninety days during the world war, and who entered the service prior to the armistice. These allowances are on the following scale—25 per cent permanent disability, $12.00 per month; 50 per cent permanent disability, $18.00 per month; 75 per cent permanent disability, $25.00 per month; total permanent disability, $40.00 per month. These benefits start from the date of application and in no case are retroactive. Persons paying income tax are not eligible for this particular allowance.

May Make a Choice.

"Veterans are permitted to elect between the disability allowance and compensation in case they are eligible for both, but in no case shall any one person draw both benefits at the same time.

"Independent of any other compensation, veterans who suffered the loss of the use of a creative organ, or a foot or a hand, as a result of injury received prior to Nov. 11, 1918, shall receive $25.00 per month.

"In the case of the expeditionary forces in Russia, the dates for this benefit shall extend to April 1, 1920.

"Payments of compensation in all cases of hospitalized insane veterans who have no dependents shall be stopped when their estates equal $3,000.

Arrested Tubercular Cases.

"A minimum rating of permanent partial 25 per cent shall prevail for all cases of arrested tuberculosis. Contrary to a widespread opinion this provision does not disturb the $50 statutory award for arrested tuberculosis, but was inserted in the law in order that a man who had two or more disabilities, one of which was arrested tuberculosis, should receive the benefit of the combined rating that would give them higher than the $50 per month, the bureau policy being to drop arrested tuberculosis to zero on the rating table after twenty-four mouths of complete arrest.

"The time limit for application for compensation and presentation of proof is removed. Prior to enactment of this amendment the limit for application and proof was April 6, 1930."

The Nine Hundred Block

BY KATHARINE HAVILAND TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS.

To the nine hundred block, with its sordid dwellings, moved gentle, lovely Theresa Ames and her divorced and remarried mother, Mrs. Colt, under the watchful eye of Mrs. Baum, neighborhood gossip. Theresa makes friends with Katie Warner, who lives upstairs, and F. Jones, a reporter; also Johnny Deane, who left a home of wealth to make good for the girl to whom he now regrets he is engaged. He has found employment painting automobiles. Theresa does typing at home to support herself and her mother. Mrs. Colt encourages Billy Treadway, a rich bachelor beau of her girlhood, in his attentions to Theresa. Johnny Deane takes Theresa to the movies. On their way they meet Katie and her new beau.

INSTALLMENT VII.

YOUNG ROMANCE.

Katie nudged Theresa with a confiding elbow. "Take notice to him," she advised in a raw whisper, "in the uniform. Ain't he got elegant limbs? He waxes his mustache, too. O, boy!"

Johnny roared. He couldn't help it. Theresa's lips twitched. Katie didn't mind. She giggled consciously; "Ain't love somethin' fierce?" she questioned. It was her parting shot.

Theresa did not feel that love could be "fierce," for, very young, she saw it as an insurance against misery and cold of any form. The fact that one could be torn by love; agonized by love, and love without wanting to love, she was yet to learn.

She stood shivering at the side while he bought the tickets. She decided that he must have "gone out a great deal" because he did it so easily. She was always fearful of dropping a coin or doing something "silly like that," to make people stare and realize—that she had "hardly been anywhere."

"All set," he said easily, joining her. He realized suddenly that he hadn't had half the kick from his first run in the high power boat that his father had given him on his eighteenth birthday that he had from this—going to a picture show with her.

They settled to the side and rather well back during the newsreel which had taken up jungle life for the benefit of public intelligence. Theresa sat stiffly conscious; she was dreadfully afraid the monkeys would begin to hunt fleas or something "terribly embarrassing like that," but they didn't. Then the advertisements for future "showings" flashed on the screen and Johnny hadn't meant to—he had warned himself that he must not—but his hand fumbled for Theresa's. He found it, warm and rather nervous, and finding it he couldn't let it go.

"I—I don't think we ought to," she whispered.

"O, please!" he begged, voice almost harsh. Her heart was beating so hard that she knew it would be betrayed by a shaking voice with further remonstrance. And after a moment—she didn't care. She even tightened her fingers on his.

Mrs. Colt opened the door abruptly. "I thought I heard you," she said, too levelly.

"My gosh, but—you're sweet——" he whispered. He moved until his shoulder touched hers. He had vowed to himself that he wouldn't do that, either. He wished he never had before. Blindly he stared at the screen. Then he looked down. She was looking up. He drew a deep, uncertain breath. She looked quickly away.

They had hot chocolate at Lambert's pharmacy coming home. Mr. Lambert, who looked rather sleepy, served them. He said that there were five feet of snow in Montana. And Johnny said that winter was coming all right. Then Mr. Lambert said that the squirrels in Norway park had been gathering a large supply of nuts and that they had acquired thick coats and that everybody said it was going to be a real old time humdinger of a winter. After that there was silence.

"I hope you won't be tired for your work tomorrow," said Theresa, looking up and then down, quite quickly and because it was difficult to meet his questioning, hungry eyes.

"I won't be," Johnny answered as he realized that, with the help he was ready to give, the top of her golden head would rest against his upper vest pocket. He stifled an inclination to a deep, unsteadily drawn breath. (Her eyelashes were "wonderful," but it was more than the way she—looked; her skin so delicately tinted; not that that really mattered . . . she was so soft, young, fragile, sweet! So kind to Katie; so sporting about her work; so white . . . the best—the best he'd ever known.)

"It did me good!" she stated, uneasily. Something about the moment was making her "sort of nervous" and yet "terribly happy!"

"We must go again——" he said in a drugged, slow voice.

Now she spoke quickly; the necessity of discharging a real message often makes glibness, where but stammers have been before: "That would be nice, Mr. Deane," she said, "but we can be friends without your taking me places. I don't want to spend people's money all the time; I really don't!"

He said in a highly charged undertone, "Gosh—I never met any one like you!" Frankly, and from having to, he drew a deep, unsteadily inhaled breath and he leaned toward her. Theresa's breast echoed the rise of his and her "wonderful lashes" shielded, with sudden flutter, her deep, violet eyes.

Mrs. Colt opened the door abruptly. "I thought I heard you," she said too levelly. Icicles . . . and suddenly cold within as well as without, that did not know anything of him; that much was true, and—he had held her hand. But—she couldn't regret it—as she should. And he'd said she was sweet. She appraised herself in a watery swimming mirror. Was she sweet? Really sweet?

"And of course, dear, as mother has said before, one can't be too careful——"

Her mother was crawling into bed, Theresa knew without turning; the spring squeaked.

"Now mother knows Mr. Treadway; a real gentleman——" (Flip-flop; her mother was settled) "who has, in this town, a reputation for——" (And he had said, Theresa remembered, that he had never met any one like her.) "I've been thinking about your corduroy, dear," her mother went on after some rambling, "and I feel you should have a really good dress——"

Theresa turned to the woman who had always bragged of the fact that she had "no money sense——"

"I can't possibly get it, mother," she said wearily. "I'll not do much more than make enough this month for next month's rent and I don't want to spend all the insurance——"

After an hour her mother's breathing grew regular and Theresa did not have to pretend to sleep. Why had he blurted out, "Dear!" when she had whispered, gazing on the screen. "Just imagine seeing—a real garden like that; you can't quite—believe they exist!"

And why had he looked at her that way when she said the Venetian restaurant was nice but that she hadn't gone often there, because it was expensive"? She couldn't quite make him—out.

Suddenly in the dark she held the hand he had held against her cheek. Then shamed by this, she tucked it, in a surviving-childhood sleep gesture, under her pillow. Then—she didn't care—again she held it—this time boldly against her cheek.

Billy Treadway, the next day, had a long session with his rarely efficient cook. "I want the dinner to be unusually nice, Agnes," he stated heavily, fussily; and with Agnes he considered the vital question of whether pears or pineapple should be cooked with the lamb and pears won by a neck, or a stem. Mint sauce or mint jelly? (Life, so difficult!) A fruit cup; a clam bouillon with a dash of salted whipped cream on this. Corn pudding; Brussels sprouts; chestnuts; avacado with lemon juice; Agnes knew he wanted the avacados to stand a full hour in the lemon juice? Agnes did know. Ah, yes, Meadowbrook cocktails with the olives wrapped in strips of bacon on the diamonds of toast. Hot, those. Billy, himself, would attend to the cocktails.

Agnes eyed him testingly. Who was coming? Why all the to-do? Her lined old face was growing stiff. Her gaze, defensive, suspicious, hard.

Camembert; Roquefort; bent crackers, split, toasted, hot. A date pudding with wine sauce. The Pol Roger instead of the usual Sauterne. Coffee in the drawing room; the Dresden service; Chartreuse or Port? Olives and celery; ripe olives. Would it be better to omit the cheeses and end with a savory? Individual welsh rarebits? ("Dear, dear," Billy thought, "it's all so baffling!") And did Agnes think addition would be made by a guava ice?

Agnes went back to the kitchen, her steps as heavy as her heart.

Good morning!

Lawful larceny! "And what might that be?" you ask.

Well, do you know, I'm not going to tell you. The picture at Woods' is too charming, too amusing, too clever to have tales out of school whispered about it. It shall not lose entertainment for YOU by having the bloom rubbed off its secrets by me.

Here is a "drawing room" drama with a good, healthy punch in its soft and shapely glove. The story told, of a shrewd, beautiful and good woman who finds herself pitted against a shrewd, beautiful and bad one, is thrown against a background of luxury. Men are important in the action—but only as puppets. Yes, even Lowell Sherman! How good HE is going when Bebe Daniels throws sand on his little skating rink! Some actor this Mr. Sherman who, please note, also directed this piece. Some director!

"Lawful Larceny" is splendidly cast. Bebe Daniels does magnificent work and the other players aren't far behind her in excellence. Situations are electric. Dialogue snaps. Photography, sound and staging are all one could ask. There's class to this program number. It hasn't a dull nor clumsy moment.

Gen. Ballington Booth Flag Dedication Waits Cooler Michigan Day

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 13.—[Special.]—Gen. Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America, with headquarters in Chicago, accompanied by a party of thirty officers and workers, spent the week-end in St. Joseph and Benton Harbor. The object of this visit was a flag pole dedication at the fresh air camp maintained by the Volunteers of America near Benton Harbor. Gen. Booth talked twice here Sunday. The camp is crowded this year owing to unemployment. The camp has grown from tents to fifteen furnished cottages, an administration building, recreation hall, dining room and first aid room. The bathing beach stretches below a high bluff. Chicago mothers and families are cared for in groups of 100 each during July and August. Mr. and Mrs. George Lawton are in charge.

On account of intense heat the flag raising services were postponed until tomorrow. Gen. Booth addressed a large gathering this morning at the Methodist Peace temple here and another throng tonight in St. Joseph's M. E. church.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

The Answers.

Miss Amelia Reuter, 6251 Blackstone avenue, stenographer.—I'm inclined to believe the facial expression is that of his father's. If he looks like his father when he grows up, he will be a handsome man. Here's hoping he has the intelligence of both his parents. Then we should see a superman who would startle the world even more than his dad did.

G. W. Wythe, 6321 Kenmore avenue, author.—I think the baby has his mother's nose. The pictures I saw in the papers gave me the impression the boy resembles his mother. If it be true then he probably would choose to become the writer of books or articles for magazines. If he had his father's features and acquired his habits the boy probably would become an adventurer.

Miss Esther Haab, Valparaiso, Ind., secretary.—I think Lindy junior resembles his mother; he has her coloring and nose. But it really doesn't matter how he looks. With his background he'd get by, if he looked like Lon Chaney. Naturally he is the most talked of baby in the country. Every one will be interested to see how he matures, whom he marries, etc.

T. J. Hartigan, Jr., 4951 Maypole avenue, clerk.—I think he generally resembles his father; his father's eyes but a short nose like his mother's. He no doubt will be tall and slender like his dad. He might even become President of the United States some day.

Miss Bernice Hughart, 302 Morgan street, Valparaiso, Ind.—I think Charles junior is the exact image of his mother. His face is that of Anne Morrow Lindbergh. That would give us reason to believe he will be a very studious youth, becoming a doctor or lawyer. He also might be an art student and a lover of music.

Simple Life Really Lived in the Desert

But That Was 25,000 Years Ago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—The Logan African expedition returned today from the northern Sahara desert, where its seventeen members have been digging into four campsites believed to be the earliest home of ancient man. They brought with them the skeletons of thiray persons, each more than 25,000 years old, and the word that these prehistoric fellows were peaceful nomads who lived on a diet of snails, never fought, even among themselves, made no pottery, tilled no farms, and owned no domestic animals.

Alonzo W. Pond, leader of the Logan expedition of Beloit college, fourteen students of Beloit and the universities of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Northwestern, Mrs. Pond and George L. Waite, photographer, made up the party. They arrived here aboard the President Roosevelt after three months work in the desert. The expedition, financed by Frank G. Logan, vice president of the Chicago Art institute and founder of Logan museum, for the first time is using college students, who were permitted to do their college work in the field with full credit for the time away from school.

"We explored four 25,000 year old campsites," said Mr. Pond this afternoon, "sifting an average of 240 cubic feet of pre-historic ashes a day by means of eight trenches. We took thirty skeletons from the excavations. Half of the skeletons were found in an undisturbed layer of snail shells and hearth sites, indicating they were bones of original dwellers there.

"The presence of flint tools with the bodies indicated the existence of some sort of ceremony connected with the dead. The other skeletons appeared to be about as old as the soil from which they were dug and probably were left there by the tribes which followed the builders of the prehistoric mounds in southern Algeria not far from Canrobert. It is likely that the members of this tribe merely abandoned their dead where they fell.

"Nowhere did we find the slightest evidence of cannibalism," continued Mr. Pond. "These ancient folks of the high plateau country were peaceful nomads who lived largely on snails and such small animals as they could ensnare. We found no implements of a warlike nature such as arrows, spears or daggers. We did find thousands of fragments of flint which were used by these prehistoric men. They appeared to be fashioned into instruments for cutting and scraping bone, wood and skins. Small flint drills for piercing skins indicated the prehistoric men knew how to sew.

"One of our most interesting specimens is a human radius which served as a tool for working flint. Such use of a human bone is rare, only one other ever having been discovered on previous Logan African expeditions.

"We brought back skeleton parts of hundreds of animals which will be studied to determine the kind of animals abounding in northern Africa in the stone age. A great deal of charcoal also was collected to enable botanists to tell something of the forests and plant life of that era. All materials gathered will be divided equally between the government museum at Algiers and Logan museum at Beloit, Wis."

Fragments of ostrich eggshells, highly decorated with geometric designs, were found, the explorer said. No pieces large enough to show a complete design were uncovered. Ostrich shell beads made from small sea shells, brought from the coast a hundred miles away, were discovered.

Thus far the Logan expeditions have uncovered 75 habitation sites in the Sahara. They all have been found, Mr. Pond said, on the banks of ancient creeks, many of which have been dry for centuries.

"This trip," said the explorer, "we worked a region that was inhabited by one race of people whose material culture underwent some development during the period they lived there. They seemed to have had little contact with the snail eaters several hundred miles farther west, which we studied in 1927. Undoubtedly the two groups reached the northern plateau by different routes from the Sahara and developed along different lines."

Mr. Pond believes that Africa and not Asia was the earliest home of ancient man, and that these nomad snail eaters link up with the prehistoric folks of South Africa.

Young Lutherans Are Called Upon to Fight Atheism

Cleveland, O., July 13.—(AP)—A call to young Lutherans throughout the world to "contend for the faith" was made here today by the Rev. O. C. Kreinheder, president elect of Valparaiso university, at the opening service of the International Walther League convention.

Approximately ten thousand persons attended the services held in observance of the four hundredth anniversary of the Augsburg confession.

The Rev. Mr. Kreinheder warned that "atheism is marshaling its forces" and that "churchmen argue that we must rationalize our creed," but "we must fight for the faith with the word of God."

Business sessions of the convention will open tomorrow. Among the resolutions will be one recommending that the Walther league sponsor radio addresses. The delegates will elect officers Tuesday.

"VIVE LA FRANCE" KEYNOTE SOUNDED TO RECALL BASTILLE

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Bastille day was celebrated twenty-four hours in advance at Ravinia yesterday, with many visual as well as auditory indications that it was a day of French music.

French and American flags joined their colors in the theater and on the grounds, program girls wore the gayly hued clothing and complex headgear of the French provinces, and the musical programs were from the pens of French composers.

Eric DeLamarter and the Chicago Symphony orchestra presented part of Milhaud's symphony, "Le Printemps," with other compositions by Massenet, De Bussy and Chabrier. John Welcher gave a brilliant performance of Saint-Saëns' "Rondo Capriccioso" for violin solo and was called back to play the "Meditation" from "Thais." Leon Rothier came before the orchestra and put an altogether uncommon degree of eloquence into "La Marseillaise."

After the intermission Charles Lagourgue and La Chorale Française took the stage to sing four groups of songs, old French, modern French, American, and at the end the French and American anthems.

French music continued into the evening, for the opera performance was a repetition of the joyous and comic "Marouf." There was no change in details of that performance; in fact, none would be desirable. It is hard to imagine how any alteration could be made without detriment to what is now a perfect bit of art.

World Heeds Moral Forces of U. S., He Says

Moral strength, rather than armament of the land, seas or air is the basis of American leadership in international affairs, said Bishop James B. Baker of Seoul, Corea. He spoke last night at the 71st annual Des Plaines camp meeting of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Bishop Baker formerly was head of the Wesley foundation at the University of Illinois. He condemned "the prominent newspaper editor who suggested that we tell other nations to mind their own business, while we look after our affairs and that a three power pact for us is military preparedness."

Church union is advancing rapidly in the orient, he asserted. He pointed to the coöperation between the Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal churches in Corea, saying that ultimately it will mean union of those churches among their converts there. That united church gradually will sever relationship and end dependence upon the churches in America, he stated, and a national Corean Christian church will be the result.

Bishop Baker told of the native Coreans who gradually are being placed in church executive offices, saying practically all of the minor offices are filled by native ministers.

Today is "preachers day" at the camp meeting. The Rev. Harlow V. Holt, pastor of the Washington Boulevard Methodist Episcopal church, Oak Park, is the chairman of the activities of the day. He announced that the morning devotional service will be led by the Rev. Dr. E. E. Higley, Park Ridge and that Prof. Lewis H. Crisman, visiting professor at Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, from the West Virginia Wesleyan college will give a lecture on "The preacher and the deeper currents of modern life."

Yesterday afternoon tribute was paid to the memory of the late Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Carwardine, both of whom died since the last camp meeting. The Rev. Mr. Carwardine was for many years the church editor of a Chicago morning paper.

Retain Old Customs.

KAIJO, Chosen. [Songdo, Corea.], July 13.—Twenty years ago, Aug. 29, 1910, the ancient "Hermit Kingdom" of Corea was annexed by Japan, but the people of Kaijo are scarcely aware of that. The present population of Kaijo is 50,000, of which only 1,500 are Japanese, and the city gives very little evidence of the changes which have occurred in this country in the last two decades.

For the residents of this district still dwell in the days when Kaijo was known as Songdo, and when Songdo was the capital of all Corea. That period ended in 1384, when the Yi dynasty came into power and moved the capital to Seoul, but in all the 550 years of the Yi kings, the people of Songdo always looked on them as usurpers.

Today, under Japanese rule, both old Songdo and old Seoul have passed away and the cities of Kaijo and Keijo have taken their places.

Kaijo and Keijo are but 45 miles away from each other, an hour and a half on the main railroad line. Keijo is the capital of the country and in appearance and spirit it is enterprising and cosmopolitan.

Kaijo also is noted for its fine native wines, an extensive peach crop, and a large factory for making the famous cotton Corean cloth. The city also has a school for 1,000 girls, maintained by American missionaries, and a juvenile prison for 760 boys, maintained by the government.

Like students of all Corean schools, every pupil went out of the mission school on strike last winter during the student uprisings. Some of the girls were kept in jail nearly a month because they refused to recant their independence demonstrations.

The juvenile prison is one of the most modern of its kind in the world. All of the boys are taught some trade and an effort is made to place them in suitable jobs when they are released.

Margaret Lynde Studies Flying at Sky Harbor

BY THALIA

Aviation has a new and fervent enthusiast, Miss Margaret Emily Lynde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Lynde of Winnetka, one of last winter's debutantes. She is exhibiting no dilettante interest in flying, but is studying with purpose that should result in her being a highly capable aviatrix. She has taken a job as secretary to Maj. George Fisher at the Sky Harbor airport. In exchange for her services, she is receiving a thorough course of instruction.

Bright and early each morning she appears at the field and her program each day includes a session in the air. She is practicing in three different planes, a monoplane, one of the regular student instruction biplanes, and one of the large Great Lakes training planes. Her progress has been such that she has expectations of achieving her first solo flight and securing her pilot's license in about 3 weeks more. Ultimately she is to have a plane of her own.

Miss Lynde is foregoing a vacation trip on which her parents and her brother, Samuel Adams Lynde II, are to go on in August. She will remain on the job while they are at Lake Tamagami in Ontario, Canada.

Chicago women spending the summer at Lawsonia Country club on Green Lake, Wis., or at nearby resorts are assisting in preparations for a sale to be held at the clubhouse next Friday and Saturday for the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins. A group of members of the society, including Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Henry C. Murphy, Mrs. Orville Taylor, and Mrs. Charles H. Dennis will go up to officiate at the affair.

Lake Forest jottings—Mrs. Edward K. Welles has gone out to Santa Barbara, Cal., for a short visit with her mother, Mrs. John W. Scott. Miss Martha Sarver has been elected the new president of the Lake Forest League of Women Voters, and others of the new officers are Mrs. R. E. Pugh, first vice president; Mrs. George W. Blossom Jr., second vice president; Mrs. Stuart A. Prosser, third vice president; Mrs. George Richardson, fourth vice president; and Mrs. L. Dunlop Smith, Mrs. Kenneth Templeton, Miss Catherine Colvin, and Mrs. John Richards, directors. Mrs. Van Wagenen Ailing has returned to her residence after an operation at Alice Home hospital.

Albert D. Dick Jr. has returned from the east where he went with Mrs. Dick, Helen, and Albert III., and his family is remaining for the summer. Rosamond Baker, daughter of the Edward L. Bakers, is visiting classmates in the east.

Mrs. Haldeman Finnie, the former Isabella Holt, and her 4 youngsters, Janet, David, Donald, and Robert, are paying a visit to Mrs. Holt's mother, Mrs. Charles S. Holt, in Lake Forest. The Finnies live in Detroit. Mrs. Finnie has written two novels, "The Marriotts and the Powells" and "The Low Road." She is to turn out still another book in the near future.

Mrs. Alfred Edwards of Summit, N. J., and her children, Gertrude and Carter, are visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Atkin of Winnetka, for an extended stay. Miss Adelaide Atkin has returned from a visit at Northfield, Mass., and Miss Margot Atkin is a member of a house party at Northport Point, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hollis of 232 East Walton place, have departed for a summer trip of 2 months in Europe.

A group of water colors from the Charles Deering collection is being shown for the first time this month in the Children's room at the Art institute. They are by Carl Larsson, the Swedish painter, and depict incidents in the lives of Swedish children. Among other new gifts to the institute is a case of Greek and Roman coins presented by W. F. Dunham and Martin A. Ryerson.

Miss Helen Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell of Hubbard Woods, has returned from a month's visit in the east. Her sister Frances is spending the summer in France and Miss Margaret Bell, the youngest member of the family, is to be with Miss Barbara Bersbach at a camp in Vermont until September.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Creath Ammons have departed after a visit in Chicago to continue their tour of America. They are to return to Paris, where they have resided of recent years, late in August.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Lord are at the Chicago club at Charlevoix, Mich., for the summer. The John P. Wilsons joined the colony there last week. Mrs. Wilson is to remain for part of the summer and Mr. Wilson will go up for occasional week-ends.

Yelled Too Soon.

I received a letter asking me to call for an interview regarding a secretarial position. I was afraid I'd be late for the appointment if I took the street car, so decided to drive down in my car. A few blocks from my destination I collided with another car driven by a man, and although I was to blame, I yelled at him. Upon my arrival at the office I was given an application blank to fill out, and this was taken into a private office. A short time later the young lady who had taken my application appeared and told me she was sure I would be hired as her employer thought favorably of my application. Imagine my embarrassment when I walked into that private office and discovered the 'Boss' was the man I had yelled at a short while ago. Needless to say I did not get the job. N. K. C.

Insurance Clerk Leaves Collection of Fine Chinese Textiles

The donor, William Christian Paul, died last January at the age of 57. He was unmarried.

Mr. Paul's gift, Priest said, makes "the Metropolitan museum collection of Chinese textiles the best in any museum in the world, with the exception of the Imperial Palace museum of Peking."

The collection was started in 1908 and contains many rare designs unobtainable since the revolution of 1914. The 1,065 pieces of textiles date back to the 16th century.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Johnny's parent had put their house up for sale and he often heard his mother tell prospective purchasers that it was much roomier inside than the outside would lead one to believe.

When his aunt invited him for a birthday supper he was immoderate in the consumption of ice cream and cake and she gently remonstrated, "Johnny, you are too little to eat so much."

"O, no," he replied, "I'm much bigger inside than you'd think by the outside of me. E. S.

Grandpa, who is a little hard of hearing, used to tell Betty that if she prayed for anything she's get it, which always was true for Betty as grandpa usually supplied what she asked.

Betty wanted a new doll carriage and was praying loud and earnestly for it when her brother said, "Betty, you don't have to pray so loud. God isn't deaf."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, July 13.—"His majesty is studying for his exams," apologizes a blond little maid to reporters who rang the bell at the door of a quaint chateau near Brussels late in June to call on Otto of Hapsburg, 17 year old pretender to the throne of Austria and Hungary, and eldest son of the late ex-emperor Charles of Austria.

Cramming for his law exams, Archduke Otto had locked himself up in a small study in one of the five towers of his chateau of Steenockerzeel. He refused to see any one except the servants who brought him his meals. Though the chateau does not belong to Otto, he, his mother Zita, ex-empress of Austria and ex-queen of Hungary, and his seven brothers and sisters are allowed to reside there indefinitely as guests of the Belgian Marquis de Croix.

Two gentlemen guarded Otto's study in watchdog fashion; one is an Austrian count who has been with the Hapsburg family since 1922; the other a Hungarian general of greatly martial appearance. Both denied Otto had time for anything but his textbooks. After his first semester at Louvain university, where he was known as "duke of Basle," fellow students like him.

"Ridiculous, fantastic," his two guardians termed all reports of an alleged plot to put the young Hapsburg heir on the Hungarian throne next November when he will be eighteen.

They denied there was any truth to a sensational story in a Czech daily alleging that Otto will triumphantly return, Carol of Rumania fashion, backed by an army of Belgian students and young Italian Fascists.

"This suggests Czech imagination," the Austrian count said with undisguised contempt. "The story is full of errors. Of course, such news would come from the French press." Then, referring to the treaty of Trianon which sliced the Austro-Hungarian empire, giving a generous piece of it to and thus creating the nation of Czecho-Slovakia, he added: "The Czechs are afraid. It's they who have gobbled down most of our land. Now they can't digest it."

"We are neither interested in nor dream of a putsch," said the Hungarian general as mouthpiece of young Otto of Hapsburg. "Her majesty the Empress and Queen Zita, who enjoys the most generous hospitality of Belgium, would not abuse it by taking any part in plots of that sort."

Hungarian visitors, Otto's aids explain, come to Steenockerzeel all the time to show they are faithful and devoted to Zita, whom they still regard as their sovereign. But their visits imply no plotting.

FARM AND GARDEN
BY PAUL POTTER

How far will a bee travel for a load of honey nectar? The United States department of agriculture recently ascertained that the diligence of the bee is beyond question. They sometimes will fly as far as eight miles in a quest for flowers.

Irrigated alfalfa in a Wyoming community was found to be virtually the only source of honey, so the investigators placed hives of bees as far as eight miles from the alfalfa blooms, then found that the insects made daily trips and returned with nectar to fill the hives. Under such circumstances, it is estimated, a single pound of honey would represent 18,000 trips of 16 miles each or a total of 300,000 miles of flight by the bees.

Some members of the colonies failed to return home from their voyages to the alfalfa. Sand storms and headwinds deterred them. When laden with honey many were forced to alight and rest on the trip home. After reaching the hives they often made abnormal landings and frequently failed to alight at the entrance of the hive.

Kittens and Little Girls Both Insist They Must Grow Up

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A booklet on Sex Education will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Several mothers have written me in real distress lately. They have found that their fifteen year old daughters are showing signs of being romantic, sentimental—of having an ardent interest in boys.

"Only a little while ago she seemed still to be my little girl, and now I feel as if I were losing her. And she hasn't talked about any of this with me. I'm so 'upset,'" is their feeling. "What would you do?"

Girls vary a great deal in the age at which they wake up to this sort of interest in boys. They may play along with them for years as just pals. Then suddenly the other sort of interest springs into existence.

I know one girl who scarcely knew there was a boy in the world until suddenly, at fifteen, her family moved and she came into social contact with several young men four or five years older than herself. Almost over night she grew up, and boys were very much part of the landscape in her life from that time on. It was a striking and sudden change.

If your daughter has suddenly blossomed out, there is nothing to be gained by fighting off the evil day, as it seems to you. The fact that you have known nothing about her change of feelings shows that she senses your attitude toward her of being still a little girl.

They will grow up. And when this interest in boys awakens, the wisest thing to do is to accept it. In many ways you will still have your little daughter. All through adolescence daughters are a touching mixture of little girl and woman, and sons of little boy and man.

They sometimes don't know which they are themselves—man or boy, woman or girl. It is up to us fathers and mothers to meet each side of them—one moment, little girl—the next moment, woman—one moment, little boy—the next moment, man—with love and understanding, but surely admitting their new independence so they will not need to assert it defiantly.

Paris Dances in White Chiffon and Diamonds

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Bois de Boulogne, at this moment, is the scene of dancing fashions. When the hoi polloi have left the paper-strewn glades of this famous wood and gone home to their soup, and when the darkness turns Chateau Madrid and Armenonville into electric-lit fairylands, the smart world comes out to dine and dance.

The frocks of the women, no less than the shaded lights, make the dance floor a moving rainbow of color. One sees all the shades, and particularly the pastel tones, but the most distinguished dancing dresses are those that are all white, without a flash of color, and touched up by diamonds.

There's a way to apply the diamond touch this summer. It is a smart whim of the season to wear no necklace. A sparkler is applied in the form of a pin on the shoulder, or a diamond clip at the back of the décolleté, or a buckle at the waistline and on the slippers.

The most fashionable dancing frocks remind you that the Greek influence is potent in Paris fashions, and the best of these modern Greek dresses are in white. Our sketch shows a dancing frock à la Grecque all in white chiffon and with diamonds applied in the best manner.

This dress has the draped Greek bodice, and from the shirred armholes two winged panels are hung to carry the suggestion of the classic a bit further. There is a straight skirt of white chiffon, flaring a trifle toward the hem, and over this are placed four floating panels of white chiffon, shirred in reversed triangles from hips to waistline. Two are placed at the front of the skirt and two at the back. The belt has a diamond buckle and the slippers are trimmed with tiny diamond flowers.

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The center front buttoned closing of this capecoat frock dates its recent arrival from Paris, and the rever neckline with the notched collar adds a sportive air. If you are slender you will want to wear the belt at the higher waistline, while for the mature figure the normal waistline is better. Buddha yellow shantung is smart for town or resort wear, and aqua-blue flat washable silk crêpe, dusty pink pique and silk crêpe in an emerald green and white print are smart suggestions.

The pattern, 2661, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Tight Fitting Gowns Only Make Stout Women Seem Fat

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In reducing via the clothes route, as some good reducing is conducted, a mistake is frequently made by women of weight in having their clothes fitted so closely that their width, breadth and thickness are distinctly emphasized.

A rule about good dressing is that one must not look as if clothes were not large enough. From hat to shoes, a well dressed woman gives the appearance of ease about the feature confined. Hats that are tight affect the brow's smoothness, and crowded shoes affect the whole system, in addition to the apparance of the foot.

When I see one of those figures that are encased in a dress or suit to bursting point I think of gelatins and the procedure one has to go through to remove them in one piece from the container. I wonder if the woman will have to be stuck under hot water for a minute to help ease her out of the frock.

Stout women so frequently have this look and they, above all other women, should not have it. You do not attain the neater silhouette by straining on the seams of the exterior layer. Neither, of course, is the weighty one supposed to look loose and afloat in a sea of billows. But she should never look too large for her clothes.

Faces that are too large for the hats worn with them are seen with the popularity of the brimless turban. A bit of brim often would give just the slenderness to the cheek that is becoming. The overflowing foot is seen more often, really. Wads of fat pouring over vamp or strap aren't agreeable sights. A bit more room in the shoes and this excess flesh could be neatly disposed of.

Sleeves are another feature that are pressed into the most strenuous service in the interest of reducing by the clothes route. Yet a sleeve that defines sharply the heavy arm outline is more fattening than one in which the arm is permitted to move with ease.

Another dress feature that the stouts or getting that way folk should shy clear of is the two piece frock with its broken line right where the figure is thickest. Circular designs and lines should be eschewed, i. e., rounded neck lines, large round beads, large round dots, round toes, and so on.

Food Talk.

Egg plant is another excellent vegetable that thousands of cooks know little about. Just the other day a good housewife confided in me thus: "I buy one egg plant each year. A large one makes enough for two meals. The first time I serve it my family seems to enjoy it fairly well, but they never eat it with the enthusiasm they do a lot of other vegetables. The next day when I serve the remainder they tell me they are tired of it." Then she sighed, "There is no use buying it."

A little hesitantly I asked, "How do you prepare your egg plant?"

And without hesitation she replied: "The only way I know how. I cut it into thick slices, soak it in salted water to take out the bitterness and then dip it in egg and crumbs or egg and flour and fry it."

This housewife's method of cooking egg plant is a good one, but the best of ways persisted in sooner or later grows tiresome. What she needs to do to make her family wax enthusiastic over egg plant is to give it to them in a variety of ways.

One of the secrets of keeping the family happy and interested in the three meals is to put a little surprise into at least one food each day. Do not be afraid of doing a few unheard of things, and take the trouble now and then to make something fancy. Make the ordinarily disliked food look as nice as possible and then be sure that it tastes as good as it looks.

A little experimenting on seasonings and combinations will soon give you confidence that you have just about as much genius for inventing new and pleasing ways of serving food as any average woman. Here is a new recipe that will be a good starter for your experimental cookery with egg plant.

EGG PLANT RECIPE.

STUFFED EGG PLANT

2 hard cooked eggs
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper

Parboil the egg plant in slightly salted water for 20 minutes. Remove from stove and cool long enough to make it easy to handle. Cut the egg plant in halves lengthwise. Scoop out the fleshy part. Put through the food chopper. Mix the chopped egg plant with the minced hard boiled eggs, butter, salt and pepper. Fill the hollow shells with the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) in a pan one-fourth full of hot water for thirty minutes. Ten minutes before removing from the oven sprinkle the grated cheese over the top.

Precautions.

This is a simple yet delightful way of serving egg plant. However, there are a few steps which must be carefully taken to be sure of success. During the process of parboiling do not prick the flesh with a fork to see how tender it has become. When the flesh is removed from the rind be careful not to cut too closely to the rind.

A margin of one-half inch will be sufficient to insure a shell firm enough to support the mixture properly. Lastly, the egg plant should be run through the food chopper as rapidly as possible to prevent excessive discoloration.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

G. L.: CLEANLINESS IS MOST important in the care of perspiring feet. Not only must the feet be bathed daily but stockings and shoes should be changed daily. Dust the feet with powdered alum or baking soda, putting some in the shoes and stockings.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Request from Sunday School.

"It has occurred to me that your column may be the means of assisting us in our work with the children of the northwest side. We are working in a small Sunday school and church, undenominational, and due to lack of funds, are unable to provide some necessary equipment. At present we are in need of two blackboards. One of these should be large, so that the entire Sunday school is able to see it. We would like to have some kind of a printing press or other outfit which would do for printing notices, and some song books—we don't care how old they are. E. R."

Can you donate some of the equipment which will enable these workers to carry on the project they have started? They will be grateful for anything received.

One Sided Love Takes Bliss Out of Wedded Life

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A certain young woman, aged 24, is madly, desperately, wildly in love with a man of 30, who is so obviously not in love with her that his treatment of her is pitiful. He is rude to her in the presence of her friends. He breaks engagements without an apology. He never does a single thing to justify the girl's obsession, yet she announces, "I'm crazy about him and I'm going to get him!"

She will get him, in all probability, for in spite of his offensive teratment he does turn up sufficiently often at her request to prove he has just the kind of backbone that makes men matrimonial victims in spite of their better judgment.

But after she gets him, what is she going to go with the darned thing? A man who hasn't the courage to say that he doesn't love a girl and therefore cannot marry her, is not the sort of mate one can write rhapsodies home about.

Perhaps a man may be held for a lifetime in one of these one-sided love affairs. The very spinelessness that led him into the union may hold him there, but it is not as a prize winning trophy he can be exhibited. Usually, however, such unions beside being frightfully hard going for the first year or two evaporate eventually.

Of course, if a girl loves a man so desperately that she will take him regardless of his feelings for or treatment of her, no persuasion under heaven will deter her. And perhaps our sympathy is amiss, for her pleasure may be earned in just striving and striving to please. Some women are like that. They'd rather handle a mop for one man than fondle the pearls of another. And since it is every one's privilege to decide her own matrimonial fate, the preference is her own right.

But life, in marriage, stretches out into long days and longer evenings where there is love on only one side. And human nature, curiously enough, is not so constituted as to be grateful to the point of lovingness for a devotion that is not returned. In fact, the sence of obligation incurred is palling. Men are notoriously ungrateful to the woman who slaves for them, sacrifices for them, unless moved by a deep affection. It is not a fair break a girl hands herself to carry off a man with ice in his veins so far as she is concerned.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Forget Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: The one I love does not care for me. What should I do? MARY."

Interference.

"Dear Miss Blake: "My friends's mother does not like me and quarrels with him because he goes with me. Please advise.

Please advise. SAD EVE."

A mother must not expect to dictate her son's choice. He is the one to be suited.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Frank Dutch Henry is traveling backward to a record he never will brag about. He now has collected a dozen defeats for the current American league campaign, the twelfth going into the books yesterday when the Yankees slapped him around Comiskey's baseball property for a 7 to 5 victory in the third of the series.

The one and only thing Henry did well was to maintain control over the clouting tendencies of George Herman Ruth. Nearly 10,000 folks braved the inclement weather to see the Babe connect, but Henry resorted to trickery to deny them this pleasure. He passed Ruth twice and fanned him once. In his only other appearance with bat in hand the Babe notched a feeble single.

Sox Hits Wasted.

The Sox fairly showered hits on Roy Sherid but couldn't make the safeties count for much. They went through the first eight innings with only two runs to show for ten whacks and four passes.

In the ninth the gave the game its only touch of excitement by uncorking a concerted attack that induced Sherid to surrender, but after three had scored and the bases were still clogged the uprising subsided under the direction of Rescuer Pipgras.

Henry's pitching was only partly to blame for the two runs that gave the Yanks a lead in the first inning. Admiral Byrd opened the afternoon's amusement with a double to left and Lary immediately singled in the same direction, Byrd scoring. Henry rose to unexpected heights by fanning the great Ruth. Lazzeri scratched a single toward third. Gehrig tapped in front of the plate and Tate picked it up but pegged wild to first, Lary scoring on the error.

Gehrig Triples, Scores.

In the fourth the Yanks reached Henry for a pair of hits and a run was the outcome. One of these blows was a triple to center by Gehrig. The other was a single by Rice on which Larrupin' Lou hiked home.

Despite numerous hits in the first three innings Sherid kept the Sox away from the plate, but they broke his luck by getting one in the home fourth. Henry assisted in this by singling with one out. Jeffries forced him, but Mulleavy stepped in with a whistling three base drive to the board in left center, Jeffries scoring. Another Chicagoan counted on hits of similar length in the fifth. Barnes unreeled the triple and Cissell the single. This put the Sox one shy of a tie.

The customary melting of Henry's skill began in the sixth with Lary leaning against the first pitch and sailing it into the lower floor in left field. The great Ruth also swung mightily but produced only a puny roller. However, it traveled so slow toward short that he was able to beat it for a hit. Lazzeri smacked a single about which there was no mistake and Ruth ran to third. Gehrig's single scored Ruth and put Tony on third. He sneaked home with the third run of the inning while Cissell was tossing out Rice.

Babe Scores Again.

Ruth got to first in the seventh on a pass with one out. Lazzeri singled and Ruth romped to third. He scored the last Yank run on a force-out.

The belated disturbance created by the Sox in the ninth started when Watwood singled with one out. He raced to third on Barnes' fourth hit and home on Cissell's fly. Tate helped with a single. Lyons batted for Walsh, who had hurled the Yank ninth and doubled Barnes and Tate over the counter. Crouse batted for Jeffries and walked, whereupon Sherid turned over his job to Pipgras. The rescuer passed Mulleavy, filling the bases, but Reynolds bounced into a forceout and the party ended.

BLUE LAW VOIDS FOUR RUN RALLY IN NINTH INNING

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 13.—The Puritan fathers this afternoon anchored the Cubs with old Plymouth Rock, sinking them in the second game of a double header, 3 to 0, in a retroactive score. The Cubs were leading 4 to 3 when Lieut. McClusky of the commonwealth stepped in and ended the contest under the Sunday law which makes it wicked for ball fans to enjoy themselves after 6 p. m. The Cubs dropped the first game, 2 to 1.

The end of the game was attended by much excitement among 30,000 customers who witnessed the spectacle which became nothing more than a clownish stalling performance after the Cubs had taken the lead in the last half of the ninth.

The Cubs, though greatly chagrined at the outcome, have no one to blame except the penchant of the magnates to drag in all the dough in sight. The double header was not a scheduled one, tomorrow's regular game having been moved up to swell the gate.

Staggering Cubs the Goats.

For years a fight was made to get Sunday ball in Boston, and a year and a half ago a law was passed, attended by scandal, which permits baseball games between the hours of 2:05 and 6 o'clock.

Following the practice of all objects of reform activity, the baseball folks have not been content to follow the intent of the law. Given an inch, they have been taking a mile by framing double headers in a space of time not sufficient to assure the completion of two full games. Until today scores have been decisive when contests have ended prematurely. This afternoon was the first time the outcome has been switched by enforcement of the law. It was a cinch to happen and a break that the staggering Cubs had to be the goats.

In again exercising their passion for losing double headers to second division ball clubs, a passion first manifested in Cincinnati a week ago, the Cubs showed themselves to be devoid of punch.

Tough Game to Lose.

Socks Seibold shut them out until the ninth inning in the first game, their total hits till the ninth being four, no two of which came in the same inning. It was a tough game for Sheriff Blake to lose as his ninth setback, for both of Boston's runs were unearned, due to errors by English and Beck. The Cubs' run in the last of the ninth therefore was the only earned run of the game. It was effected on singles by Blair and English, a sacrifice by Wilson and a single by Stephenson. The tying run was on third and the winning run on first when the affair ended.

Prior to the ninth inning of the second game—and the ninth was thrown out of the records, remember—the Cubs had made only five hits off Bob Smith and three of these were in the first inning.

In this second game Guy Bush pitched six innings and allowed only four hits. But all were concentrated in the fourth inning when the Braves put over their three runs.

What Happened in Ninth.

Although the ninth inning was thrown out, you might be interested to know what happened as the clock edged toward the deadline. Wilson got his first hit in 20 trips to the plate, a single to right, and stopped at second while Stevie was beating out an infield hit. Grimm singled to left, scoring Wilson and putting Stevie on third. Tolson batted for Nelson and fanned, but Farrell singled to center, scoring Stephenson. Hartnett doubled to left center, scoring Grimm and Farrell, and the score was 4 to 3 in favor of Chicago. Hartnett retaliated for Boston's stalling by an attempted walking steal of third, and Blair struck out purposely.

Sisler opened the last of the ninth with a single off Root, and time was consumed while Neun came in from a remote corner of the ball park to run for him. Chatham struck out and then Welsh doubled to right, Neun stopping at third. It was at this point that the law stepped in and ended the ball game.

FIRST GAME

Things didn't start happening in the first game until one Brave was out in the third inning. At this point Richbourg beat out a high bouncer in front of the plate. Maranville then bounced another high one to English, and Woody threw it to the stands, Richbourg scoring and the Rabbit pulling up at third. Berger walked and then Sisler hit into a double play, English to Blair to Grimm.

Chatham opened the fourth by shooting a hot grounder in the direction of dead center, but Beck made a sensational one handed stop. Clyde was so delighted with the maneuver that he neglected the matter of making a good throw. He tossed the ball into the dugout and Chatham took second base. He went to third while Blair was throwing out Welsh and scored on Cronin's single to left.

Double Steal Frustrated.

SENATORS LACK 'IT,' BUT THEY CAN PLAY BALL

And That's Why They're at the Top This Year.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Naturally, there is some public puzzlement over the strange conduct of the Washington ball club which has been leading the American league at a little more than half time.

Here is a team with several elderly gentlemen playing at a highly responsible position, led by a man who always was regarded as a born subordinate with no capacity for executive work, and nowhere on the club will you find a man with any more complexion than the belly of a Long Island flounder, unless you count the incorrigible Art Shires, who is only a substitute.

Escaped Early Notices.

Before this season began, the Washington team escaped general notice because the men finished fifth last year and also, I think, because the commonplace character of the players gave a false impression of mediocrity. The only news that came out of their training camp at Biloxi, Miss., had to do with the strictly commercial bickering between Clark Griffith, the owner, and Goose Goslin, the outfielder with the clipped wing, who wanted $18,000 for this year's work and was asked to shave his price to $10,000.

Then, also, Washington's a quiet backwater of the American league, like Cincinnati in the National. And baseball, like the government, just grinds along down there, monotonous and conservative. The team had won a couple of pennants back in 1924 and 1925 under Stanley Harris, but Stanley, who was then known as the boy manager, had aged and retired from play. This year the team was taking the field with two men in the regular lineup who were veterans in the major leagues when he first came up, Joe Judge at first base and Sam Rice in the outfield.

A Few Others Middle Aged.

They joined the Washington club fifteen years ago. Oswald Bluege, the third baseman, was a little more recent than these two ancients, but even he was remembered as a member of the team that won the first pennant under Harris. There was much weight of years elsewhere. Muddy Ruel, the catcher, had been one of those ephemeral school boy prodigies back in 1914, and Sam Jones, the pitcher, had been sent away from the Yankees in 1926 after thirteen years in the business.

When a pitcher goes away after a big career with a famous ball club, it is generally supposed that he is just about through and that if he enjoys any prosperity thereafter, he is merely scraping his plate with his bread. Ruel, in fact, isn't the Senators' No. 1 catcher any more. Like his contemporary, Cy Perkins of the Athletics, he has lost much of what he used to have, squatting under the bats in the sun, year after year. He was always suave in his work and conspicuous to the critical orb of the professional. But now, Roy Spencer is taking over the job.

Johnson Calls It Balance.

Walter Johnson says the ball club has suddenly acquired something which he calls balance. Maybe he understands what he means by that but more likely he is just trying to explain the thing to himself and hoping it's so.

By some miracle, his pitchers are working better than any other staff in the country, a staff reminiscent of the group of Hoyt, Shawkey, Jones, Pennock and Mays, who used to win pennants for the Yankees. Sam Crowder pitched six games without being relieved and won five times. And in one stretch of sixteen games lately only one starting pitcher needed help. Managerial genius had nothing to do with this in a time when the hitters are bunting home runs off the handle. Joe Judge, by all precedent, would have been retired some years ago. He has been playing first base for twenty years and the job asks for nimble

It seems that a golfer has no opportunity to do big things unless he bears some good old Anglo-Saxon name like Smith or Jones. Bobby Jones, Mac Smith and Horton Smith finished one, two, three in the United States open Saturday and were among the first four in the British open last month. What chance have the Tvegras, the Turnesas or the Delvecchios?

To be sure, Leo Diegel slipped in to tie Mac Smith for second place in the British open, but in last week's big tournament he finished out of the running. So it seems that when all courses and all weather conditions are taken into consideration, one Jones and two Smiths belong at the top.

Mac Is Old Hand at Game.

Mac is an old timer at the game, while Horton is but a youngster of 22. Mac tied his brother Alec for the national open title as long ago as 1910, only to lose in the playoff, but Horton has not yet taken any major championship, though he has been knocking at the door for two seasons.

Mac has never been so close to the throne as he was last Saturday. Bobby Jones' great morning round shook off all pursuers except Mac and Horton and Harry Cooper.

While Cooper and Horton Smith were coming in with higher scores than they had been shooting in the earlier rounds, Mac swept in with a 70, two strokes under par. Horton had a chance to tie Jones when he hit the turn in 36. To do so he would have had to get home in 33, a feat which would not have been at all impossible if he had shot back to his best form. But he went one over par on the tenth, thirteenth and seventeenth and was able to birdie only the eleventh, thereby getting in with a 74, which killed his chances.

Cooper was out in 37 and home in 39 for a 76, when he needed a 70 to tie.

Jones Stops in Chicago.

Nearly all the golfers packed up Saturday immediately after the tournament and caught night trains for their respective sections of the country. Some were going east to compete in the Metropolitan open, while others were planning to suspend major activities until the western open next month at Detroit.

Bobby Jones' party left Minneapolis Saturday night in a private car and stopped for a while yesterday in Chicago. They will reach Atlanta today and will be met at the station by the greater portion of the townspeople, as a legal holiday has been declared in honor of Bobby's homecoming.

"Nobody got a greater kick out of it than I did when that last putt fell," Bobby said.

That putt will be a subject of many discussions within the next few weeks, and while the present estimate is that it was a 35-footer it is quite possible that next month it will be called anything from a 60 to an 80 footer.

Four Horsemen Beat Cantigny for Polo Title, 14 to 7

FOUR HORSEMEN [14].		CANTIGNY [7].
E. Stillman	No. 1	S. Pearson
P. Butler	No. 2	D. Craw
C. Crawford	No. 3	M. Corpening
T. L. Crites.
R. McIlvain Jr.	No. 4	R. R. McCormick

Score by chukkers:

Goals—E. Stillman [3], P. Butler [3], C. Crawford [3], T. L. Crites, R. McIlvain [4], S. Pearson [2], D. Craw [3], M. Corpening [2].

WHITES BEAT REDS.

Port Washington, L. I., July 13.—[Special.]—Tommy Hitchcock, Jr., playing a star role himself, led his Whites, all candidates for the American polo defense team to a 14 to 5 victory over the Reds, on which were three other candidates, in a thrilling match on Fleischman field today.

Hitchcock, who had not played through a full game for three weeks, was pretty much his old self with his mallet working as accurately as ever. Eric Pedley was close to his best form and between Pedley and Hitchcock, twelve of the fourteen goals were divided equally.

GALLANT FOX AND SANDE STAY OVER FOR 'EASY' MONEY

Older Horses Will Meet Easterner in Cup Race.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Gallant Fox and Jockey Earle Sande are not going to relinquish the Arlington limelight for another week. They began preparations yesterday for the $25,000 added Arlington cup in which the Fox for the first time will meet older horses, and attempt to add to his 3 year old trophy collection the all age turf championship of the year.

In the Arlington cup, which may gross $35,000 and be the richest weight for age race run in America in 25 years, the Fox will run against Blue Larkspur, Misstep, Sun Beau, Petee Wrack, Victorian, The Nut, Stars and Bars, Galahad and Toro. His 3 year old rivals will include Gallant Knight, Reveille Boy, the American Derby winner, Caruso, Snowflake and Ned O.

Strongest Field Assured.

If the best of this lot go to the post—and they will, for they are already on the grounds in fine condition—no old time turfman at Arlington on Saturday will be able to recall a better field ever facing a starter in America. And they may not be able to recall a greater horse race.

The cup is at a mile and a quarter, the same distance over which Gallant Fox beat Gallant Knight a neck in the Classic on Saturday. Blue Larkspur, Misstep, Sun Beau and the older horses will carry 126 pounds while Gallant Fox and the other 3 year olds will have imposts of 114 pounds.

West Wins More Races.

While Gallant Fox's victory in the Classic has put the east in front of the west in the amount of money earned during the first two weeks of the Arlington season, western owned horses have a considerable margin in the number of races won. Ninety one races have been held during the twelve days. Western owners have taken down 56 purses with the eastern horses winning 35 races.

Jockey Steffen and Marcum are staging a battle for the riding championship, and as today's program opens Steffen has a lead of one winning mount. Steffen has ridden 11 winners. The standing of the leading Arlington jockeys follows:

Jockey	Winners	Jockey	Winners
E. Steffen	11	J. Smith	4
C. Marcum	10	E. Watters	3
L. Schaefer	6	E. Shropshire	3
D. Trevitt	5	F. Pucho	3
A. Richard	5	P. Donohue	3
C. Corbett	4	R. Finnerty	3

Cup Lesser Lights Meet.

Several of the lesser lights among Arlington Cup candidates meet in the West Shore purse, which is at a mile and features today's Arlington program. They include Lativich, Hot Toddy, Buddy Bauer, William T., Pigeon Hole, Live Oak and Bobashela. The Winnetka purse also has attracted a good field of fillies and mares, and it is over the mile course. Mrs. John Hertz's Valencienes, E. R. Bradley's Beaming Over, A. B. Hancock's Chelys, Ald. Coughlin's Naughty Eye, and Vesta are in the overnight field.

Arlington crowds for the first two weeks show an increase of approximately 30 per cent over last year, officials reported last night.

Italians Earn Right to Play U.S. Net Team

GENOA, Italy, July 13.—(AP)—Italy reached the interzone finals of Davis cup tennis competition today by eliminating Japan, three matches to two.

With the final outcome depending upon the last singles match, Baron H. L. de Morpurgo, ace of the Italian team, conquered Yoshiro Ohta in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1.

Takeichi Harada of Japan earlier in the day had brought the series count to two victories apiece by beating Georgio de Stefani, 6-2, 7-5, 7-5.

Italy now will face the United States, American zone survivors, at Paris, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The winner of this series will gain the right to meet France, holder of the cup for three years, in the challenge round at Paris July 25, 26, and 27.

Morpurgo, who plans to retire from international tennis competition after this year, played a brilliant all-around game that held Ohta helpless. The baron showed no signs of the illness which was reported to have handicapped his play against Harada on Friday.

Harada gave De Stefani a tennis lesson in their match. Harada was superior to the Italian in every department of play from service to overhead.

leg action. Clark Griffith has been bringing in men to back him up every now and then, but Joe outlasted George Sisler and he is still the Senators' first baseman, holding his job against Art Shires, who is just hanging around to spell him when he needs a few days' rest.

An Easy Going Outfit.

Rice, like Babe Ruth, began as a pitcher, but went to the outfield because he could hit and throw. Judge, Rice, Bluege and Johnson, now the manager, are the core of the team, holdovers from the years when the Harris boy was the manager. The others who have come up to the firm are as lustreless as themselves and thus the whole outfit gives an impression of easy going contentment.

Griffith let Myer go two years ago, but brought him back, tried him again at third base and shortstop and now finally discovers that he is a second baseman. In the meantime, he acquired Joe Cronin from Kansas City, who now plays short.

Goslin, for his unfortunate choice of language in the quarrel about his wages last spring, had to go and when Phil Ball, the owner of the Browns, inquired about him Mr. Griffith was much pleased. Ball gave Crowder and Heine Manush for Goslin and the deal had the appearance of legal larceny on Mr. Griffith's part because he would have had the better of it, even up, in a straight trade, Manush for Goslin.

Walter Not Surprised.

"I'm not surprised," Mr. Johnson says. "This club was winning more games than the Athletics or Yankees in the last month of the 1929 season, and I knew we were ready to play for the pennant this year. Nobody paid any attention to us last fall; the other clubs were making so much noise. People would look at the records and see where Judge and Rice had been around all those years and count them out. But Judge spent most of the winter working in a gymnasium in Washington and he was ready to play ball when he reported at Biloxi. Rice trained, too, and the pair of them were in better shape this spring than most young fellows. Now Rice is hitting about .380 and Judge about .350.

"Cronin is the life of the infield. He drives in more runs than any one else on the team and he never quits. Meyer never was a very good fielder before this year, but he is playing much better now.

"Our pitching wasn't very good last season, but everybody happened to get going this spring, and then we got Crowder and he went crazy, too. Jones, Crowder, Marberry, Liska, Hadley, Brown, and Burke won 17 out of 19 games for us here a while ago. I don't want to seem hysterical, but I'd call them the best pitching staff in the game just now."

Harris Turned Social.

I don't know what Washington will do to express itself if the Senators win a pennant this year under Johnson. The town let go the wildest row ever loosed in honor of a baseball man when Harris' team won the world series in 1924. But all along there was a notion that Johnson, for his years of patient and not very remunerative toil, should have had the job. Then, Harris took his acclaim a mile too literally. The press implied that he was a very superior young man. Exclusive Washington clubs took him up and he married the daughter of a lame duck senator who had been of the senate social set.

There was only one ball player, Johnson, at the wedding, representing the team and, moreover, when the club went south the next spring, the Harrises established a social caste in a big, mixed household.

No Mourning for Bucky.

I suppose old Mr. Griffith knew what was going on. He had made a protégé, almost a son, of Harris and as Mrs. Griffith was in the party he doubtless heard just how everything was, for the ladies in a baseball caravan are very sensitive and influential. It would be hard to say just what popularity is made of, but austerity isn't the recipe, and when Harris left Washington for Detroit a couple of years ago there wasn't a damp eye in the ball club.

Then Walter Johnson went back as manager after a bad year as manager at Newark and a siege of flu that almost took his life. I don't want to seem hysterical, either, but Walter Johnson is the only baseball man I ever knew who was really loved and the only one I ever knew of whom a man could say this without any fear that he might sometime want to take it all back.

ARLINGTON

EVERY day groups of America's smartest thoroughbreds arrive in Chicago to participate under the silks of famous sportswomen and sportsmen in racing at Arlington Park. Every day patrons of this marvelous racing place are thrilled by dashing blue-bloods as they compete for rich purses. Every day there is a feature. Three times a week there is an added attraction of a steeplechase. This steeplechasing is the first Chicago has known in more than a quarter of a century.

Never before has Chicago seen such racing. Never before has the sport been conducted as Arlington Park is staging it—strictly on a non-profit basis. No stockholder draws dividends on capital invested—not one stockholder executive receives a salary.

For real pleasure and high-class entertainment—come to Arlington. First race is at 2:15 p. m.

TODAY

The West Shore, an $1,800 condition race for four-year-olds and over, has attracted a bunch of as shifting milers as there are about. One of these days at Arlington Park in some such race some fast sprinter is going to shade Jack High's American record of 1:35 — for one mile. The going is lightning fast but safe withal.

From her grandmother's cellar . . . to Ziegfeld's Roof . . . in just the twinkle of a toe. She really was the "Sally" . . . of the alley called Broadway.

And that's the only answer to another young star's rise. OLD GOLD made its bow just 4 years ago. In a month it was popular. In a year a headliner. Today it's America's fastest growing cigarette.

Nature again! Sun-drenched heart-leaves from better tobaccos. A new taste-thrill for jaded palates. A new throat-ease and freedom from coughs.

You can "manufacture" an ordinary cigarette . . . or an ordinary actress. But only Nature produces the stars.

ON MAY 11, 1926, AT NEWPORT, R.I., OLD GOLD BROKE INTO SOCIETY, AND IN LESS THAN A MONTH WAS ONE OF THE FOUR MOST POPULAR BRANDS.

River Park Swimmers To Enter Tribune Races

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Although the River Park district is much smaller than its neighbors, the Lincoln Park district and the West Park district, it has the largest outdoor pool in Chicago. This pool, 300 feet long and 100 feet wide, is located in California park, one block south of Irving Park avenue and near the west bank of the north branch of the Chicago river.

Nearly 2,000 children use the pool daily and it serves this community, which is a bit too far from the lake beaches of Lincoln park. Hundreds of boys and girls from this district are expected to enter THE TRIBUNE'S 100 yard races which will be held July 27, for boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 15, inclusive. Many have sent in individual entries. Other entries will be mailed by Bob Wheeler, an Illini student, a former swimming star at Lake View High school, who is captain of life guards at California park.

The pool was built three years ago. Every day you'll find Joseph Lynn, president of the board of commissioners, at the park, for this pool is his hobby.

THE TRIBUNE races were conceived to foster swimming for amateurs. Of course, they will determine the champions, but at the same time they are an opportunity for boys and girls who never have competed to win merit badges. All who finish the 100 yard course will receive these honors.

His idea is voiced by William Karush, 2644 LeMoyne, a newsboy. "I have been working for nine months at a news stand," William says. "One morning I saw this entry blank. When I learned if I swam 100 yards I would receive a merit badge I immediately sent my entry. I am a junior life guard."

Edward Sekan, 14 years old, of 2745 West 51st street, is another youngster ambitious to prove his ability. "I have never been in a race," he says, "and I have never had an instructor, but I believe I can at least get a TRIBUNE merit badge."

Mandell's Friends to Bet $50,000 He'll Beat Singer

Orangeburg, N. Y., July 13.—[Special.]—Confidence of victory in the camp of Sammy Mandell was shown here today when it was learned that a group of wealthy friends of the lightweight champion had pooled about $50,000 to wager on Sammy at the purported odds of 8 to 5 which favor Al Singer in the bout next Thursday night at the Yankee stadium.

Mandell this morning branded the current rumors that he has "sold out" to Singer as unjust treatment, pointing out that during his career of eleven years, in which he had engaged in over 140 bouts, the finger of suspicion never has touched him.

"I hope to remain as champion for at least two more years," Mandell stated.

The lightweight king performed his training stunts today in Gus Wilson's arena before the largest crowd of his conditioning period here. More than 500 jammed into the gymnasium.

The champion indicated by his glove work today that when he concludes training on Tuesday he will have reached perfection in condition, wind, speed and boxing skill. He worked for speed today and produced probably the best workout of his grind here.

Tribune Canoe Scouts to Get Gold Medals

BY BOB BECKER.

The fifteen Chicago Boy Scouts who returned last night after putting in eight days canoeing and camping on the Tippecanoe and Wabash rivers will receive TRIBUNE gold medals for their successful outdoor adventure.

The medals will be mailed to each of the young explorers as soon as they have been engraved. They are shaped like the Indian arrowhead, which is in keeping with the Indian background of the two Indiana rivers which the boys visited, and each little trophy bears the inscription, "CHICAGO TRIBUNE Canoe Cruise Tippecanoe River, 1930."

Make Trip Without Mishap.

The boys who made this trip paddled from Winamac to Lafayette without a spill or an accident of any kind, made six different camps along the river route, slept out every night either in pup tents or in open air beds under the stars, rustled wood for camp use, and ate food cooked over open wood fires. They demonstrated how any city boy, if given a chance to learn something about camp craft, canoeing, and woodcraft, can go into the outdoors to live comfortably and have a lot of fun while getting close to nature.

In addition to the many opportunities which the boys on this cruise had for camp life, canoeing, woodcraft, bird study, and sports, such as swimming and playing baseball, they also received an interesting lesson in Chicagoland history before taking the train back to Chicago.

Visit Battlefield.

Through the courtesy of the Lafayette scout council, the Chicago lads visited several historic spots along the Wabash and Tippecanoe rivers, including the Tippecanoe battlefield. At each place visited the boys were told the story of how it figured in the early history of Indiana and the building of the American republic.

as a result of a walk, a double steal was attempted. The effort was frustrated and Richbourg, through inability to slide, supplied the third out at the plate.

The Cubs made their first threat in the fourth when English led off with a double. Cuyler popped to Maguire. Then Wilson tapped to Chatham and English was run down between second and third. Stephenson flied to Berger for the third out.

The Chicagoans were quite docile from the fourth until the eighth when Hartnett pushed off with a double. Heathcote batted for Beck and flied to Richbourg. D. Taylor batted for Blake and shot a hot liner which Seibold speared with one hand. He then threw to Maranville, doubling Hartnett off second.

Rally for Run in Ninth.

Which leads us up to the inadequate ninth inning rally: Blair started the ninth with a single to center and stopped at second on English's single to left. Cuyler fanned. Wilson flied to Welsh, and Blair took third after the catch. Stevie then singled to right, scoring Blair and putting English on third. The game was over when Grimm forced Stevie at second.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs started the second game by filling the bases, but no runs accrued. Blair launched the enterprise with a double to left. English was called out on strikes, but Cuyler beat out a single to deep short, Blair stopping at third. Wilson was called out on strikes, attended by much loud squawking, and Stevie walked, filling the bases. Grimm got credit for a single when his grounder hit Cuyler, effecting the third out.

There wasn't the semblance of a base hit from the first half of the first inning until the last half of the fourth. Maranville opened this session with the first hit off Bush, a single to right, and stopped at second when Berger singled to center. The pair moved up on Sisler's sacrifice bunt. Maranville scored when Chatham knocked a sacrifice to Wilson. Welsh singled to right, scoring Berger, and proceeded to second when Cuyler threw to the plate. Spohrer smacked a long one into right center, scoring Welsh. He was out, Wilson to Blair to English, when he overslid third. That made the score: Boston, 3; Cubs, 0.

The Cubs ended their four inning hitless chain with two out in the sixth when Stevie beat out a bunt. But the inning ended when Richbourg made a circus catch of Grimm's drive to right center.

In the seventh inning Cub endeavor was blighted by ill fortune. D. Taylor batted for J. Taylor and got credit for a double when Richbourg stumbled in going after his drive. Heathcote batted for Beck and lined to Maranville, who dashed to second in time to double D. Taylor off the bag. Hartnett batted for Bush and was thrown out by Chatham. Nelson came in as a relief hurler for the second time in the afternoon and the Braves who faced him in the seventh were unable to get the ball out of the infield.

LATE COURSE OF MARKET UPSETS BEAR PROPHETS

Trade Outlook Was Against Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Developments in the security markets last week were distinctly reassuring to those who believe that an improvement in stock and bond prices must first be achieved before material recovery in business can be looked for.

The week opened with conditions highly favoring the bears. Pre-holiday selling had brought on a sharp decline just before the three day suspension of trading. As a result orders which accumulated over the week-end were predominately to sell. News of the condition of business had been poor and gave promise of getting poorer. Most significant of all, the time was at hand for the publication of second quarter earnings reports, revealing just how badly the various industrial and utility companies had been hit by the depression.

Despite this unfavorable setting of the stage, the market turned up on the second day of the week, and maintained a steadily rising course for three successive days, the most extended recovery which had been achieved since the close of May. Friday brought a moderate reaction, but the final short trading session of the week saw quotations for leading issues lifted to the best levels thus far attained on the recovery.

Reasons for Advance.

The ability of the stock market to advance in the face of admittedly unfavorable external factors was due, primarily, to the strong technical position which had been built up during the previous weeks of decline.

The stock market has seldom had so many friends in high places as it has at present. This is not to say that there is any disposition on the part of important bankers to take definite steps to advance prices. But it does mean that there is almost universal agreement among the leading financiers that an improvement in stock prices at this time would prove helpful in stimulating business recovery. With that point of view prevailing in influential quarters, attempts to bring on a severe decline in stocks are apt to be undertaken cautiously.

That the stock market is technically stronger than it has been for some time is evident. Brokers' loans are at the lowest levels witnessed in three years. The ratio of such borrowings to the value of listed stocks is down to the extremely low level of 5.85 per cent. A large amount of stock has been removed from the portfolios of brokers and stowed away in the strongboxes of small investors. Such circumstances as the marked increase in registered stockholders shown by leading corporations and the decline in the floating supply of United States Steel common shares to 18.57 per cent of the total issue give concrete evidence of this development. Finally there remains outstanding a large short interest, which must ultimately cover.

Say Short Interests Large.

As to the extent of the latter there can be at best only shrewd guess work. Brokers who have consulted with one another state that the short interest is large. It includes, they say, not merely professional operators but an unusually large number of casual traders who have only recently turned to this side of stock speculation. Many of these latter undoubtedly ran to cover during the last week, but there was probably no great diminution of the bear element.

In the commodity markets developments of the week were by no means as cheerful as these in the security markets. Wheat fell to another new low for the last sixteen years and cotton was adversely influenced by the small reduction in acreage shown in the official report. Lacking extremely adverse weather conditions, which will bring about damage to the growing crops, there appears little prospect of an early improvement.

Laments Lack of Timber Reserves in Lakes Region

BY SCRUTATOR.

The denuding of the timberlands of the lake region, and failure to replace the supply, has had its ill effects on the lumber industry. The fact is becoming more apparent as time goes on.

Last year the consumption of lumber in this country exceeded thirty-three billion board feet. This figure was smaller than in any year since 1922. Indications from the lumber output of the first five months are that 1930 will show a total production of about twenty-eight billion board feet, or a decline of 16 per cent. Twenty years ago the yearly production was forty-four billion feet.

Lumber, then, is one of the few industries which has not enjoyed a larger business since the war than before. The Business Conditions Weekly holds that the underlying cause of this has been the inability of the lumbermen to hold down their costs. It is reasoned that in the intense competition in the building field, where labor has maintained or even increased its charges during a period of generally falling prices, costs have been cut by substituting other materials for lumber.

Furnish Good Market.

The prairie states, since their first settlement, have furnished a good market for lumber and more recently for its substitutes. Students of early history have found the pioneers valued woodlands so highly that quite often the price of an acre of timber was as much as seven times that of the best open agricultural land.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan for a long time furnished a supply. That gone, the timber reserves of considerable size were and are in the south or on the Pacific coast, mainly the latter. Transportation costs have been an important factor in the lumber troubles. It should be noted, also, that labor costs take 34 per cent of the gross income of the lumberman, as against 17 per cent for all manufacturing industries combined.

Lumbermen are making an intelligent effort to get their industry again into good shape. The National Lumber Bulletin, in telling of a campaign to have farmers in the United States modernize their buildings, asserts that more than 150 billion board feet would be required to make a good job of it. The same publication points out that stabilized prosperity for the country's farmers would take at least five billion feet more from the national market each year.

Push Improvements.

High standards of quality, the grade marking of the product and other improvements are being pushed. Possibly half a million people or more depend on lumbering for a livelihood. It is desirable that these should have a fair income. Still, the disturbing fact remains that the good timber is pushed far back from the good markets and that transportation costs are not likely to grow less.

The lumber substitutes would have a harder row if timber supplies were nearer. There are tremendous difficulties in the way of adequate reforestation. Most of them are financial. But the rewards in the central states would be great, both to lumbermen who can find a workable plan to accomplish it and to the buying public.

KEMPER TO CITE 14% GAIN IN PREMIUM INCOME

A 14 per cent increase in premium income for the first five months of 1930 over the same period last year will be reported today by President James S. Kemper at a convention of field men for the three casualty companies in the fleet of insurance companies under his management. The increase reflects sales in all lines of casualty business written by the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, American Motorists' Insurance company, and the Federal Mutual Liability Insurance company with automobile and workmen's compensation premiums predominating.

"A notable improvement in the construction trade is under way in certain sections of the country," says Mr. Kemper, "particularly in states where considerable public work has been launched. Our companies operate throughout the country, and while reduced factory pay rolls are naturally reflected in our workmen's compensation premiums, business on all casualty lines for the first five months of 1930 exceeded $9,190,607, which is 14.4 per cent over 1929."

REFINED COPPER STOCKS LARGEST SINCE SEPT., 1921

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Stocks of refined copper in the hands of North and South American producers and refiners on July 1 totaled 316,762 short tons, the largest amount since September, 1921, according to the monthly figures of the American bureau of metal statistics, the total compared with 308,646 tons on June 1, representing an increase of 8,116 tons last month.

The increase in refined stocks came as a surprise to Wall street, which had been expecting a sharp decrease, as a result of the record buying of copper for future shipment in May. Much of the copper purchased in May, it was thought, would be delivered to the buyers in June.

Mid-West States Gas & Oil Buys Natural Gas Lands

The Mid-West States Gas and Oil company, affiliated with the Mid-West States Utilities company, has brought a substantial block of Natural Gas Properties now operating in Kansas and Oklahoma. For the most part, the acreage has been recently developed. A pipe line company is to be organized to purchase and sell additional gas.

REDUCTIONS IN BRITISH TRADE ARE DISCLOSED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—All around reductions in Great Britain's overseas trade were disclosed in the preliminary figures for June, which were issued by the Board of Trade Journal. Compared with May, there were reductions of $37,975,000 in imports, $40,835,000 in exports, and $5,980,000 in re-exports.

The reduction of trade during the first six months of the current year compared to a similar period in 1929 is as follows: Decline in exports of $315,075,000; decline in imports of $269,455,000, and a decline in re-exports of $56,410,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—The Municipal Telephone and Utilities company has contracted with the Commonwealth Engineering and Management corporation for the acquisition within 30 or 60 days of the Kentucky States Telephone company and other utility properties in Kentucky by outright purchase of their common stocks, President Millard F. Cheek announced today. The Kentucky States Telephone company serves more than 65 towns and cities. The properties have an appraised vale of over $1,600,000.

Dean Witter & Co., Guaranty Company of New York, Continental Illinois company, and Bancamerica Blair corporation comprise a syndicate which will make public offering of $15,000,000 convertible 5 per cent gold debentures of The California Packing corporation due July 1, 1940, at par and accrued interest.

Conversion into common stock beginning Oct. 1, 1930, is extended to holders at prices graduated from $70 a share on or prior to Jan. 1, 1933, to $90 a share after Jan. 1, 1938, and prior to maturity. In event of call for redemption the conversion privilege is to expire 10 days before redemption date. These debentures will constitute the only funded debt of the company and its subsidiaries. They are its direct obligation.

These trusts have total average net funds at present of $5,199,978,000, total capital of $347,600,000, and surplus and undivided profits of $803,833,000. U. S. Copper Production in June Shows Lowering

New York, July 13.—(AP)—June production of copper by United States mines totaled 56,465 short tons, compared with 60,238 in May and 82,354 in June last year, the American bureau of metal statistics reports.

Planters in Cuba Try for Sugar Accord

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Efforts to form world accord on sugar growing is being made by a representative group of Cuban planters, who see in the present record accumulation of stocks a situation which threatens ruin to sugar growers all over the world.

Since the higher tariff on sugar in the recently passed bill sugar prices have continually sagged and while Porto Rican and Philippine growers have worked off more of their stocks than is usual at this time of year, the stocks which are unsold in Cuba and Java are a menace to the future market for even the sugar which is admitted to the United States duty free.

No Official Announcement.

While no official announcement has been made regarding the proposal which the Cuban growers have made to representatives of American and Porto Rican growers, it is generally admitted that a decrease in planting in Cuba and Java and a restriction to the present acreage in Porto Rica and the Philippines is the basis of the negotiations which have been carried on at three daily sessions during the past week.

Unofficial sources report that Cuba is prepared to make a 20 per cent reduction in planting during the coming year in return to a 10 per cent reduction by Java, and the restriction in the United States territories, such a reduction in planting, it is estimated by American sugar economists, will bring the supply down to about what the demand is expected to be, and will leave only the problem of working off the present excess accumulations.

Look to Russia.

Russia is expected to help greatly in reducing the present oversupply. Already this year that country has purchased 305,000 tons directly or indirectly, and negotiations are now being conducted towards arranging for the financing of shipments of 100,000 tons each month until next January from Cuba to the soviet. In the event these negotiations are successfully concluded the Russian purchases will go a long way towards clearing up the overstock in Cuba.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—The Standard I. G. company, the holding company for the patent rights relating to the hydrogenation process in every country outside of Germany, has transferred these patent rights for the United States to the Hydro-Patents company, a newly organized Delaware corporation, according to an announcement of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. A majority of the stock of the Standard I. G. company is held by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the minority interest by the I. G. Ferbenindustrie of Germany.

The shares of the Hydro-Patents company will be owned by American oil companies, including Standard Oil of New Jersey, in proportion to their crude running capacities, with minimum holding of 500 shares. In order to use these patent rights to the hydrogenation process it is necessary that the oil companies subscribe to a certain amount of stock.

So far, according to the announcement, seventeen companies with a total daily crude running capacity of 2,363,700 barrels are stockholders, although the total listed daily capacity of the United States oil industry is 3,765,585 barrels. About 20 per cent of this is believed to be in small units which have never been in a position to employ the more intensive refining methods.

The companies, which have taken over the control of the hydrogenation process in this country, it is said, represent at least 80 per cent of the refining capacity of the country potentially available for adoption of this method of refining.

CHICAGO WHEAT PRICES DROP TO SEASON'S LOW

Market Takes Lot of Hedge Sales.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Heavy pressure from hedge sales combined with sales by speculators, who believe in lower prices, as well as by a large number of operators who believe that the winter wheat crop has been largely underestimated by the government, more than offset unfavorable crop reports from the northwest last week.

Wheat prices in the Chicago market dropped to the lowest of the season, reaching that level on September and December on Saturday, and closing at almost the inside, and practically the lowest since 1914.

The market has taken an immense amount of hedges, and prices held up surprisingly well when it is considered that since June 15, two of the leading railroads in the southwest have moved more than 38,000 cars of wheat which, combined, with estimates of traffic on other roads, suggests about 50,000 cars, or around 75,000,000 bu in less than thirty days of an estimated crop of 213,000,000 bu in the three big states. The movement is said to slightly exceed that of last year's when the crop was 220,000,000 bu.

Puzzling to Trade.

Where this wheat has gone is what puzzles the trade. The visible supply has not increased in proportion to the enlarged marketing movement, and the wheat has evidently gone into the hands of millers, non-visible supply points, and a considerable percentage must be held on track for future disposition.

It is the general belief that prices are to work irregularly lower, and that hedge sales are to continue liberal, but in view of the enormous movement, combined with the fact that the peak of the southwestern marketing is over, it presents a situation that causes caution despite the

Horse Power and HORSEPOWER

CONTRARY to pastoral traditions which color the city dweller's conception of farming, American agriculture is a highly mechanized industry. It is our most highly powered industry except the railroads. Its aggregate capacity is about 50,000,000 horsepower—greater than the capacity of all the prime movers in factories and electric generating stations combined.

The machine age in the United States has been as much rural as urban since 1850. It could not have been otherwise.

The industrial revolution of steam would have been still-born if it had not been for the horse-driven agrarian revolution which enabled one-third of the nation to feed and clothe the whole. In all the ages before, three or more workers had to till the soil that one might work in shop, mine or mart.

But the farmer's great array of power, with which he met the challenge of the industrial revolution in the cities, is wasteful of money, materials, time and attention. Except his electric motors and windmills, the farmer's power machines demand almost constant attention, and require time and labor to put them into action. They consist of more than 24,000,000 small units. Of these, 18,750,000 are animals with 35 per cent of the total power capacity.

From all his power the farmer in any year gets only about four per cent of the capacity if it were working and earning its keep all the time. The manufacturer gets at least 13 per cent of the entire working capacity of his engines, and electric generating stations deliver better than 30 per cent of their possible yearly output of power.

For power the farmer pays at least 25 per cent of his gross income, while the cost of fuel and power in manufacturing is only three per cent of the value of the output.

The electrification of agriculture, then, cannot be viewed as merely a process of bringing power to the farmer. The farmer has power—lots of it. But he has not the kind of power which can do small, scattered jobs with a minimum of human attention. He has not the kind of power which can work at a high percentage of its capacity as an interconnected electric system can. Those are characteristics of electric power, but not of the farmer's present power resources. They are characteristic of horsepower but not of horse power.

And those are the benefits which the increasing electrification of agriculture is accomplishing.

Provision of power supply to small communities and to rural America on a scale equivalent to the service available in the great metropolitan centers is the achievement and responsibility of the Middle West Utilities System, a group of electric companies furnishing service to more than four thousand communities and to more than fifty thousand farms in thirty states.

The history of empowered agriculture in American industrial development is fully discussed in the booklet, "HARVESTS AND HIGHLINES," which the Middle West Utilities Company (20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois) will send upon request.

RAIL RIVALRY IS SEEN AHEAD IN BUS OPERATIONS

New York City Is Now Nub of Controversy.

Washington, July 13.—(AP)—If progress in railroad transportation is going to require the great transportation systems to engage in picking up and delivering passengers and freight at house door and store entrance, present indications are that the interstate commerce commission is willing to facilitate the development.

Although the commission last week closed one stage of the hot railroad contest over New York passenger business—entailing automobile service on an important scale—railroad men say the competitive controversy there is far from ended and that the New York situation is being treated as an opportunity for important experimentation with possibilities.

The Pennsylvania railroad, which owns one of the best known of all passenger terminals in the heart of New York City, has found it somewhat inadequate to demands of modern travel. It sought permission to install a motorized system of pickup and delivery of passengers at house or hotel doors, and was refused by the federal agency.

Decision Is Qualified.

The commission's decision, however, now appears to have been sharply qualified; the Pennsylvania has merely been refused the right to install the auto extensions for its passengers on a schedule basis.

Since one of its rivals, the Baltimore & Ohio, initiated automobile bus service right into Manhattan, avoiding difficulty with the commission simply by doing it without filing regular transport schedules, it still is possible for the Pennsylvania to proceed in some other fashion to supplement its railroad cars with buses.

The remarkable revolution in transport conditions which development of automotive transport has brought about is regarded by interested people as best illustrated by the New York City squabble in which the commission's ruling was interjected. Though the Pennsylvania, like the New York Central, at a cost of hundreds of millions, put its passenger rails into the city, less wealthy lines have been unable to match the facilities. They stopped on the Jersey shore.

Have Worked Havoc.

The Baltimore & Ohio, permitted during federal railroad control to run passenger trains into the Pennsylvania's New York terminals, was excluded as soon as carriers were returned to private control.

Promptly not only the Baltimore & Ohio but the other roads with terminals on the Jersey shore intervened.

GASOLINE PRICE WAR APPEARS TO BE NEAR END ON PACIFIC COAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—The drastic gasoline price war, which has been raging on the Pacific coast for almost a month, appeared nearing its end as the Standard Oil Company of California, the Shell Oil company, Richfield Oil company, and the Union Oil company simultaneously announced that they had restored service station prices to their former levels. Since these are the leading distributors of gasoline on the Pacific coast, it is believed that other marketing companies will shortly follow their action.

As a result of the gasoline price war retail prices of gasoline on Friday throughout this general territory averaged from 8¼c to 9½c a gal, it is stated, as compared with around 20c before the slashing started.

Since this included state taxes, the oil companies were selling gasoline at retail below the refinery prices. The price war was inaugurated by the Texas company a few weeks ago when it reduced service station prices 3c a gallon.

It was reported today that several of the major oil companies on the Pacific coast were preparing to inaugurate a new marketing policy in order to check these price wars there, which have been fairly numerous in the last few years. The plan, it is understood, will include the consignment of gasoline to the service stations, which would be marketed at a price to be determined by the oil companies. The service station owners would receive 4c a gal in commission.

INSTITUTIONAL BUYING PEPS UP BOND MARKET

New York, July 13.—(AP)—After creeping along since money rates reached pre-war levels, the pace of bonds has quickened under the impetus of institutional buying, and last week the market made the best showing since spring.

In financial circles, which have been disappointed by the feeble response to easy credit, the broadened activity of bonds and higher prices were regarded by the sanguine as marking a turn in the road. Not since the short lived March rally has such a definite upturn taken place throughout the entire list of issues traded on the New York Stock exchange.

New life was fused into best grade corporation bonds of all classes, with railroad mortgage issues providing the leadership. Interest in foreign dollar bonds increased. The average showed that utility bonds climbed to a new peak level for three years and railroad issues are not far behind, although the general price level has yet to surpass the point reached in March and is under the 1928 high.

Several dozen railroad and other corporation bonds reached new peaks during the week's trading. A strong competitive market developed for some of the standard rail issues as banks and insurance companies displayed increasing interest in long term investment securities.

Money rates during the week held fairly close to the level reached several weeks ago, and the only new factor in the situation appeared to be the improved tone of the stock market.

FURNITURE SHOW IS BIG FEATURE OF BUYING ACTIVITY

3,676 Buyers Attend First Week.

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

The large attendance of furniture retailers and buyers at the semi-annual furniture style show in progress at the American Furniture mart presented a contrast last week to the quiet drone of business in mercantile lines in the Chicago wholesale district.

The first week of the two week exhibition of new furniture lines drew an attendance of 3,676 buyers, from all parts of the country, thus ranking the current display the second largest in the history of the Furniture mart. Another large influx is expected today.

Alward Comments.

"Whereas there was not much buying during January, there was last week—not in great volume, but orders were being placed generally," commented V. L. Alward, president of the mart. "Stocks of retailers appear to be lower than they have been for some time and therefore orders have had to be placed."

"There is no doubt in my mind that wholesale furniture prices will have to advance," continued Mr. Alward, who claimed that the manufacturer's margin of profit is now inadequate.

Since June and early July, around midyear inventory time, are normally quiet, the Chicago wholesale district and firms located in the big new Merchandise mart are now laying plans for the summer market and convention of the interstate merchants council to be held the first week of August.

Summer Market.

Marshall Field & Co. [wholesale] will soon issue between 30,000 and 40,000 invitations to formal opening of its new quarters, according to D. J. O'Grady, advertising manager. The summer market is usually the occasion of the heaviest buying activity of the year in the wholesale mercantile lines.

Last week's heat wave pepped up sales in some seasonable hot weather lines, although much of such recent buying has been in small orders. The Chicago Association of Commerce, in its weekly review, reports a heavy demand for white goods, with one wholesale firm reporting that its factory for bedding and sheeting materials is running on a 20 hour a day schedule.

U. S. Orders 3,000,000 Feet of Copperweld Steel

The United States government has contracted for 3,000,000 feet of wire from the Copperweld Steel company for use as antennae for the air service. The wire is retained in a reel and, when sufficient altitude is obtained, it is released by a weight. The order resulted from nearly a score of tests by government experts.

Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. in Agreement

New York, July 13.—(AP)—Arrangements have been concluded between the Philadelphia Storage Battery company, makers of Philco radio sets, and the Automobile Corporation of America whereby the automobile corporations radio, Transitone, will be manufactured by the Philadelphia company.

FAR EAST RUBBER.
